Rejection Of Contract To Be Urged

The Dist. 59 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 500 teachers reject the contract proposal the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting so the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8.

"The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated.

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated.

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Waltman had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $288,000. Waltman has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 59 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contracts. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,000. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Waltman, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

WALTMAN TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

FAA Probes Crash Of Light Plane

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

ANN BALAJT, a field worker for the Elk Grove Park District, helps eight-year-old Lisa Johnson build with twigs, one of her many activities as day camp supervisor this summer.

She Remembers Park Fun

More than 100 Elk Grove Village youngsters will be heading back to school soon after spending many hours hunting for frogs, making spaghetti, and doing things that little kids like to do.

Their memories of summer 1970 will include a vibrant girl who helped them catch the frogs. She is Ann Balajt, a field worker for the park district.

Ann, who lives in Des Plaines, where her father is a park board member, is a student at the University of Illinois, Champaign.

With years of background in park district work, Ann still had high comments for the Elk Grove Park District.

"I'd like to come back to Elk Grove. I thought it was a very moving park district."

It got things done and tried things a little out of line but it worked."

AS AN EXAMPLE of "things a little out of line," Ann mentioned the park district overnight held earlier this month.

"I'd never heard of a park district holding one before, but now that I look back on it, it is something very good. The park district has the funds and the resources and the people to supervise."

Before coming to the park district this summer Ann had worked in a resident camp in St. Louis, as a playground supervisor, lifeguard, and swimming instructor.

"I hope to go on in administration in school," she said, and then talked about how she became interested in park work.

"I was in a junior leader program in Des Plaines and got talked into going to a weekend convention. It was then that I began thinking about it as a profession."

WHILE WITH THE park district this summer Ann supervised the day camp program in the forest preserve and the overnight at Wooster Lake Park.

"She's a very enthusiastic girl and will make a good recreation person," Jack Claes, park district director, said. "She's devoted and puts in a good many hours," he added.

Ann shuffled around stakes for tents so that when several were left behind all the tents would stand up anyway. She helped the youngsters make French toast and spaghetti and fruit salad out of watermelon rinds.

When she wasn't hunting for frogs or making soap bubbles she was teaching youngsters how to make Mexican gods' eyes.

"You lash two sticks together in the form of a cross to keep the evil spirits away," she explained.

"It was a great fantastic experience I learned a lot," she said.

"I think a lot of people consider park work as a physical education job. It's not at all like that. It takes a little bit of

To Present Mini-Bike Petition

More than a hundred names will appear on a petition to be presented to the Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday suggesting the creation of a village-sanctioned place to ride mini-bikes.

The petition supports the development of 17 acres parallel to Salt Creek for us by the bikes, now banned from streets, sidewalks and all public land.

Robert Buehler, 15, 848 Bonita Ave. canvassed the homes facing the property between Clearmont and Walnut drives, parallel to Cypress Drive. With the help of friends Larry Graham and Oton Allen, he secured the signatures of parents on his petition. Of the people living on Cypress Drive, 12 signed, four were on vacation, two refused approval and one would not sign but would not complain.

BUEHLER ANTICIPATES that certain rules will be enforced if the village agrees to grade out a mini-bike path. He suggests that membership cards be used to identify riders on their way to and from the area.

Possible hours would be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. to avoid disturbing residents of the neighborhood.

Minibikes are about 24 inches high, and sport 1.5 to 11 horsepower motors with the capability of reaching high speeds. They range in price from $100 to $400.

Many riders are not old enough to have a driver's license, but Buehler expects that most riders using the path will be "old enough to operate a minibike," about 13 or 14 years old.

Buehler had requested use of some village land at the last village board meeting. Board members had directed him to Bill Dunning, Elk Grove Village police and fire commission member, who helped Buehler and his friends set up the petition.

Smoke Area In Doubt

A headline in Monday's Herald incorrectly stated that a smoking area was approved by Elk Grove High School. As of Monday morning the area was only under consideration by the Dist. 214 board of education. The request for a smoking area was to be presented by the high school administration last night.

Hodlmair Home Hit By Burglars

Burglars last week entered the home of Charles A. Hodlmair, Elk Grove Township assessor and former Elk Grove Village mayor, and took $12,000 in valuables, including a $4,000 polar bear skin rug, police reported.

Also reported taken from the house at 100 Landmeier Rd. was a brown bear skin rug valued at $2,500, four rifles, two handguns, an elephant figurine, a ship's clock, portable TV, three cameras, a radio, two suitcases, and some fishing poles.

Family Searches For German Shepherd

The nine Milliken children from Elk Grove Village are searching for their dog, Duchess, who ran away from home Friday night. They are seeking help.

Tom Milliken, 13, said his family has had Duchess for five years and she has never run away before. He described her as a tan German Shepherd of medium height with a black leather collar.

He asked that anyone who sees a dog fitting her description call the Dennis Milliken home at 437-1230 or contact them at 202 Creet Ave.

Gas Station Work-Study Plan Eyed

The possibility of a student-managed and operated automobile service station is being considered by the youth service committee of Elk Grove Village Community Service.

Irv Helford, committee chairman, told Community Service board members the closing of a Marathon Station at Arlington Heights and Devon roads prompted the idea.

He said the station would be run as a work-study program for students at Elk Grove High School. He proposed the students be under a manager-director adult who is affiliated with the school.

What is needed according to Helford, is someone willing to purchase the franchise for about $10,000 and back up support from the high school. Thomas Smith, director of Community Service, said the station would only have to break even and students would operate it as a means of getting high school credit.

Helford said students involved would not just be pumping gas but would have a part in the management, advertising, and public relations for the station.

He said his committee is also considering setting up a car wash as part of the proposed project.

"This would be for the kids who are not making it academically," he said. "It could make a difference between a kid graduating and a kid dropping out."

The possibility of such a station is still in the planning stages and the board has as yet, taken no action on the proposal.

term member of the Senate, is chairman of the Illinois Election Laws Commission now holding two days of hearings at the local hotel.

Bike Backing Move Afoot

A new movement afoot in both city and suburbs is promoting the bicycle as a tool of ecological reform.

According to Edward Abramic, the originator of Chicago's Bicycle Ecology, it is "a political movement," designed to show public opinion in favor of releasing funds for mass transit grants and bike networks.

There has been some discussion in Elk Grove Village concerning the designation of 15 miles of bike routes.

A group of bicycle enthusiasts, including Village President Jack Pahl and Police Chief Harry Jenkins toured the proposed routes recently, and in the suburbs as well as the city, interest in bike-riding, for purposes of health and pollution control, is growing.

October 3 has been designated as bicycle day in Chicago. A parade down State street and a rally at the Civic Center to which New York's Mayor John Lindsay has been invited are on the calendar.

THE PURPOSE OF the day is to illustrate how bicycles, combined with effective mass transit, represent the solution to the problem of congestion and exhaust fumes within the Loop.

"Demands" of the rally are for the implementation of plans set forth by the Department of Development and Planning and the Chicago Park District.

Perennially, plans for expanded bike facilities in Chicago have never left the drawing boards.

It is hoped, says Abramic, that bicycle day will also include an "Open State Street" similar to those held earlier this summer in Tokyo and New York.

TO OPEN THE Loop area to the people would, "restrict all vehicular traffic, permit people to mingle on the street, permit ease in shopping and would clear the air of fumes," he said.

A group of bicycle enthusiasts, including Village Pres. Jack Pahl and Police Chief Harry Jenkins, toured the proposed routes recently.

Pahl is waging a personal campaign against pollution while keeping in shape riding his 10-speed bicycle 21 miles to his Chicago insurance office whenever he gets a chance.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

By ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Valtrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

New Explorer Post Is Organized Here

An Explorer post organized to interest teen-age boys in the fire service has been formed in Elk Grove Village.

Post adviser is Fire Fighter Richard Keyworth, assisted by firemen Donald Langland, Bernard Goss, and Lawrence Novak.

Membership in the post is open to all boys in the community. New members are invited to attend a meeting Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the fire station, 666 Landmeier Rd.

Recently, members of the post toured the fire station at O'Hare International Airport.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,500 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Coming Out Ahead

During these days when a diploma is almost essential to the documentation of a career-oriented young person's bid for a place in the adult world, there are more ways than one to acquire this important evidence of being qualified.

First and foremost is the high school diploma, signifying satisfactory completion of basic training required to indicate fitness for a rewarding role in life.

Second, of course, is the college of university diploma conferring an academic or professional degree that helps open the door to the higher opportunities awaiting the young.

And in between these two areas of education are the still growing number of two-year junior and community colleges, furnishing a bridge between the other two, or in their own right, the advanced training to fit the high school graduate for a career as a technician in one or another of the modern specialties where they are much in demand.

High school therefore, while offering more and more vocational instruction, becomes the staging area for the career-minded student; the stage of his learning-life that he must complete, in order to move on into the world of adult activity.

Yet there are options to be exercised by the serious-minded high school student that can help him come out ahead of the game.

There is no basis for discouragement.

Vocational and technical courses proliferating in high school offer training that can lead to either interim or full-time career opportunities.

The growing number of two-year junior and community colleges offer training in the higher and more lucrative level of the new technologies.

And in addition, since practically all offer academic courses with credits acceptable to the regular four-year colleges, good students may, without loss of time, transfer to the higher learning.

The day of the high school dropout is over. The opportunity for the high school student to move upward, onward, through time is in direct relation to his devotion to learning.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

This fall there will be more than 45 million youngsters heading back to school.

With days getting shorter, and darkness setting in earlier each night, the danger of these young scholars not being seen by drivers increases.

Each mile walked at night is five times as dangerous as the same mile in daylight.

In hopes of reducing this danger at night, safety councils, civic-minded groups, schools, retail stores and clothing manufacturers are participating in a nationwide "Be Safe, Be Seen" program to encourage pedestrians to use reflective material on shoes, clothes, and other apparel after dark.

The most cautious driver traveling at 60 miles per hour needs 261 feet to brake to a complete stop. He can see a pedestrian only 80 feet ahead.

Retro-reflective material placed on a shoe heel, pant cuff, or on a jacket can be seen in the car's headlight 300 feet away, according to a study on visibility by Drs. Richard D. Hazlett and Merrill J. Allen, University of Indiana School of Optometry.

Driving Seminar Pushes Awareness

by JUDY KESSLER

Sixty thousand Americans are going to be killed this year. Five million persons are going to be disabled. Property damage will total 25 billion dollars this year.

Statistics from the Vietnam war? No traffic accidents.

The figures were cited by Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher at a driving seminar last week. By listing statistics, Horcher attempted to develop in the students an awareness of the traffic laws.

The traffic safety school lasts three weeks. It is held at the Wheeling Village Hall on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Most of the 45 persons from the Northwest suburban area attending the traffic school have been assigned to go there by the traffic court because they have received tickets for moving violations. However, anyone is invited to attend.

HORCHER ATTEMPTED to teach the students "to watch out for the other guy," to be aware of accident conditions and to be aware of their own driving attitudes. "Anything that can be prevented is not an accident," Horcher said. "I can assure you, there are very few accidents."

The police chief also attempted to alert the students by saying, "The chances in favor of all of you getting home tonight are 1,200 to one." He explained that those are very small odds, considering the number of persons on the road.

After completing the driver refresher seminar, he said, each student, being more aware, should see more accidents than they have ever seen.

To explain the student's presence at the driving seminar, Horcher said, "The only reason anyone ever got a ticket is because it was their unlucky day. We prove, beyond any doubt, that odds against getting a traffic citation for any reason, are 200 to one. This is why the accident rate is so high."

BUT ENFORCEMENT, the police chief said, is not effective for preventing accidents.

"Enforcement is a very negative approach to developing an awareness," he said. For this reason, he added, "awareness must be developed by other means, such as traffic schools."

Horchner said the most dangerous thing a person can do is drive a car down a two-lane highway. To explain this, he said that of 2,493 persons killed on Illinois streets, only 17 were killed on toll roads and inter-state systems.

Eighty-seven per cent of all deaths occur because of one of the following factors: speeding, failure to yield the right of way, crossing the center highway line, driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to follow stop signs and lights.

HORCHER SHOWED A movie, made by the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission, showing what happens to a car in an accident. At 20 miles an hour, the impact would be that of a car falling off a one-story building. At 40 miles per hour the impact would be that of a car falling from a 4-story building. At 60 miles per hour the impact would be like driving off a 9-story building.

Following the movie and a summary of traffic regulations, Horcher appealed to the students to protest traffic regulations they do not like. He asked, "When is the last time you saw someone burn his driver's license protesting the death of someone in a traffic accident?"

Tomorrow night Horcher will discuss the effects of alcohol on driving, tollroad driving, motorcycles and trucks and police driving. The session begins at 7 p.m.

CLANG, CLANG CLANG. A little bit of San Francisco came to Arlington Heights Friday afternoon in the form of a mini-cable car. The smaller than life-size replica chimed its way through town as part of a promotional tour for a California car tour agency. Michigan is the next stop on the line for the cable car.

Cable Car Clangs To Town

by MURRAY DUBIN

Clang, clang, clang.
Clanging down Campbell Street, ringing your way left, past the no left turn sign on Oak Avenue, chiming through the Jewel parking lot with amazed faces registering disbelief.

Hold onto the rail for dear life as the cable car zips around. It's suddenly San Francisco and the streets are a roller coaster, rolling up and down like your stomach.

But it's really Arlington Heights and the smell of the wharves disappears as the police cadet looks on menacingly. There aren't any no-left-turn signs in San Francisco.

Clang, clang, clang.

Dennis Sanfilippo and Bennie Sharpe brought a little bit of San Francisco with them last week when they arrived in Arlington Heights driving a cable car replica.

SANFILIPPO, representing California Parlor Car Tours, started his promotional drive across the country eight days ago. Along with him is Bennie Sharpe, a representative of Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii.

Clang, clang, clang.

It's a funmobile that seats about 30 laughing people and has room for others if they hang on to the poles, stick their heads out the car's open sides, and make funny faces to passing motorists and surprised old people.

That cop won't give us a ticket, will he?

Travel posters and bumper stickers make the brown, red and green cable car without a cable look like a noisy, ringing rainbow, complete with a Ford Chassis.

Clang, clang, clang.
"We've met the backbone of America," the 22-year-old Sanfilippo said. "Yeh, we've seen every gas station attendant on Route 80," he added.

THAT COP KEEPS staring at us.
The next stop for the transcontinental cable car is Michigan, and visits to travel agencies and others who may be interested in cable car tours to California.

Clang, clang, clang.

Licensing Rule Rapped

A special subcommittee of the Illinois Racing Board yesterday heard several objections to the proposed rule regarding the licensing of "all officers, directors and substantial owners" of Illinois race tracks.

W. S. Miller, former racing board chairman and current president of Belmont Park and Chicago Downs Race Track, objected strenuously to the board's proposal that "every person, trust or foundation owning five per cent or more of the equity of the applicant for racing dates" shall be required to be licensed by the board prior to the granting of racing dates.

"This board should be interested in the officers and directors of a track, not anyone who only owns five per cent," Miller said.

Miller said that when he was on the board a case came up concerning someone who had a partial ownership in Arlington Park Race Track. Miller said the attorney general's office at the time held that a track operator could do nothing about an undesirable person who had a financial interest in the local race track.

ALBERT E. Jenner Jr., attorney for Gulf and Western, and Frank Riley, and Newton W. Mandel, representing Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) raised several objections to the proposal and offered alternative plans. CTE, an offshoot company of Transnation which is a part of Gulf and Western, owns and operates Arlington and Washington Park race tracks.

Riley said the power of the board is limited by the power granted to it by the legislature. Riley said CTE has no objections to the licensing of officers and directors or anyone else involved in the day-to-day operations of the tracks.

Reading from the statute, he said, the board "shall have no right" to determine, through its licensing procedure, the officers or directors of a track "other than those directly involved in the actual running of races."

STATE'S ATTORNEY Robert Maloney countered with another section of the law which he said gives the board "implied power" to properly carry out fully the best interests of racing.

Mandel said, "The board has the right and obligation to supervise racing in the state of Illinois. The board presently has sufficient power to see to it that the proper people are involved in racing — to keep the undesirable elements out by denying a license."

He noted that under the proposal, 53 applications would have to be filed by persons in CTE, Transnation and Gulf and Western. "The board would spend all its time checking out people all over the world," Mandel said.

Mandel said that while the board should have power over those who run the track, it should have "no power to license those who run the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, the gas station or a proposed shopping center."

Riley, Mandel and Jenner also objected to another section of the proposal that would require the applicant to "bear the expense of any inquiry into the applicants financial integrity and moral responsibility to participate in racing in Illinois."

RILEY SAID it is "unreasonable for the board to have carte blanche authority to spend unlimited funds" of the applicant. He added that he feels the board has no right to charge more than $10 as provided for in the existing state statute.

Riley said, "It's none of the board's business how many times I kiss my wife."

Jenner then took issue with another portion of the proposal that states, "A licensee's ownership of an interest in a gaming operation, whether or not permitted by another jurisdiction, shall be considered inconsistent with the standards of conduct expected of participating in racing in Illinois, and be grounds for denial of application."

Jenner said the board's definition of "gaming" is such that it would exclude from racing anyone that operated a track in another state. He also pointed out that Gulf and Western has a six-tenths of one per cent interest in Resorts International, a firm which has as part of its business the operation of gambling casinos in the Bahamas.

He emphasized that this stock is unregistered "investment stock" and under the law, cannot be disposed of by Gulf and Western at this time.

A regular meeting of the board is scheduled today at 10 a.m. A member of the subcommittee said the board will consider yesterday's testimony and may make a decision on the proposed rule today. A decision is scheduled to be made by Sept. 1.

Stolen Barricades Found By Police

Ten yellow flashing barricades apparently stolen from road construction sites in Elk Grove Village turned up Sunday in Lake County, police reported.

They were found inside a car driven by a 17-year-old Elk Grove High School student who was stopped by Lake County Sheriff's Police for a minor traffic violation, police said.

Elk Grove Det. Melvin Mack said the youth admitted taking the barricades from Devon Avenue and Laurel Street but agreed to return them. No charges were filed against the student.

Win at Bridge

by OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 80th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the America's Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd lives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedlitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1935. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team:

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

Art Fair To Be Held On Sunday

More than 130 artists from Chicago and 45 suburbs will display paintings, ceramics and sculptures at the 15th annual Des Plaines Art Fair Sunday, Sept. 13 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The fair, which is sponsored by the Des Plaines Art Guild, will include exhibits by 24 Des Plaines artists. The exhibits will be displayed in the Des Plaines National Bank parking lot on Ellinwood Street between Lee and Graceland Streets.

According to the fair's publicist, Peggy Wetter, the artists will be coming from as far away as Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana. "And we expect several thousand people to attend the fair," she said. "The artists will be selling oil paintings, ceramics, sculptures and special crafts. Cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded to exhibitors for the best oils, water colors and mixed media exhibits," she said.

"There will be two paintings awarded at the close of the fair," Mrs. Wetter said. "The paintings, which were donated by their artists, Christi Hansen and Milvi Wheeler, are now on display in the lobby of the Des Plaines National Bank."

Mrs. Wetter also said the fair would have a refreshment wagon on Ellinwood Street. "They'll sell hot dogs and soft drinks. There will also be organ music throughout the day," William Haywood, formerly of Des Plaines, will play the organ.

Des Plaines Art Guild president Gerd Renner thinks the fair will be "lots of fun. We run the fair to encourage other people to try their painting ability. And, besides," Renner said, "it's a nice way to spend a Sunday afternoon."

In case of rain the fair will be held the following Sunday, Sept. 20.

AN ASSORTMENT of paintings, ceramics and sculptures will be on display in Des Plaines Sept. 13 for the 15th annual Des Plaines art fair. From 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. (if it doesn't rain) more than 130 artists will display their wares on Ellinwood Street, between Lee and Graceland streets. Also, the more than 1,000 persons expected to attend the event, sponsored by the Des Plaines Art Guild, can treat themselves to refreshments.

The Lighter Side

'Gad, Bring Back DDT'

by DECK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI — Discovery of many conventional insecticides eventually wind up in human tissue has started the Agriculture Department on an intensive search for other means of bug control.

Many new methods have been tested with varying degrees of success. But to laymen, at least, the most recent experiment in this field appears to have the greatest potential.

Under the latest approach, you don't kill a bug outright by spraying it with poison. You cause it to catch some sort of virus.

In short, pestilence rather than pesticides.

The reason this concept makes such an impression on laymen is because we have had some experience with viral diseases and are aware of how incapacitating they can be.

IF THEY ARE just half as effective on insects as they are on the human body, it will be a giant step forward in man's age-old struggle to get the upper hand over anthropoid pests.

Since initial studies, involving cabbage loopers and army-worms, are just now getting started, it is perhaps too early to anticipate the outcome. Theoretically, however, many benefits could ensue.

And the beauty of it is that the insects would become the agents of their own undoing.

Entomologists simply would catch a few, haul them into the lab and infect them with a virus. Then the bugs would be freed to go out and infect their family, a friends and co-workers.

Let us take an advance peek into a cabbage patch which is heavily infested with cabbage loopers.

"YOU DON'T SEEM to be looping much cabbage this morning, Henry. Is anything wrong?"

"Yeah. I don't feel so good. My head aches, my eyes are hot and watery and my legs feel like they have lead weights tied to them."

"Hoo, boy! Sounds like you've got a touch of the armyworm virus. There's a lot of that going around."

"What's armyworm virus?"

"It's a disease that human beings have introduced as part of their germ warfare program against us."

"What do you do for it?"

"There's nothing you can do for it. You just go home, get in bed and take aspirin until you feel like looping cabbage again."

"GAD! Remember the good old days when they sprayed us with DDT?"

Patrol Is Always Alert

By WILLARD KOSTECKI

When the School Safety Patrols don their white Sam Brown belts and their shiny badges this fall, they will be starting their 50th year of service in protection of the lives and limbs of their schoolmates.

Since 1935, when traffic accident records were first maintained, the national pedestrian death rate per 100,000 children, ages five to 14, has been cut by more than half in relation to the increase in motor vehicle registrations. This age group, protected from traffic in large measure by School Patrols, has a lower death rate from auto accident than any other age group.

The record becomes most impressive when it is realized that in 1935 there were only 26,546,126 motor vehicles registered, while this past year the number of vehicles in operation zoomed to over 100,000,000.

At times, patrol members have gone beyond the call of duty — at great risk to themselves — to insure the safety of their schoolmates. Since the founding of the Patrol in 1920, there have been 153 Gold Lifesaver Medals awarded to young heroes.

The average age of these courageous medal winners is 12 years.

One medal was awarded posthumously. It was presented to the parents of John Minadeo, who at age 15, a captain in his School Safety Patrol, sacrificed his life in order to push to safety other younger children in a Pittsburgh school from the path of an oncoming car that was out of control in 1954.

Along with the medal, John was honored by having a school named after him, and, as a final tribute, since he was of foreign parentage, he was awarded United States citizenship by Congressional Act.

The code of the Safety Patrol calls upon its members to "direct, instruct, and control" their classmates as they cross streets and highways near schools.

Boys and girls who become members of the Patrol learn that the first rule of traffic safety is "act, look and be alert." They are always on the job and are expected to make their classmates proud of the way they appear and conduct themselves.

Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett on marriage:

"Regardless of changing times, new ideas and ideologies, the institution of marriage still remains as the very foundation upon which our society was built. I would go a step further in my conclusion and say it is my firm belief that marriage is the universal structure of humanity, inasmuch as it is the beginning of the family and without the family, our ideals, principles, ambitions and dreams would collapse, and with it our civilization.

"If anyone should doubt the soundness of this institution, or my thoughts regarding this matter, I would draw their attention to the statistics which show that 2,183,387 licenses have been issued in Chicago during the last fifty years."

Barrett, who is seeking another term as county clerk, made his remarks in a press release detailing the number of licenses issued during his 15 years in the office. He said the average number of marriage licenses issued each year is 43,678, with a high of 66,822 in 1946 and a low of 27,071 in 1932.

Barrett's opponent is Republican Robert O. Atcher, currently mayor of Schaumburg. Atcher has not — so far — offered his views on marriage.

Richard Martwick, Democratic candidate for county superintendent of schools, has charged his opponent, Robert P. Hanrahan, with ineffective administration. Martwick, a latecomer in the race for superintendent, said newspaper disclosures of irregularities in auditing practices in the south suburban Posen-Robbins school district "points to a laxity in supervision by county officials."

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for county sheriff, has been endorsed by the College Young Republicans. Neither Carey, nor his Democratic opponent Richard Elrod, expected the GOP nomination to go any other way.

Sen. Ralph T. Smith said the drug problem is approaching the stage of a national epidemic and said law enforcement officials must be given greater latitude in fighting drug abuse.

Social Security And You

Q. — My wife collects Social Security as my dependent. She just started working and will make more than $1,680 this year. How will this affect our checks?

A. — Your check will stay the same, because your benefit is only affected if you work. But your wife's benefit will be reduced according to the amount she earns.

Q. — I have already made over $7,800 this year. Now that I've changed jobs, I'm still contributing to Social Security. Since I'll end up paying more than I should, can't I get some money back?

A. — Yes. You'll get a refund after you file your Federal income tax return for 1970. The tax return is designed to show any overpayment of Social Security contributions during the previous year.

Q. — I am a student Social Security beneficiary and I worked this summer. Will this work cause me to lose benefits?

A. — If you earn more than $1,680 during the year, some benefits will be withheld. The amount depends on how much you earn above $1,680. One dollar in benefits is withheld for every $2 you earn between $1,680 and $2,880. In addition, $1 in benefits is withheld for every $1 of earnings above $2,880. However, no matter how much your total yearly earnings exceed $1,680, you can get a check for any month in which you neither earn more than $140 nor perform substantial services as a self-employed person.

Q. — During the summer months, I usually hire a maid and a gardener. When must I report their wages?

A. — If you pay your maid or gardener cash wages of $50 or more during a calendar quarter, you must report the wages and send the Social Security contribution to the Internal Revenue Service. This report should be made during the first month after the quarter in which the wages were paid. Get a copy of "Social Security and Your Household Employee" (SSI-21) — from any Social Security office for more information on this subject.

IF INTENTIONS were the key to victory, the battle against environmental destruction in the United States would have been over as soon as it began.

In recent years, no single cause has attracted the attention and interest of the American people as has the effort to preserve fresh air and clean water. Government leaders, industry and the academic community have been joined by John Q. Public in the race to preserve the environment. Americans have lived in for almost 200 years.

Unfortunately, despite the fact that it is a one-sided fight with no one opposed to a clean environment, the battlefield logistics have been such that a victory has not been attained.

One of the hindrances has been a lack of total coordination and direction of the effort. For example, the public wants an immediate end to pollution of all kinds but industry, which is one of the major polluters, is not able to provide that without serious financial consequences.

If the industries were to direct their efforts solely toward eliminating their contributions to pollution and environmental destruc-rupting other important functions of society.

An effort in this direction is being undertaken by the Midwestern Regional Conference on Science, Technology and State Government, which will hold its next meeting at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in November.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is a member of the conference and deserves the credit for attracting the 15-state conference to the Northwest suburbs.

The three-day conference is expected to attract governors, legislative leaders and scientists from throughout the Midwest, as well as representatives of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Department of Commerce and the National Science Foundation.

environmental protection. Graham said the intention of the conference is to weigh the arguments on all sides of the environmental protection issue and learn solutions that are compatible with both a healthy environment and a healthy, growing economy.

This appears to be an excellent approach to the whole issue of environmental protection. Obviously, everyone wants to correct the mistakes which led to the gradual destruction of the environment but we cannot make a similar mistake by plunging ahead with solutions before the consequences are known.

That, after all, was the mistake that allowed the environment to get fouled up in the first place.

The Midwestern Regional Conference on Science, Technology and State Government has the potential to find answers to many questions and, happily, the conference will be held in the Northwest suburbs.

tion, the economy of the country would be certain to suffer and, although the environment would be cleaner, the other consequences could be just as destructive to the nation.

What is needed, then, is a close appraisal of exactly what can be done to clean up the environment as quickly as possible without dis-

Noble Idea Or Waste Of Time?

by DAVE PALERMO

If nothing else, it was certainly a noble idea.

The residents living along Meadows Park were going to sit down in the park with the kids and talk away differences which have developed over the summer months.

The kids have been hanging out at the park since June. Residents claim the youngsters have been committing acts of vandalism, shouting obscenities, hot-rod- ding up and down the streets, littering the neighborhood, throwing firecrackers and performing immoral acts. Everything short of murder and rape.

The residents found going to the police, village and park district officials unsatisfying, so they decided to sit down and talk to the kids.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT about 40 residents and between 50 and 60 youngsters met at the park and talked in small groups for about three hours.

Because there was no admission of guilt by either side, little was solved. The residents said they don't exaggerate what the youngsters are doing in the parks. They said they have homes near the park and their right to privacy from excessive noise had been violated. The youngsters agreed, passing the guilt of noisemaking to a mysterious group of teens not present for the discussion.

The residents admitted the youngsters had a right to meet in the park, but in the same breath asked if they would mind meeting further away from the homes closer to the highway. "You could raise all the hell you want over there," said one man. "It wouldn't bother us a bit."

"Let's face it," whispered one man to another. "All we want is to get them outta here."

One resident said what gripped him the most was obscenities used by the youngsters in the park. On two occasions that night residents themselves shouted obscenities, though nobody seemed to notice.

AS THE NIGHT wore on a group of pre-high schoolers began flicking lighted matches at one another.

One youngster got burnt a little too badly and began chasing his attacker around the park, zig-zagging through groups of youngsters and residents still talking.

One youngster mentioned that it was the younger kids, the junior high school students, who caused the problems. The match-throwers lent validity to his theory.

One basic point, sadly overlooked, concerned what the youngsters would do if they didn't have the park to go to.

"These kids haven't got any place to go," said one woman. "When I was young, we went to bowling alleys, dances and movies. You know how bowling alleys are so crowded today?"

"Why don't you guys play basketball at the courts," asked one man. "Go swimming or something."

What the residents couldn't understand, and the youngsters couldn't convey, was that they didn't really care about bowling, basketball or swimming.

The youngsters who gather at the parks aren't big on sports. They aren't big on organized trips to Wrigley Field or White Sox Park. They don't give a damn for teen centers supervised by a short-haired ex-football player who doubles as a bouncer. They don't want to play ping-pong and pool.

ALL THEY WANT is a place to go and talk. A place of their own, like Meadows Park.

But the residents couldn't understand that. That's one of the reasons why Wednesday night's meeting was such a waste of time.

Need Recreation For Teens

I couldn't help but be amused (or perhaps discouraged would be a better word) by the two items appearing one above the other on the front page of the Aug. 14 edition of the Mount Prospect Herald.

The lower part of the page is devoted to the last of four articles regarding the "teenager problems at Meadows Park." The article mentions problems such as speeding motorcycles, "rodding" up and down Council Street, the noise caused by the rumbling of automobile and motorcycle engines — and the groups feeling that "they have no other place to go."

I AGREE THAT engine noise, hot-rod- ding on the public streets, etc., are very annoying — not to say dangerous. But why can't we face the fact that a large number of teenagers (if not the majority) are no longer satisfied with more baseball fields in the parks, with new football fields — with new community centers that impose restrictions that obviate their usefulness.

Why can't one of the parks provide bicycle and motorcycle trails, a controlled drag-strip, a place where a local rock group can practice and/or perform, a place where the group can get together and work on their bikes and cars? I'm afraid the answer is that you can't let all those long-haired, sloppily dressed "huppies" do that — because we who control the parks know that they're bad, and if they were good teenagers they'd join a baseball league. Anything they want to do that I don't appreciate and don't enjoy, must be wrong. Can't we face the fact that it's we who are behind the times — that we can't enforce our idea of recreation on someone else, and then complain because they are wrong?

Just above this article is a large picture with a caption that states in part: "earth movers level the land . . . for a lighted baseball field, a football field and six tennis courts, etc." We once again are building what we want the teenagers to want — and once again we'll have groups saying they have no other place to go. Here was a chance, in the 30 acre area, to provide bike trails, etc. A place to take care of all of those teenagers who aren't turned on by the older generations idea of what to do for recreation.

We can't complain, when we refuse to understand, or even listen to the teenager. When we continue to insist that they like exactly what we like. When we automatically equate long hair and a different way of dress with reasons for fear and hate. Let's face facts, and give them some of the recreational areas and equipment a lot of them want . . . let's give them some place to go.

Kids 'Unbelievable'

The teen-age destruction in the Weller Creek area (near Wa-Pella Avenue) in Mount Prospect is unbelievable. So is the noise, violence and indiscriminate acts.

Young men and women — commonly known as "tree monkeys" (because they swing from limbs of trees by big ropes) — have virtually stripped the insides of the beautiful park trees. They litter the area with beer cans, wine bottles. They've ripped apart the Weller Creek bridge a number of times in the past two years. From their tree perches, they scream obscenities at innocent passers-by. They ignore rights which they so piously pretend to uphold.

In turn, the police department and park district choose to ignore these breaches of the law, apparently fearing the wrath of the young.

Youths' Good Deeds Need Recognition, Too

All too often we hear about the bad things teen-agers are doing. I feel some recognition for good deeds and performance is very much in order in this case.

I speak of the Palatine summer recreation group — the three young people of the Pleasant Hill staff, Debbie Kratochvil, Jim Jarocki and Peter Zopp. Under the leadership of Duane Hosmer, of the Palatine Park District, we feel that they did an outstanding job.

We couldn't have been more impressed with their weekly schedule of activities and were amazed how their unlimited range of ideas motivated the children through the summer. Upon observing the detailed schedules sent home and samples of actual projects, we would like all involved in this program to know how much their efforts were appreciated.

Knox Notes

System's Strength Was Upheld

by KEN KNOX

The Brian Flanagan case represents a benchmark decision in the new age of revolution.

For Hippies, Yuppies, the SDS and assorted other revolutionaries, Flanagan's acquittal really is something of an embarrassment. I suspect they'd rather hide from it, because their ends would have been better served if the young New Yorker had been sent up for a couple years.

But he wasn't, and the jury's decision to set him free left an inescapable conclusion: The System works, even for someone who would spit on it.

Flanagan, whatever role he might have played in the havoc in Chicago last October, got his free pass in the courtroom because the jurors bore down on the one issue before them: whether Flanagan broke the neck of Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Elrod.

FLANAGAN'S SALVATION came through the doctrine of reasonable doubt. There was enough contradictory testimony by prosecution and defense witnesses that the jury couldn't be sure one way or the other, and under our trial system, the doubt clears the defendant.

Another kind of reasonable doubt has arisen since the verdict, with Flanagan's clenched-fist emergence from the courtroom, his obscenity-sprinkled vow to return to the streets to fight, his cynical and ironic denunciation of the chances to get a fair trial in Chicago.

Was the jury wrong? No matter. The case wasn't proved, and that's the first requirement. If the prosecution did assume that the jury would do its duty on the general premise that Flanagan wasn't a nice character, it erred grievously. The system works only if you work at it.

Something has been made of the fact that Flanagan "played the game" during his trial, that he trimmed his hair and traded his jeans and sweater for Edwardian suits to help him beat the system.

HE DIDN'T BEAT it at all, of course. He just helped it work, and proved that it hasn't endured through our history without merit. If anything, Flanagan, the self-styled revolutionary cast aside his integrity, unwilling to take the risk of any hitch in the system, such as a hang-up over life styles.

Even in the celebrated, riotous Chicago 7 trial, that essential strength of the system was upheld. There, the defendants went to the other extreme of Flanagan, literally showing their revolutionary views and life styles down the throats of anyone in sight or earshot.

And still — despite the general assumption that in the end repression would have its day — all seven were acquitted on one charge and two of the seven on the other. That was a pretty careful deliberation, however much some may howl "compromise."

Great and strained efforts were made to characterize both trials as political, but in neither case did it work out that way. If the issues indeed had been life styles, and if all American citizens had symbolically jammed the jurors' box to sit in judgment on the revolutionary ethic, none of the defendants would be free today.

It all made exciting reading while it was happening, but it's over now. It ended up in the hopper of the trial by jury system, which did what it had to do and dromed and clanked on its way. And that, in the days and years to come, is something that Brian Flanagan is never going to be able to explain.

Little League Champs...16 Years Later

(Ed. Note: Marty Ralovsky of Newspaper Enterprise Assn. tracked down the members of the 1954 Schenectady, N. Y. Little League team that won the Little League World Series. Adults now, and some with sons of their own, they have some interesting views on the subject of 12-year-olds and world championship. The 1970 Little League World Series will be held Aug. 29-29 in Williamsport, Pa.)

by MARTY RALOVSKY

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. — (NEA) — As one drives down Michigan Avenue in the Mount Pleasant section of this city of 77,061, the row of white, two-family houses is abruptly interrupted by a scaled-down baseball field, which is enclosed by two sets of contrasting fences. The short, green one is designed to keep baseballs inside; the tall, wire one to keep people outside.

Between them, facing the flow of traffic heading north to State Street, is a large sign lettered in red and white that reads: "Home of the Schenectady Little League — World Champions of 1954."

It is a sign Schenectadians revere almost as much as the sign that points out the main entrance to their General Electric plant which, during two world wars, helped their community earn the reputation of being the one that lights and hauls the world. It is not so surprising, then, that before the start of every Little League season, the sign is touched up with delicate dabs of red and white and the grass around it is mowed and manicured to putting green standards, at least.

Sixteen years have passed since 14 of Schenectady's native sons went all the way to Williamsport, Pa., and established themselves as the best baseball players on planet earth, aged 8 to 12. But, world champions or not, they went the inevitable way of all Little Leaguers — they grew up. Eight of them are married now, six have children of their own, and they are settled in places like Orange, Texas, and Nagoya, Japan, and, of course, Schenectady, New York.

Two of them made careers of baseball and surfaced briefly in the major leagues — Jim Barbieri with the Dodgers in 1966, Bill Connors with the Cubs and the Mets in 1967 and 1968. Five became school teachers, two went to work in the GE plant, one is sports editor of a newspaper in Texas. One is in business for himself — an employment agency in Boston — and two others are employed by Schenectady firms as a salesman and a printer. One is among the city's 1,242 unemployed.

Although the memories of that summer of 1954 remain unchanged, the same cannot be said of their feelings toward Little League baseball itself. As adults and, in some cases, parents on the verge of becoming Little League fathers themselves, they no longer look upon the subculture of organized boys' baseball as they did 16 years ago when, nearing adolescence, they theoretically ruled it.

Bill Masucci, Schenectady Little League historians will tell you, was the best player on that 1954 world championship team. He was the winning pitcher and hit a home run when Schenectady defeated Colton, Calif., 7-5 in the championship game. Now 28, he is a graduate of Ithaca College, a health and physical education teacher at Schenectady's Linton High School, and the father of a six-year-old son.

The only Little League games Bill Masucci has seen in the last dozen years are the ones he takes Danny Masucci to watch in the Bellevue section of the city, where he lives. Admittedly, he is undecided about whether to encourage his son to try out for a Little League team three minimum age. The very part of Little League baseball he enjoyed most as a player, paradoxically, now disturbs him most as a parent.

"This all-star business, this all-the-way-to-Williamsport stuff, is hurting a lot of kids," Masucci said. "Look, these Little League people give you all these slogans about keeping boys in sports and out of courts and all that, but this all-star routine contradicts it all. Around here, the seasons end on July 1st so the all-star teams can start playing. Fine, fine, for the 14 kids who make the all-star teams. But what about the kids who don't?"

"They've got the rest of the summer to twiddle their thumbs, or whatever. Little League has to relate to the times, right now, 1970, especially in the urban areas where it can do the most good. A lot of things have changed since 1954. Maybe they should do away with all-star teams, and the World Series, and let the season run the whole summer so the kids can play until they're played out. I think a lot of Little League people are worrying too much about winning world championships and not enough about kids themselves."

Criticizing Little League baseball in Schenectady is tantamount, perhaps to criticizing beer in Milwaukee or tubeless tires in Akron. But regardless of what Bill Masucci might say about Little League priorities, he will always retain the special niche, Schenectadians reserved for him that August day in 1954 when he struck out Colton's Norm Hausley to wrap up the city's world championship in anything.

"To this day, people stop me in the street and want to talk about it," he said. "I don't think they'll ever forget it. It's like being famous but not really famous, know what I mean? The other day I wanted to cash a twenty-dollar check and I went into a bank on the other side of town I had never been to before. The teller said he couldn't cash it for me because I didn't have an account there.

"Just as he was about to hand it back to me, paused and looked at it again. 'Bill Masucci,' he said. 'You wouldn't be the Little League pitcher, would you?' I said, 'Yes, that's right.' He said, 'Glad to meet you,' and he shook my hand. Then he said, 'Would you like two tens or four fives?'"

"It's funny, I guess, but as long as I live in this city I'll always be 12 years old."

On Aug. 24, 1964, in the last inning of a quarterfinal round game in the sixth Little League World Series at Williamsport, Joe Loudis of Schenectady struck out his pitching counterpart from Lakeland, Fla., on four pitches. Schenectady was leading at the time, 14-0, and even if John (Boog) Powell did hit one out, it wouldn't have mattered much to anybody from Schenectady, except maybe Joe Loudis.

Powell is still playing baseball, in Baltimore now, and Loudis is a teacher of business subjects and basketball coach at Cohoes, N. Y., High School where, last winter, his team won a Colonial Conference title and compiled a record of 18 wins, two losses. Now 28, and double his Little League playing weight of 105 pounds, Joe Loudis will tell you, in retrospect, that it was difficult, indeed, to be washed up as an athlete at 13 years old. After winning a world championship at 12, just what, he asked, was left?

"That '54 World Series was the highlight of my life," said Loudis. "Here we were, a bunch of 12-year-olds from a small town, playing for a world championship before the biggest crowd I ever saw in my life (8,000). I'll always remember the feeling inside me that day because it's never been equaled. I think winning something like a world championship at so young an age affected me for the rest of my sports career, and the effect wasn't really a positive one, now that I look back on it."

"In high school, for example, I played three years of varsity basketball. But

Rich Vehe New Midget Champion

Rich Vehe, an 11-year-old Mount Prospect bicycle rider, won the Midget National Overall Championship over the weekend in the New York hosted Bicycle Racing Championships.

Vehe took the title by winning all three midget events. There were 40 boys participating from all over the nation.

His brother, Bob, finished fifth overall in the Junior division.

Both boys will be competing as usual in the weekly Thursday races at Northbrook. Then, on Saturday, they will be vying for Midwest honors in the Midwest Bicycle Racing Championships which will also be at Northbrook.

BACK IN 1954, Jimmy Barbieri threw out the first ball at the World Series. Thirteen years later, the onetime captain of the Schenectady Little League world champions was back on the big-league scene as a Los Angeles Dodger outfielder.

playing for some league championship never did inspire me as much as playing for the world championship of Little League did. In college, I was even less inspired and wound up quitting the team. Maybe I was a has-been at 13, competitively, and I didn't know it. Now that I'm coaching I think maybe an undefeated season would match the feeling of accomplishment I had back then, but I'm really not too sure about that."

The captain of the team was Jim Barbieri and he, more than any of the others, was caught up in the civic celebrations that followed the winning of the world championship. Among other things, he threw out the first ball at the 1954 World Series between the Giants and the Indians at the Polo Grounds and accepted, on behalf of the team, numerous trophies and awards from such people as Ford Frick, commissioner of major league baseball then, and Olaf F. Vea, a general manager of the Schenectady GE plant then.

Barbieri is playing for the Nagoya Dragons in Japan after four seasons in the Dodge chain at Spokane. Now 29, he has three sons, the oldest of whom is eight years old, and he has no reservations about allowing them to try out for Little League teams in Japan, or wherever else he might be playing when they reach the required age.

"Being captain of that Schenectady team, I got around more than the other kids," Barbieri said, "and I remember people talking about pressure, and that I was too young to be doing all these things. But I never really felt any pressure and the reason was probably because I was so young. The full impact of all the things I did never really hit me until I got older and smarter."

"I was on the Today Show with Dave Garroway, and the Perry Como Show, and my picture was on the front page of the New York Daily News, and I was interviewed by Mel Allen and Red Barber, and I even got a kiss from Dinah Shore. But you know something? When I was 12 years old, going on the Como Show was no different than coming up to bat in a Little League game with the bases loaded."

All of which brings up a question about

Little League baseball that psychologists and doctors and educators have asked often through the years, even in Schenectady. Is the emphasis on winning, in tournament play, too much for a 12-year-old to handle?

Now 28, a graduate of McNeese, La., State College, the father of two and sports editor of the Orange, Tex., Leader, Joe Kazmar said that the winning or losing of tournament games had no great after-effects on him.

"In 1953, the year before we won the world championship, we made it to the finals of the World Series and lost to Birmingham, 1-0," Kazmar said. "I don't see how that loss had a negative effect on us, because the next year we came back to win it all. I think the experience made us all a little smarter, and not only from a baseball standpoint. Sitting on the bench even had its lessons. As for losing, I'd say our folks — the mothers, especially — took it harder than we did in '53."

Bill Connors, now 28 and a batting practice pitcher for the Mets, said the players from that world championship team have never had a reunion, rarely see each other socially and none are involved in the coaching or managing of Little League teams themselves. The only tangle link they have to 1954 is a man named Mike Maletta, a GE employee who is still managing Schenectady Little League All-Star teams.

"We won that world championship because of him," Connors said. "Hell, he knew more about baseball than all those other managers combined. I don't think we were much better than the teams we played against, we just had a better manager. I remember the tournaments that year, and the other managers would let their kids go swimming before games, and raise heck all night, and when they got to the field they were too tired to play. But not Mike."

"There was never any swimming, and we took afternoon naps."

Snowmobile Club Wants Members

Snowmobile fans will have a chance to participate in group outings this winter by joining the Northwest Suburban Snowmobile Club, according to Ernie Diorio and Bill Stuparits.

These two men are hoping to form the club for all interested enthusiasts in the suburban area and will be holding its first meeting this Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Arctic All-Sports Inc., 20 River Rd., Des Plaines.

The club will be a social and family type which will lease land for exclusive use of its members. The land will be used for group rides with safe, organized competitive events and just for all-around family fun.

Anyone interested in joining the club may do so by attending the first meeting or by calling 296-3731.

'Rod Fest' Set For Santa Fe

A Rod Fest for swapping and selling of automotive equipment by rod and custom car owners, for picnicking and outdoor fun, has been scheduled for 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday, August 30 at Santa Fe Park, 9100 S. Wolf Rd., Willow Springs.

The event is sponsored by the Chitown Shifters, a car-owners club that has reserved Santa Fe Park for the entire day for the Rod Fest event. The Shifters also sponsor the International Championship Rod & Custom Car Show, to be held Nov. 20-22 at the International Amphitheatre, Chicago.

"The Rod Fest is open to everyone, and we urge those attending to bring their best cars for photography in preparation for the show in November," said Dave Belson, chairman of the Shifters.

The Shifters will request a $1.50 donation at the gate to help defray costs of the event at Santa Fe Park, Belson said.

How To Manage A Ski Shop

SKIING HAS BEEN probably one of the farthest things from the minds of area buffs in recent weeks.

It's been a typical Midwest August — sweltering. The ski season is still several long months away on Illinois and Wisconsin slopes.

But a sign of things to come was seen last week at Arlington Park Hotel, a place which is becoming a headquarters for those involved with skiing. The occasion was a four-day period of seminars of the National Sporting Goods Association, a division of the National Sporting Goods Association.

The Arlington Park Exposition Hall was where 80,000 people poured through the gates last October to witness the Midwest Ski Show, which will be held in the same place this fall, Nov. 5-8.

The series of seminars this year were not concerned much with new trends, but put an emphasis on advertising, customer motivation and business techniques for ski retailers.

Many subjects were touched on in the meetings, including signs of waning vitality in the ski retailer, increasing return on investments, being a manager of situations, growth of the ski retailing business, profile of a ski retailer, characteristics that distinguish the manager of a ski shop from other industries, and how successful managers cope with growth.

These topics are discussed in a booklet, "High Yield Management in the Ski Retailing Business" by two University of Colorado professors, Dr. Lawrence L. Steinmetz and Dr. Charles D. Greenidge, both of whom were present at last week's seminars.

Generally, Steinmetz and Greenidge have found that the returns being realized by a large minority of ski retailers are less than might be expected. They were interested in helping ski retailers improve their lot from a business point of view.

They feel that if a retailer is to truly prosper in the business, he needs to accomplish new things the same as he needs to make a profit. If he does not, he will probably stagnate in his business and fail to initiate any new profit-making activities for his organization.

According to Steinmetz and Greenidge, some of the "signs of waning vitality" for a retailer are a lack of goals, bucking the trend of general business, developing an attitude of letting well enough alone, letting little defeats stop him and avoiding responsibility.

They see the owner-manager of a ski shop as one who "carries the absolute responsibility for the survival and profitable performance of his business. Therefore, he is always under pressure to get many things done."

"However, as his business succeeds and grows, he will find that he needs to shift his attention to the differing problems which crop up from time to time as a result of his previous successes. That is, as he becomes successful in growing, expanding, and developing his business, the continued growth and expansion past any given point will depend largely upon his ability as the owner-manager to meet the changing pressures."

The changing patterns of a retailer and how his business performance is affected by success is stereotyped by Steinmetz and Greenidge. They say he is "action-oriented, gets things done quickly, personally directs all phases of his business and keeps tight control over operations, generates almost all new ideas for his business, is independent in thought and mind."

The owner-manager of a ski shop is often very individual, taking on too heavy a load himself as his business expands — which is almost a sure thing with the boom of interest in skiing. He must learn to overcome the strain of his business growth. He must constantly be looking ahead and preparing for continued pressures and growth.

Thus, to remain successful, the ski shop manager learns to delegate work and trust others with responsibilities; to bring in new business with new gimmicks, promotional techniques, or advertising campaigns; to become adept as financial managers; and to become action-oriented — that is, "think like managers who intend to make things happen rather than like typical small businessman who think in terms of watching things happen."

Ski businessmen all over the Midwest learned some valuable lessons at Arlington Park last week.

Murphy Leads Tuesday Nighters; Position Round For Handicappers

Dewey Murphy dazzled the Rob Roy Tuesday League last week capturing low gross and low net honors. Murphy — who birdied No. 1, 2 and 7 — registered a one-under-par 94 on the front nine with a net total of 20.

Right behind Murphy with 36 gross scores were Marshall Bailing, Chuck Van Bonatele and Don McLean. Coming close in net honors were Van Bonatele with 30 and Bob Nobel, Pat Tuttle and John Novotny with 31a.

This week's action will be position play with Drake Lites holding a half-point lead on Practical Tool, 68.5 to 68.

Also posting birdies were McLean on No. 3 and 7, Tuttle on No. 2, Novotny on No. 10, Bob Cook on No. 2, Van Bonatele on No. 8, George Nei on No. 17, Bailing on No. 5 and Bert Casteel on No. 5.

The Tuesday nighters' golf outing will be held beginning at 11 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 13. Golfers are urged to sign up now so that everyone will be in a foursome.

Blue, White Wedding For Diane Lynn Poulsen

A blue and white color scheme was chosen by Diane Lynn Poulsen for her marriage July 25 to Joseph Tideman Scheske. The wedding took place in Congregational United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights, with Rev. Koch performing the 4 p.m. double ring rites in a setting of blue and white floral arrangements at the altar. Pale blue was the color chosen for the bridesmaids.

Diane is the daughter of the William Poulsens, 2302 Sigwalt, Rolling Meadows, and Joseph is the son of the Carl Scheskes of Antioch, former Arlington Heights residents. Mr. Poulsen gave Diane in marriage.

Her Victorian gown was of white organza and lace with chapel train. Her elbow-length veil was held by a flower headpiece trimmed with seed pearls, and her bouquet was a spray of white roses and carnations.

DIANE'S SISTER, Carol Poulsen, was maid of honor, and Charlene Koushake of Arlington Heights and Diana Dul of Rolling Meadows were the bridesmaids.

Rodney Fritz of Boston, Mass., was the groom's best man, and ushers were Kenneth Scheske, brother of the groom, Jim Zimmerman of Arlington Heights and Russ Griesmeyer of Mount Prospect.

A dinner reception for 127 guests was held at the Maitre'd in Elk Grove where Mrs. Poulsen received in a light blue dress with white orchid corsage and the groom's mother in a pale pink with pink daisy corsage.

The new Mrs. Scheske is a graduate of Forest View High School and is employed by Motorola. The groom, a graduate of Arlington High School, is with J. C. Penney at Golf-Mall.

The newlyweds honeymooned at the Wisconsin Dells and are now at home at 304 N. Brockway, Palatine.

Bridal Party Wears 'Bride-Made' Gowns

Marie E. Kertay was kept extremely busy before her wedding designing and making her bridal gown, those of her attendants and also her mother's dress and coat ensemble.

They were all completed in time for Marie's marriage last June in a double ring ceremony to William C. Blunk. The marriage performed by the Rev. Peter Moon took place at the University Christian Church in Normal, Ill.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beis Kertay of 816 N. Duntan Ave., Arlington Heights. Her husband is the son of the Carl Blunks of Normal.

As she was given away in marriage by her father, Marie wore an Empire style gown of white peau de soie with embroidered Swiss lace sleeves and appliques. The embroidered lace train was attached from the shoulder. A headpiece of live daisies kept the fingertip silk illusion veil in place.

THE BRIDE CARRIED white daisies, dypsophilla and ivy.

Mrs. Fred Bellhus of Villa Park was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mark Johnson of Normal and Elizabeth Fredericksen of Rolling Meadows.

They wore nine green dotted Swiss dresses with empire waists and long puffy sleeves ending in ruffles at the wrists. The dresses were trimmed in dark green velvet ribbon.

Flowers carried by the attendants were white and yellow daisy mums.

Paul Bishop, the groom's cousin, was best man.

Bill Brynn of Normal, the bride's brother, Les Kertay of Arlington Heights, Bob Blunk, the groom's cousin and Mark Johnson, both of Normal were ushers.

A reception immediately followed the wedding in the basement of the church for 100 guests. The bride's mother attended in a yellow print crepe dress accented with white mums.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Blunk

MISS BLUNK wore an apricot print dress and also a white mum corsage.

Marie is a '68 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary and a '70 graduate of Illinois State University where she majored in art. This fall she will be an elementary art teacher in a Joliet where the couple will be residing.

Her husband is a '69 graduate of the same university where he was a physics major. He is attending an eight-week National Science Foundation Institute at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, and plans to be a high school physics teacher in Joliet this fall.

Little City Shop Helps The Needy

Little City's Rescue Shop at 5818 N. Clark, where donations and sales provide hope for the mentally retarded children at Palatine, is leading a helping hand to the Edgewater Community Council's "Care for Real" program. Persons in financial trouble and in need, are given clothing without charge at the Rescue Shop.

The Edgewater Council's "Care for Real" emergency and referral center helps its citizens who are in trouble. Services offered include: canned food supplies, restaurant meals, groceries, clothing, shelter and medical treatment, service agencies referral and legal aid service.

Clothing given to "Care for Real" is sent to the Little City Thrift Shop, and in return, persons in need are referred to the shop, where they are furnished with clothing free of charge.

She Wanted The Vote

A Radical In Her Day

by BARBARA PETERSON

"You always need a few radicals to go out ahead!" Mrs. Bertha Tash, 1710 Campbell, Des Plaines, was commenting on the Women's Lib strike scheduled for tomorrow.

Bertha Tash should know. She has been arguing for women's rights and social progress since before women got the vote in 1920.

"From the time I was 10 years old, living near Kokomo, Ind., I couldn't see why women couldn't vote. I began reading about the struggle for women's rights and had my first debates about the subject with my father," she commented.

Mrs. Tash, a widow and retired school teacher, ruefully described the social climate for women in the early years of this century. "You were considered practically a Bolshevik if you wanted women to vote. Girls couldn't even play in school bands because the uniforms had trousers, and the violin, of all things, was considered unladylike. Married women weren't hired to teach school at that time."

BERTHA'S LIFELONG ambition was to be a teacher. "I even used to teach the empty chairs when I was a little girl," she smiled. "Best pupils I ever had!"

She determined early in life to make her home in Chicago and told Chester Tash, her late husband, that if he wanted to marry her, he'd have to come to Chicago and find a job there.

Prior to her marriage, Bertha worked for the government in Washington, D.C., during the closing days of World War I. Active as usual, she joined a volunteer group which passed out pamphlets in favor of U.S. participation in the League of Nations. She recalls mingling with the crowds at the victory parade for Gen. John "Black Jack" Pershing, selling booklets for a fund to benefit wounded soldiers.

HER EARLY IDOL was Ella Flagg Young, a Chicago educator with liberal views toward full teacher's rights for women. Bertha came to Chicago permanently in 1920, and remembers her pleasure at being in her favorite place to celebrate when women were given the vote that summer. The League of Women Voters, to which she belongs, was founded that same year.

During her 45-year teaching career, she was active in PTA and student council work, and served in many underprivileged areas of the city, including the Hull House neighborhood, where she knew Jane Addams.

"I loved the people there. I take a special joy in the struggles and the triumphs of Negroes," she said. "When people realize they are being denied their rights, they'll try to get them."

A voracious reader, Mrs. Tash is currently immersed in the biography of Malcolm X, the late black leader.

OPEN-MINDED and articulate, Bertha Tash holds her own view of religion. "I go to the church that's closest. I can't see any reason for anyone to say 'My church is better than any other.'"

Her household reflects her ecumenical feelings. Since her husband is deceased and her only son grown and married, Mrs. Tash has several roomers. One is a native of Lithuania and a Catholic, and the others are Mormon missionaries.

Returning to politics and women's rights, Mrs. Tash expressed approval of the Women's Lib groups, although she would not go so far as to advocate the women's strike. "I approve of their aims, if not necessarily their methods," she observed. "I sure do believe in equal pay for equal work, and I think if there's something you can do, just do it. I took a lot of pride in that gal who became a jockey!"

HOWEVER, BERTHA TASH does not have much use for the current hippie and drug culture. "I don't approve of drugs, and I think the hippies should be put to work on a rockpile somewhere — they're just allergic to work. And the way they look — well, you know nothing good comes from a swill barrel!" she commented tartly.

Bertha Tash is a great believer in third political parties. "After all, both major parties take up things that were advocated by the nuts," she said. Needless to say, she votes as independently as she does everything else.

Although she never chained herself to the White House railings as some early suffragettes did, Mrs. Tash is definitely cast in their mold as far as free thinking and women's progress are concerned. After more than 50 years in the vanguard, she's still not ready to take a back seat to anyone.

AN EARLY ADVOCATE OF women's suffrage, Mrs. Bertha Tash recalls the days before women got the vote.

Shutters Dressy

One of the easiest ways to help a drab exterior is to add wood shutters, painted in a pleasing contrast to the siding. Attach them so they can be removed for an occasional spray painting.

Shifting Kitchen Causes Family Problem

by STEVE NOVICK

Harry Draft is a frustrated man. He says his wife is near her breaking point. The couple and their 19-year-old son live at 1912 Cloverdale Ct. in Schaumburg.

After a lifetime in Chicago, the Draft family's first suburban house has turned into a terrible experience, largely due to what appears to be poor soil conditions under their $34,000 home.

The house, built by Levitt & Sons, is the only one in the subdivision where serious complaints have been heard.

"My wife wakes up in the middle of the night screaming the house is going to fall in on her," Draft said.

Draft claims he does not have nightmares, because he can't sleep anymore. The Draft family's problem is not a bedroom problem, except for the day when the shelf supports gave way in their closet.

Their problem is centered in the kitchen, garage and back entrance way where the furnace is stored in a utility closet.

Looking from the outside no one would guess that anybody could be unhappy in the house.

It looks like a good buy. The living room catches your eye first. It's spacious and the Drafts have decorated it as in a home decorating ad.

Draft, however, isn't interested in showing his niceties. He has a list of grievances that choke him as he speaks.

The apparent poor soil conditions under the house, have caused a sagging where the kitchen, garage and rear entrance are located.

The garage floor has large cracks. Cracks separate walls from ceilings, sliding doors that go in front of the utility closet are detached because the house leans and they won't attach at both the floor and the top molding.

A two-by-four is wedged between the rear door and the facing wall to keep the door secured. The house's unlevelled condition prevents the lock bolt from aligning where it should latch.

Pots and pans won't sit level on the stove. Duct work has separated from the heater. Duct work under the floor has collapsed.

Levitt & Sons has made several efforts to correct their problems. Some of the items that have been repaired include the separated duct. The heater thermostat has been repaired a number of times after repeatedly overheating the house.

Draft said ice formed on the fuse box last winter, and cold air was coming through the electrical outlets.

The list continues. Draft has been dissatisfied with the alignment of cabinets in the kitchen, the dishwasher, and the separation of tiles.

Many of Draft's complaints have been rectified, but he said, only after workmen showed a week late and left messes that he and his wife were constantly cleaning.

Work has been done to correct the poor soil conditions, too. A Material Service Cement truck however, drove through the kitchen window while the work was being done.

"Fortunately, my wife was on the other side of the room," Draft said.

Draft claims the only physical suffering his wife experienced occurred when she tripped on a floor vent when they were inspecting the house last December.

It's the mental anguish and inconvenience that the Drafts can no longer tolerate, and they want out.

Despite Levitt & Son's efforts toward fixing the house, Draft has been living there eight months with the building in disrepair and he's not willing to wait any longer.

On Aug. 14, he refused to allow anyone else to work on the house and a proposal is being negotiated to let the Drafts move out.

Art Gingold, Levitt's manager for the Chicago region, said the company will stand its name behind the house and correct all that is wrong.

Levitt & Sons is also willing to buy the house back from Draft. The negotiations will be over the $3,200 Draft is requesting for investments he's made in the house including carpeting, drapes, and moving expenses.

Levitt & Sons didn't sell Draft many of the items for which he is seeking reimbursement. Levitt, at this time, is unwilling to meet all of Draft's reimbursement demands.

Arson: School Delay?

Palatine police yesterday were still investigating an attempt at arson made early last week which may have been designed to delay the opening of High School Dist. 211 schools by destroying 64 buses.

Police said they received a report from Joe Gyurnek documenting the arson attempt. Gyurnek is high school district mechanic based at Fremd High School on Quentin Road near Illinois Street.

Gyurnek reported Tuesday that 12 of the buses were missing gas caps and one bus was scorched around the gas tank area in an apparent arson attempt. "That bus, number 56," he told police, "was located in the northwest corner of the rear lot."

Police said Gyurnek told them he found a partially burned piece of cloth inside the opening to the gas tank. The rag had been pushed down into the gas tank and after being ignited it burned to the edge of the gas tank opening.

GYURNEK TOLD police, that had the rag ignited the bus, the neighboring buses would have also been ignited.

Police gave two reasons for the arson attempt. First, they said, it could be that someone wanted to delay the opening of school. Second someone may have wanted to draw a number of police officers to the area while a theft was attempted on the other side of town.

Claude Bailey, director of transportation for Dist. 211, said it was an arson attempt, but that "burning one bus wouldn't hurt us."

"We'd have to lose more than 25 buses before the opening of school would be delayed," he said.

Asked if more buses could have been damaged had the one ignited, he said "It's possible, but I don't think so. If a gas tank did explode it would be pretty well confined to the bottom of the one bus."

Bailey, however, did not feel the arson attempt was aimed at delaying the opening of school. "It's just that these buses are a sitting temptation for someone who's just out for kicks."

LAST YEAR someone let the air out of several bus tires, and in previous years school officials have witnessed similar pranks, he said.

Currently, the only security measures being taken to protect the fleet which transports 80 per cent of the Dist. 211 enrollment comes from the Palatine police, who patrol the lot on the hour.

During school, Bailey said, workmen are also in or around the garage from 5 a.m. to 12 midnight "to keep an eye on the buses."

The recent arson attempt, however, will not result in more security precautions.

EASY RIDER. It's easy for Mrs. Eva Scherer to do all kinds of errands on her three-wheel Schwinn bicycle.

even though she's 69 and has a heart condition.

Film Showing On Israel Set

"His Land," a one-hour color feature film of the history of Israel, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church, 300 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Featuring Cliff Barrow and Cliff Richard, a popular English star, the film includes a number of new songs by Ralph Carmichael.

The film is billed as "a musical journey into the soul of a nation." The public is invited to attend.

Three-Wheeling Grandma Having Time Of Her Life

by MARY HUTCHINGS

"Hey grandma, wanna drag?" Mrs. Eva Scherer always answers "tomorrow."

The 69-year-old grandmother of thirteen bought her first bicycle a year ago, and since then has been seen riding her three-wheeler all over the streets of Hanover Park.

She got the bicycle against the wishes of most of her family. But with the help of her daughter she bought the green Schwinn which she uses the way most people use a car. She never learned how to drive, and bicycles were too expensive for her before she moved to this country from England in 1923.

Her husband William now agrees that buying the bike is one of the best things she's ever done.

Even with a heart condition, she has enough energy to keep a very busy schedule. A retired nurse, she donates her services without charge to her neighbors or the needy.

A CERTIFIED ELECTION judge, she thinks it's important to be active. Since moving to Hanover Park, she has even had to act as mid-wife for a neighbor's dog that the veterinarian said wouldn't live through labor.

"Eva" as she is known in the neighborhood by children and adults, saved both the mother dog, and one of the pups.

Her neighbors, she said, "think it's nutty." She once rode her three-wheeler with another friend into Roselle, and one neighbor, in her shock, spread the "news" all over the block.

Most people who drive by, however, yell out, "Gee that's nice" or say "that looks like fun."

Her only complaint is that there are no paths for riding in the suburbs, so she uses the streets. On roads like Irving Park, that could sometimes mean a line-up of cars behind her three-wheeler.

She relates the story of one young policeman who had never seen her before, and threw his hands up in dismay when he saw her coming. "OK, get going, grandma," he shouted, "and don't come back."

She boasts, "I lead a bold life, and the bicycle topped it off."

WELL TANNED, she has had her pure white hair since she was 25; now she picks out a black hair the way most women get to gray strands and says, "isn't that awful?"

She attributes her youthful appearance to "a husband who is as good to me today as the day I married him."

When she first moved to the couple's new home, one young neighborhood boy introduced himself to Eva and told her "everyone feels sorry for you, because you're so old, and have to take care of this house and everything."

MRS. SCHERER TOLD the boy to tell "everyone" that "Eva is younger than any of them."

She still travels to England occasionally, and gets a lot of good exercise on her bike. Her doctor thinks it's great for her health. Her faith has buoyed her up through good times and bad, including the five year illness and several major and near fatal operations on her youngest son. "I'm a great believer in prayer," she said.

With her perfectly trained black poodle PomPom, she has become a familiar figure in Hanover Park.

And the neighborhood children follow her on their bikes wherever she rides, hoping, perhaps, that maybe "tomorrow" grandma will want to drag.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Vallrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

Area Student Given Award

Jeff Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Rose of Hoffman Estates, was presented the 1969-1970 Student Of The Year Award by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Berndt. Jeff has studied organ with Mrs. Berndt for the past six years. Before this he studied accordion with the Berndt's daughter, Melody for two years.

Qualifications to be Student Of The Year are: practice daily allotted time, superior lessons, superior attitude and excell at studio recitals and annual recital held each May.

At the annual recital held this past May, the Best Performance Awards went to six top students. The categories were based on age groups. This year's winners were: Jeff Rose; Steve Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schenck; Jennifer Barber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Barber; Lorrie Kountz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kountz; Steven Crane, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Crane and Kent Gravelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Gravelle. All live in the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg-Streamwood area.

The Jim Berndt family has lived in the community for the past nine years and teach piano, organ, guitar, accordion and related instruments.

Marijuana Is Confiscated

A large quantity of what is believed by Schaumburg police to be marijuana was confiscated early yesterday morning following a high speed chase.

The owner of the car, Carl Jacobson, 27, Roselle, was charged with possession of marijuana, a felony because of the amount allegedly involved, and with public intoxication.

The driver of the car, Llanos L. Landberg, 24, of Arlington Heights, was charged with speeding in excess of 75 miles per hour, and driving with a faulty muffler.

THE ARRESTING OFFICER, William Barthavich, stopped the Jacobson vehicle following a high speed chase down Meacham Road. While questioning the two, Barthavich said he saw Jacobson slip a pillowcase underneath the auto.

The officer stated the pillowcase contained "a large quantity of crushed green plant." A search of the vehicle also revealed a cigarette pack, a pillowcase and a roofer each containing what police said was small amounts of the "plant substance."

Jacobson will appear in Niles Court at 11 a.m. Oct. 15. He was released on $3,500 bond.

AIMING LOW to extinguish burning gasoline at a fire control demonstration is Kenneth Wolmer, Schaumburg Airport manager. The extinguisher in use has a firing range of 20 feet. Supervising the fire control drill is Frank Speciale, chief fire-control trainer for Fredriksen and Sons.

Firefighting Course Given

BY DON BRANNAN

Twenty seconds isn't much time. And it takes just that long for a fire extinguisher's contents to be used up, so anyone using it had better know what he's doing.

Recently, eight Schaumburg Airport employees were given a short course in fighting fires with extinguishers at the airport by employees of Fredriksen and Sons Fire Equipment Co., of Bensenville. They learned about the capabilities of various extinguishers, including the dry chemical fire extinguisher and the carbon dioxide extinguisher, which operates on the principle of removing the oxygen and putting out the fire.

Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamson and Frank Musil, a village fireman, were also present for the firefighting demonstration given by Frank Speciale, chief trainer in the fire control program of Fredriksen and Sons. The firm specializes in the sale and service of fire extinguishers. Jerry Jones assisted Speciale with the demonstration.

"IN FIGHTING A FIRE, the big problem is the heat," said Speciale.

The airport employees at last week's demonstration learned the procedures for using hand extinguishers against various types of fires, including Class A and Class B. Class A fires include ordinary combustibles, such as wood and paper. Class B fires are burning liquids, such as gasoline or kerosene. Class C fires involve electrical equipment and the danger of electrocution.

Most fire extinguishers available use a dry chemical agent since this powdery substance can put out all three types of fires safely.

"THE MULTI-PURPOSE dry powder is a very effective firefighting agent," Speciale told the airport employees during the firefighting demonstration.

"You can use it (dry chemical) to fight a gasoline fire or an electrical fire," Speciale added. The powder extinguishes a fire by smothering it, he pointed out.

"It is possible to rescue someone from a burning building with a dry chemical extinguisher," said Speciale.

In pointing out the advantages of the dry chemical extinguisher, Speciale noted that an extinguisher with five pounds of phosphate powder weighs about eight pounds, while a soda water extinguisher weighs between 25 and 30 pounds when full.

"THE SODA WATER extinguisher is still approved for fighting fires, but it is rapidly being phased out," said Steve Cave, Fredriksen sales representative who lives at 1203 Nippert Dr., Streamwood.

"Another advantage of the dry chemical extinguisher is that it is non-toxic. If you breathe it in, it won't harm you," Speciale said.

"You always want to have a full extinguisher," added Speciale. "If you use an extinguisher at all, you should have it filled again at once."

"We plan to make Schaumburg Airport both a safe and a vital transportation link in the community," said Airport Manager Kenneth Wolmer, who assumed duties as manager in March.

According to Abrahamson, the Schaumburg Fire Department uses water on most fires.

"We use dry chemicals mainly for grease fires, such as in a restaurant," he said.

Cullerton Field Office Is Coming

Property owners in Schaumburg and Hanover townships will be served by Assessor Cullerton's Mobile Field Office beginning Aug. 26, the Assessor's office announced.

On Aug. 26 and 27, the Mobile Field Office will be at the Weathersfield Commons at Schaumburg and Springguth roads to serve property owners in Schaumburg township.

On Aug. 28 and 29, property owners in Hanover township will be served by the Mobile Field Office when it will be located at Tradewinds Shopping Center at Barrington and Irving Park Roads.

THE MOBILE field office provides the convenient service for suburban property owners by making the latest information on assessments readily available without causing taxpayers the inconvenience of making the trip to the County Building in downtown Chicago.

The field office also is staffed with experts from Assessor Cullerton's office, who are available to make immediate inspections of properties to ascertain the accuracy of assessments.

To facilitate the checking of information, property owners in Schaumburg and Hanover townships were advised to contact Cullerton's office in advance and let his office know what their real estate index numbers are. Assessor Cullerton's telephone number is 321-5349.

On weekdays, Assessor Cullerton's Mobile Field Office is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Received License For Engineering

Ronald E. Zemke, was recently awarded his license to practice as a Registered Professional Engineer in the state of Illinois.

He resides with his wife Mary, their son, Ronald, and daughter, Lisa, at 1314 W. Hampton Ln. in Schaumburg.

Zemke has been employed by the J. W. Lochner, Inc., Consulting Engineers of Chicago for the past nine years. The company recently completed a transportation study for the Village of Schaumburg.

Student Honored

Cherie Kyle Marek, has been placed on the dean's list at MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Ill.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marek of 122 Kingman Ln. in Hoffman Estates.

Awarded Degree

Robert Lange has graduated from Elmhurst College with a Bachelors of Art degree.

He is the son of Mrs. Dorothy Lange, 1702 Winchester, in Schaumburg.

BOB McCLUSKEY, an employee of Schaumburg Airport, tries his hand at extinguishing a fire with the aid of a chemical fire extinguisher. The extinguisher can put out about 20 square feet of flame during 20 seconds of use, considerably more than a carbon dioxide extinguisher.

Dist. 54 Book Payment Day Slated Wednesday

Tomorrow is book fee payment day at neighborhood schools in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. Parents are asked to pay textbook rental and other fees at the school their child will be attending.

Fees may be paid from 8 to 11:30 a.m. for students whose last names begin with the letters A to L, and from 1 to 3 p.m. for those with last names from M to Z. Parents can also pay fees tomorrow evening between 7 and 9.

Parents of Dist. 54 kindergarten pupils who have been assigned to schools other than their regularly assigned school may pay textbook rental fees at either their neighborhood or regularly assigned school.

All Dist. 54 elementary students will be given classroom and teacher assignments for the 1970-71 school year tomorrow.

The book rental fee and weekly newspaper cost for Dist. 54 pupils in grades one through six is $8.25. Kindergarten pupils are charged $3.75 each for books and materials.

There has been no increase in book rental fees this year.

Students in seventh and eighth grade will play $8.75 to cover the rental of books and the weekly newspaper. In addition, there is a $3.75 towel fee for junior high students.

Student accident insurance will again be offered to Dist. 54 parents this fall on a voluntary basis. Insurance information will be sent home with students on Aug. 31, the first day of school in Dist. 54.

Makes Dean's List

Sharon L. Brasure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brasure, 340 Princeton, in Hoffman Estates has made the Dean's list at Elmhurst College.

The honor is for students who earn a 3.2 grade point average on a four-point system while carrying at least four courses.

The insurance premium is $3.50 for protection while the child is in school, and $15 for 24-hour protection during the school year. The first day of kindergarten in Dist. 54 is Thursday, Sept. 3.

Responsibility For Road Undetermined

The responsibility of maintaining Church Road in the DuPage County portion of Hanover Park hasn't been determined, village officials said.

Trustee David Bugh, chairman of the street committee, said, "Church Road is ours. It will cost up to a quarter million dollars to repair."

Mayor Richard Baker said final responsibility for maintenance of the road hasn't been determined.

Village Atty. William Davies said he is checking to find out who will bear the cost of maintenance. He noted that Irving Park Road and Lake Street are also within Hanover Park, but the state and county do the maintenance.

Part of Church Road was annexed to Hanover Park when Larwin-Ilinois an-nexed its Greenbrook subdivision to the village.

Bugh said the public works department was filling in major holes in Church Road with gravel. The road is being damaged by construction equipment.

TRUSTEES VOTED to put a 5-ton limit on the road to stop the heavy truck traffic.

In related action at the Thursday meeting trustees voted to put a 5-ton limit on part of Fisher Road to close off an area now being used by several scavenger firms.

Bugh also asked that the ordinance requiring builders to clean mud and stones off the streets in construction areas be enforced.

The trustee said the public hearing for Units 2, 3, and 4 of Hanover Highlands is still scheduled for 8 p.m., Sept. 10 in the village hall.

The builder, a 3-H Homes, indicated the improvements were accepted several years ago, but has not sent proof. Once the streets, storm sewers, sanitary sewers and other improvements are accepted, the village is responsible for maintenance.

In other action, trustees approved paying $221,307 for the fifth payout on the sewage treatment plant being constructed to serve DuPage subdivisions. The funds will come from the revenue bond sale.

VILLAGE ENGINEER Larry Grindel said a water storage tank in Section 11 of Hanover Highlands will provide an adequate water supply for that northeastern section of the village, including needed fire protection. Davies said the tank can be financed with funds from the revenue bond sale.

Art Lindblad, Civil Defense directors, presented the board with a certificate of accreditation the village earned from the Illinois Civil Defense Agency. It's the first for the village's CD unit and Mayor Baker thanked Lindblad for bringing the standards up to state requirements.

Trustee Lou Barone said the police and fire commission board wants more sophisticated applications. He asked for a meeting between the board and Davies.

Rules and regulations of the fire board haven't been updated since their enactment in 1964, Barone said. He asked Davies to help with updating them and recommended that they be updated every year.

The Beautification Committee also recommended that an anti-littering ordinance for streets be enacted and enforced with appropriate signs being posted.

Trustees approved the appointment of Robert Cover to the police and fire board and the appointment of Frank Hernandez to the public safety committee to replace Vince Graziano who recently moved from the village.

THE PUBLIC safety committee will meet Sept. 16. Baker asked that the formation of a village fire department be given top priority.

Barone said that the village rodent exterminator has been permitted to start a control program at Jack-in-the-Box and Mobil Oil Service Station, both located at Irving Park and Barrington roads.

Baker announced that there will be a personnel committee meeting at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 10. The session is open to the public.

23,461 Students Expected At Elgin Schools In Fall

An estimated 23,461 students will be enrolled in the Elgin Public Schools this fall, according to Paul R. Lawrence, superintendent of schools.

This figure represents an increase of 1,344 students over the number of students enrolled at the close of the 1969-70 school year in June.

The estimated number of students expected to be attending the opening day of school on Fri., Aug. 28 is: elementary (1-6), 12,139; junior high school (7-9), 5,119; and senior high school (10-12), 4,030.

Kindergarten, which starts regular sessions on Fri., Sept. 3, is expected to have an enrollment of 2,173 students.

The 1970-71 projections were derived from surveys conducted by the Citizens Advisory Council and by local school principals.

DUE TO THE increase in students and expanded programs the district has hired approximately 80 teachers to fill new positions and another 170 to fill vacancies created by resignations and retirements. Of these positions about 30 are being filled by teachers returning from leaves of absences. This brings the total teaching staff to about 1,200.

Orientation for new teachers was held Monday at Larkin High School.

During the day new teachers met with other staff from their respective grade levels and heard remarks made by special service directors.

Today the new staff will meet in their assigned schools or departments for further orientation.

All teachers will assemble on Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. at the Hemmens Building, Elgin Civic Center. Following a coffee hour and remarks by Lawrence the teachers will spend the remainder of the day in building, departmental or divisional meetings.

STUDENT ORIENTATION will be held Thursday.

Junior and senior high orientation will be held this year from 9-11 a.m. in local schools. All 7th, 10th and other new students to the school will attend this session. All elementary students will attend orientation from 1-2 p.m.

The first full day of classes will be held Friday with the exception of kindergarten. The regular session of kindergarten starts on Fri., Sept. 3.

There will be no school on Labor Day, Mon., Sept. 7.

Soil Tests Slated At School Site

Soil borings will be taken next month at an eight-acre school site in Hoffman Estates donated to Dist. 54 by Multicon Corp. and Kenroy Inc. Realtors, Hilldale developers, to determine if it is a buildable site for a school, according to Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 business services director.

Dist. 54 recently received title to the Multicon school site from the developers.

The building and sites committee of the Dist. 54 School Board chaired by board member Donald Rudd recommended that borings be taken at the Multicon school site, located south of Hassell Road across from Fire Station No. 2 in Hoffman Estates.

Lapicola said the school district would pay for the soil borings. The estimated cost for preliminary borings is $500.

According to Lapicola, the borings will not be taken until the final boundaries of the donated site have been determined. Two lots may be added to the site provided by the developer if the size of a proposed retention pond is increased, Lapicola said, to compensate for land used.

"WE HAVE YET to experience our first soil borings on a site that were paid for by the developer," observed the Dist. 54 business services director.

There are no plans to build on the Multicon site in the immediate future. The eight-acre site is not included in the four-year building program that will be recommended to the Dist. 54 board by the building and sites committee.

The classroom building plan in Dist. 54 for 1971 through 1974 will be presented at the Sept. 3 meeting of the board of education. A referendum in Dist. 54 is scheduled Oct. 24.

TEN OR 12 borings will be taken at the Multicon site, Lapicola said.

Later this year, Dist. 54 will accept bids for the construction of a 12-room elementary school on an eight-acre site in Hoffman Estates donated by Kaufman and Broad Builders. This site is also south of Hassell Road in the Highpoint section of Hoffman Estates and one mile east of the Multicon site.

When completed, this school will serve children from the K & B development, Multicon's Hilldale development, and the Moon Lake apartments.

Win at Bridge

by
OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 86th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the American Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd fives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1935. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team:

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

FAA Probes Crash Near Pal-Waukee

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 30 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1000 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Driving Seminar Pushes Awareness

by JUDY RESSLER

Sixty thousand Americans are going to be killed this year. Five million persons are going to be disabled. Property damage will total 25 billion dollars this year.

Statistics from the Vietnam war? No-traffic accidents.

The figures were cited by Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher at a driving seminar last week. By listing statistics, Horcher attempted to develop in the students an awareness of the traffic laws.

The traffic safety school lasts three weeks. It is held at the Wheeling Village Hall on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Most of the 45 persons from the Northwest suburban area attending the traffic school have been assigned to go there by the traffic court because they have received tickets for moving violations. However, anyone is invited to attend.

HORCHER ATTEMPTED to teach the students "to watch out for the other guy," to be aware of accident conditions and to be aware of their own driving attitudes. "Anything that can be prevented is not an accident," Horcher said. "I can assure you, there are very few accidents."

The police chief also attempted to alert the students by saying, "The chances in favor of all of you getting home tonight are 1,200 to one." He explained that those are very small odds, considering the number of persons on the road.

After completing the driver refresher seminar, he said, each student, being more aware, should see more accidents than they have ever seen.

To explain the student's presence at the driving seminar, Horcher said, "The only reason anyone ever got a ticket is because it was their unlucky day. We prove, beyond any doubt, that odds against getting a traffic citation for any reason, are 200 to one. This is why the accident rate is so high."

BUT ENFORCEMENT, the police chief said, is not effective for preventing accidents.

"Enforcement is a very negative approach to developing an awareness," he said. For this reason, he added, "awareness must be developed by other means, such as traffic schools."

Horchner said the most dangerous thing a person can do is drive a car down a two-lane highway. To explain this, he said that of 2,493 persons killed on Illinois streets, only 17 were killed on toll roads and inter-state systems.

Eighty-seven per cent of all deaths occur because of one of the following factors: speeding, failure to yield the right of way, crossing the center highway line, driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to follow stop signs and lights.

HORCHER SHOWED A movie, made by the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission, showing what happens to a car in an accident. At 20 miles an hour, the impact would be that of a car falling off a one-story building. At 40 miles per hour the impact would be that of a car falling from a 4-story building. At 60 miles per hour the impact would be like driving off a 9-story building.

Following the movie and a summary of traffic regulations, Horcher appealed to the students to protest traffic regulations they do not like. He asked, "When is the last time you saw someone burn his driver's license protesting the death of someone in a traffic accident?"

Tomorrow night Horcher will discuss the effects of alcohol on driving, tollroad driving, motorcycles and trucks and police driving. The session begins at 7 p.m.

Dooley School Addition Done

A 14-room addition to Dr. Thomas Dooley Elementary School, 622 Norwood Ln., Schaumburg, will be ready for occupancy when school begins next Monday in Dist. 54.

The addition was completed last week. Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 business services director, said.

Originally scheduled for completion by Aug. 15, construction work on the addition was delayed earlier this summer by trucking and concrete finishers' strikes.

Meanwhile, construction of three 21-room elementary schools named after Apollo 11 astronauts is progressing on schedule, Lapicola said. These three schools, Armstrong, Aldrin, and Collins, are scheduled for completion in early 1971.

Walls are now starting to go up for the Everett Dirksen Elementary School, which is under construction in Schaumburg's Timbercrest subdivision, Lapicola said. Dirksen School and a 12-room addition to Jane Addams Junior High, Schaumburg, are not scheduled for use until September 1971.

BOTH THE DIRKSEN School and the Addams addition will be financed with the school district's bonding power.

The two-story classroom addition to Dooley School was designed by S. Guy Fishman and Associates and built by Egyptian Construction Co. Foundation work for the addition was started in November 1969.

Because of a sloping terrain at the Dooley school site, the 14-room addition will have a split-level effect. A ground level foyer connects the addition to the present school building. Entering the addition, there will be nine steps up to the second floor and nine steps down to the first floor.

Frank Tavano is Dooley principal.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,500 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Junior Lifesaving Class Set at YMCA

Junior lifesaving class for swimmers 12 through 14 years of age will begin Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Elgin YMCA, 111 N. Channing St.

The nine-week class will meet 1:30 until 4:30 p.m. in the meeting rooms and pool of the YMCA, James Klever, adult physical director, said.

To enroll, swimmers must be able to swim the crawl, breast and side strokes, Klever added.

Swimmers learn swimming assists, tows, defensive tactics, artificial respiration, equipment-rescues and personal water safety.

Maximum enrollment will be 30 swimmers. YMCA membership is not required for enrollment, but members may enroll at a reduced fee.

LaVerne Siemon, who has instructed the class for several years, will be the instructor.

No Dress Code In Student Handbook

How should a student attending any one of the four schools in High School Dist. 211 dress this year?

According to the recently published student handbook, there are no school-enforced guidelines for apparel.

"It is no longer proper or possible for the principals of the schools to exercise control concerning dress and grooming except in the areas specified: health, safety and disruptive influence," the handbook states.

"This means that legally, the only persons who can effectively control hair and dress are the parents of the students."

The policy change was the result of several nation-wide court cases which outlawed school board control over dress and hair, and the Dist. 211 board's decision of last year to do away with their policy.

THAT POLICY, as stated in the 1969-70 Handbook, read: "Students are expected to wear clothing which meets reasonable standards of cleanliness and modesty. Typical attire for girls is dresses, suits, or skirts with blouses or sweaters. Boys ordinarily wear wash pants or slacks and sports shirts."

"Length of hair," the old handbook said, "is an issue only where cleanliness, neatness, and good taste are involved. Mountaineer and beards will not be acceptable."

Although the dress code policy has been discarded, a relatively new aspect of the Dist. 211 program has been added to the 1970-71 Handbook for students.

On page 10, the purpose, qualifications and roles of the High School Dist. 211 police consultants are listed. Even though the program was in operation last year, previous Handbooks did not include this chapter.

The purpose of the program, the new Handbook says, is to meet the following needs:

—A closer, more personal relationship between law enforcement agencies and high school students.

—The use of a police enforcement agent in preparing education programs related to social problems.

—To protect students in school against vandalism, trespassing, theft and other violations of the law, and

—To offer closer contact with police in order to deal more effectively with juvenile offenses.

Aside from the deletion of the dress code and the addition of the police consultant description, the student Handbook for this year is the same as last year's.

The Handbook, published separately for each of the district's four high schools, is distributed to the district's 7,400 students and their parents by mail.

Women Speak On Liberation

In recognition of the 50th anniversary of women's right to vote, nationwide activities tomorrow will focus on the pleas of women for equal rights.

Certain nationally organized feminist groups are urging women workers to remain away from their jobs if possible. Rallies will be held in the Civic Center from noon to 2 p.m. and in Grant Park at 8 p.m. to observe the strike.

However, most Wheeling and Buffalo Grove women are ignoring the event. Here's what they had to say about women's suffrage, women's rights and tomorrow's strike.

"I think it's very good that women are women, and I don't want to be treated like a man," said MRS. ELMER J. MUNDT, 244 Jeffrey Ave., Wheeling. "Women's liberation is a bunch of baloney. I think women are biologically and emotionally unequal to men, and they should remain different." Mrs. Mundt said she believes women do not have the "mental personality" that men have.

However, Mrs. Mundt said she believes in equal pay for women for equal work. "I don't think a lot of them (women) do equal work," she said. "Anyway, I think motherhood is the greatest thing in the world, and men can't do that."

MRS. JOHN C. KIM, 1451 S. Wolf, Wheeling, said, "I would not support women's equal rights by staying home from my job, but I would attend a rally out of curiosity." Mrs. Kim said she likes to be treated like a woman. "If they said chivalry is unconstitutional, it would be a sad situation," she added.

MRS. DAVID L. NELSON, 885 Plum Grove Circle, Buffalo Grove, said she believes in equal pay rights but "to be equal 100 per cent is absurd."

"When a man pulls a chair out for me, it's because he looks up to me," she said. "He doesn't do it because I'm weak or because I'm a woman. It's because he has a kind, gentle feeling toward me."

Mrs. Nelson, who said she believes women are capable of handling their right to vote, said she is disappointed that so few women do vote. "They know what's going on as much as men do," she said.

MRS. ROBERT WAGNER, 80 N. Wolf, Wheeling, spoke in favor of equal rights for women. "I think women should work and do something constructive instead of staying home all the time," she said. Mrs. Wagner said she does not believe women are treated equal to men because they are paid lower and kept from a job when a man would not be. "I have worked all my life, and I plan to continue," she said.

Mrs. Wagner added, "Women have been pushed aside so long. I think it's great that they're coming into medicine and politics." She said women would be good in politics because they have different viewpoints and come to different conclusions. "More women would vote if more women were in politics," she said.

Arguing the viewpoint that women are too emotional for political jobs, Mrs. Wagner said, "Men are emotional, too. Sometimes a woman can handle a big situation better than a man. Women are emotional about the little things."

Disagreeing with a comment that "the housewife doesn't get anywhere," MRS. DONALD T. WAYNE, 416 Chatham Cr., Buffalo Grove, said, "I have achieved my goal. My husband is my king and I like it. I love being a housewife and a mother." Mrs. Wayne said she believes every woman is liberated if she is doing what she likes to do.

"I like being a woman," the housewife added. "I think there's no greater thing than making your husband happy."

Mrs. Wayne said she does not understand why women's liberation enthusiasts are protesting. "If they're happy working, then why should they have to protest?" she asked. "In this day and age you can do just about everything you want to do."

MRS. A. A. BARTELS, 1400 Palm, Wheeling, said, "Women's rights are wrong in this generation. Children need contact with their parents in this generation more than ever before." She said working women may not have enough time to spend with their children.

"I don't think they have a lot to stand on," she added. "They have no idea what they really want."

"Men are war hungry and they get pressured into too many things," said MRS. WILLIAM HOGAN, 254 Selwyn, Buffalo Grove. "I don't think women would get us (the United States) as involved with war like men do," she said. Mrs. Hogan added that she believes in more rights for women, such as equal salary for equal work, but she does not believe in repealing abortion laws.

Driving Seminar Pushes Awareness

by JUDY RESSLER

Sixty thousand Americans are going to be killed this year. Five million persons are going to be disabled. Property damage will total 25 billion dollars this year.

Statistics from the Vietnam war? No traffic accidents.

The figures were cited by Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher at a driving seminar last week. By listing statistics, Horcher attempted to develop in the students an awareness of the traffic laws.

The traffic safety school lasts three weeks. It is held at the Wheeling Village Hall on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Most of the 45 persons from the Northwest suburban area attending the traffic school have been assigned to go there by the traffic court because they have received tickets for moving violations. However, anyone is invited to attend.

HORCHER ATTEMPTED to teach the students "to watch out for the other guy," to be aware of accident conditions and to be aware of their own driving attitudes. "Anything that can be prevented is not an accident," Horcher said. "I can assure you, there are very few accidents."

The police chief also attempted to alert the students by saying, "The chances in favor of all of you getting home tonight are 1,200 to one." He explained that those are very small odds, considering the number of persons on the road.

After completing the driver refresher seminar, he said, each student, being more aware, should see more accidents than they have ever seen.

To explain the student's presence at the driving seminar, Horcher said, "The only reason anyone ever got a ticket is because it was their unlucky day. We prove, beyond any doubt, that odds against getting a traffic citation for any reason, are 200 to one. This is why the accident rate is so high."

BUT ENFORCEMENT, the police chief said, is not effective for preventing accidents.

"Enforcement is a very negative approach to developing an awareness," he said. For this reason, he added, "awareness must be developed by other means, such as traffic schools."

Horchner said the most dangerous thing a person can do is drive a car down a two-lane highway. To explain this, he said that of 2,493 persons killed on Illinois streets, only 17 were killed on toll roads and inter-state systems.

Eighty-seven per cent of all deaths occur because of one of the following factors: speeding, failure to yield the right of way, crossing the center highway line, driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to follow stop signs and lights.

HORCHER SHOWED A movie, made by the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission, showing what happens to a car in an accident. At 20 miles an hour, the impact would be that of a car falling off a one-story building. At 40 miles per hour the impact would be that of a car falling from a 4-story building. At 60 miles per hour the impact would be like driving off a 9-story building.

Following the movie and a summary of traffic regulations, Horcher appealed to the students to protest traffic regulations they do not like. He asked, "When is the last time you saw someone burn his driver's license protesting the death of someone in a traffic accident?"

Tomorrow night Horcher will discuss the effects of alcohol on driving, tollroad driving, motorcycles and trucks and police driving. The session begins at 7 p.m.

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Pilot Testimony Awaited by FAA

Neal Callahan, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman, said yesterday an investigation now underway into the cause of Sunday's plane crash at Pal-Waukee Airport cannot begin "in earnest" until the two men who were in the plane are able to speak to investigators.

The two men are listed in serious condition and will not be able to make statements until their condition improves. He said that will be in "a few days."

"The crash has already taken place, what's important now is the health of the two men," he said.

Their statements will be the most important part of the investigation, according to Callahan.

ZIP! ZIP! ZIP! It's carnival night this Thursday through Sunday at St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 Algonquin, Des Plaines.

Carnival Coming To St. Zachary's

Whirling, swirling lights, the callopie music of the turning wooden horses, children eating hot dogs and smiling at the noise and bustle.

It's carnival night, and it's in Des Plaines.

Sponsored by St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin, the carnival will be held for four nights this week in the church's rear parking lot.

Days and times are Thursday and Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Biggest ride will be the Tempest. This ride was described as being a pole, with another pole attached to it, with two cars attached to that. "Then they all whirl around together," according to St. Zachary recreation committee chairman Norm Tuccy.

FOUR OTHER RIDES will be available. They are the tilt-a-whirl, a kind of a revolving spinning device, a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and a children's ride.

Food will include barbecue beef sandwiches, hot dogs and corn on the cob. The food will be cooked by parish families under the coordination of the Food committee, led by Mrs. Carole Tuccy.

Seven or eight skill booths will be set up by parishioners. These will include tic-tac-toe games, ring tosses, ball throw and aim-games, Tuccy said.

About 1,000 people are expected, and everyone is invited, Tuccy said. The parish has about 2,000 families from both Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The idea for the carnival came from church members, including Mary Ann Sobeski and Mary Ann Pasterick, Tuccy said.

"The idea was to bring people together," he said.

CHURCH MEMBERS ALSO wanted to get the whole parish involved in church activities. The third reason was the desire to raise money.

This money will be used for the educational fund for the St. Zachary school.

Other members of the entertainment committee are Charles Wolf, vice-chairman, and Mary Ellen Green, secretary.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham,

R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Vallrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

Rejection Of Contract Urged

The Dist. 59 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 500 teachers reject the contract proposal the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting so the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8. "The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated.

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated.

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Waltman had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $266,000. Waltman has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 59 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contracts. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,600. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Waltman, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

Plan Flea Market At Wheeling High School. A flea market is coming to Wheeling High School.

The event will be held Sept. 18, 19 and 20 in the WHS field house. It will be sponsored by the Wheeling Instrumental League to raise money for the WHS musical groups.

Those interested in renting space to sell items at the flea market must make advance reservations. Reservations may be made by calling 253-8337, 537-6357 or 255-8120.

A $5 fee will be charged for each booth rented during the three-day affair.

WALTMAN TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

Learning Disability Program Meeting Set

Parents who have children in the learning disabilities program in Dist. 21 are invited to attend a meeting tomorrow to learn more about the program.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Sandburg School in Wheeling.

The purpose of the meeting is to brief parents on the program, to discuss changes in the program and how these changes will affect the classes and the children.

Following the presentation, parents will be able to meet with teachers and staff psychologists during a coffee hour.

Local Woman Wins European Vacation

Sending in the label from a bottle of salad dressing and a contest application blank resulted in a "once in a lifetime dream" for Mrs. A. Hemauer, 121 S. Pine, Palatine.

Mrs. Hemauer was recently informed that she was a Grand Prize Winner in the Kraft Food's Miracle Whip Fun in Europe Sweepstakes.

For simply sending in the label from a bottle of Miracle Whip and application blank, Mrs. Hemauer has won a two-week trip to Europe for two, $300, and a $300 check for spending money.

Hotels, sightseeing and meals will be provided as Mrs. Hemauer and her husband travel to Brussels, London, Paris and Vienna.

Mrs. Hemauer said she plans to leave via Sabena Air Lines on Oct. 17. Al Hemauer, her husband, is a teacher at Wheeling High School and may not be able to take a leave of absence, however. In that case, the Hemauer's 17-year-old daughter, Beverly, will make the trip.

STATE SENATOR John Graham of Barrington looks pensive during hearings held at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel yesterday. Graham, a long term member of the Senate, is chairman of the Illinois Election Laws Commission now holding two days of hearings at the local hotel.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,500 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Women Speak On Liberation

In recognition of the 50th anniversary of women's right to vote, nationwide activities tomorrow will focus on the pleas of women for equal rights.

Certain nationally organized feminist groups are urging women workers to remain away from their jobs if possible. Rallies will be held in the Civic Center from noon to 2 p.m. and in Grant Park at 8 p.m. to observe the strike.

However, most Wheeling and Buffalo Grove women are ignoring the event. Here's what they had to say about women's suffrage, women's rights and tomorrow's strike.

"I think it's very good that women are women, and I don't want to be treated like a man," said MRS. ELMER J. MUNDT, 244 Jeffrey Ave., Wheeling. "Women's liberation is a bunch of baloney. I think women are biologically and emotionally unequal to men, and they should remain different." Mrs. Mundt said she believes women do not have the "mental personality" that men have.

However, Mrs. Mundt said she believes in equal pay for women for equal work. "I don't think a lot of them (women) do equal work," she said. "Anyway, I think motherhood is the greatest thing in the world, and men can't do that!"

MRS. JOHN C. KIM, 1451 S. Wolf, Wheeling, said, "I would not support women's equal rights by staying home from my job, but I would attend a rally out of curiosity." Mrs. Kim said she likes to be treated like a woman. "If they said chivalry is unconstitutional, it would be a sad situation," she added.

MRS. DAVID L. NELSON, 885 Plum Grove Circle, Buffalo Grove, said she believes in equal pay rights but "to be equal 100 per cent is absurd."

"When a man pulls a chair out for me, it's because he looks up to me," she said. "He doesn't do it because I'm weak or because I'm a woman. It's because he has a kind, gentle feeling toward me."

Mrs. Nelson, who said she believes women are capable of handling their right to vote, said she is disappointed that so few women do vote. "They know what's going on as much as men do," she said.

MRS. ROBERT WAGNER, 80 N. Wolf, Wheeling, spoke in favor of equal rights for women. "I think women should work and do something constructive instead of staying home all the time," she said. Mrs. Wagner said she does not believe women are treated equal to men because they are paid lower and kept from a job when a man would not be. "I have worked all my life, and I plan to continue," she said.

Mrs. Wagner added, "Women have been pushed aside so long. I think it's great that they're coming into medicine and politics." She said women would be good in politics because they have different viewpoints and come to different conclusions. "More women would vote if more women were in politics," she said.

Arguing the viewpoint that women are too emotional for political jobs, Mrs. Wagner said, "Men are emotional, too. Sometimes a woman can handle a big situation better than a man. Women are emotional about the little things."

Disagreeing with a comment that "the housewife doesn't get anywhere," MRS. DONALD T. WAYNE, 416 Chatham Cr., Buffalo Grove, said, "I have achieved my goal. My husband is my king and I like it. I love being a housewife and a mother." Mrs. Wayne said she believes every woman is liberated if she is doing what she likes to do.

"I like being a woman," the housewife added. "I think there's no greater thing than making your husband happy."

Mrs. Wayne said she does not understand why women's liberation enthusiasts are protesting. "If they're happy working, then why should they have to protest?" she asked. "In this day and age you can do just about everything you want to do."

MRS. A. A. BARTELS, 1400 Palm, Wheeling, said, "Women's rights are wrong in this generation. Children need contact with their parents in this generation more than ever before." She said working women may not have enough time to spend with their children. "I don't think they have a lot to stand on," she added. "They have no idea what they really want."

School To Open As Scheduled

THERE WERE strikes and spares aplenty Saturday when the Buffalo Grove Lions Club sponsored a bowling tournament at the Buffalo Grove Rose Bowl. Area couples teamed up to compete for prizes. The proceeds from the event will be donated by the club to various charitable organizations.

The new James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove will open as scheduled next Monday, despite the fact that finishing work remains to be done on the gymnasium, lunchroom and eight of the classrooms.

The new junior high, located along Arlington Heights Road between Plum Grove Circle and Whitehall Place, will serve all seventh and eighth grade students in Buffalo Grove, with the exception of the Cambridge subdivision. Students living in the section of Arlington Heights that lies in Dist. 21 will also attend the school.

According to Asst. Supt. John Barger, the entire second floor of the building will be useable when school opens Monday.

This floor includes 18 regular classrooms and a library learning center. The administrative offices and the teachers' lounge on the first floor will also be ready for use.

"The classrooms are basically finished, even on the first floors. I don't anticipate any problems. The lack of the gym will be the only inconvenience," Barger stated.

The students will be allowed to eat sack lunches at school. But the hot lunch program will not start for about a month until the lunchroom is completed, he said. Barger estimated that the remaining work should be completed in "30 to 45 days."

The building, started in October 1969, was scheduled for completion this September.

"Although we had hoped to complete all of the building, the strike by the concrete finishers and the truck strike delayed it," Barger said.

FAA Probes Crash Of Light Plane

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

"Until the laws are changed, this situation isn't going to get any better. It's a shame that people have to risk getting killed just to prove a point."

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Pilot Testimony Awaited by FAA

Neal Callahan, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman, said yesterday an investigation now underway into the cause of Sunday's plane crash at Pal-Waukee Airport cannot begin "in earnest" until the two men who were in the plane are able to speak to investigators.

The two men are listed in serious condition and will not be able to make statements until their condition improves. He said that will be in "a few days."

"The crash has already taken place, what's important now is the health of the two men," he said.

Their statements will be the most important part of the investigation, according to Callahan.

School Will Start Monday In District

School will start Monday in School Dist. 21. Children in grades one through eight will attend classes from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Monday. Regular bus service will be available.

Children entering kindergarten this fall will visit their classrooms Monday with their parents. Parents should bring their children to school at the time designated by officials to each of the schools.

Bus service for kindergarteners living 1½ miles or more from school will begin on Tuesday, the first day of regular classes.

Charge Unsafe Brakes Cause $1,100 Damage

An auto accident Saturday afternoon at the intersection of Rte. 63 and Aptakisic Road caused an estimated $1,100 damage to the two automobiles involved.

An auto driven by Theodore Castfield, 121 Fremont, Arlington Heights, collided with an auto driven by Ma Jennings of Lake Zurich, at 1:55 p.m.

The accident occurred when Castfield was turning south onto Rte. 63 from Aptakisic Road. His car collided with the Jennings car, which was going north on Rte. 63.

The accident caused an estimated $400 damage to the Castfield car and an estimated $700 damage to the Jennings car.

Judy Jennings, a passenger in the Jennings car, was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital.

Castfield was charged by Wheeling Police with driving with unsafe automobile brakes.

ZIP! ZIP! ZIP! it's carnival night this Thursday through Sunday at St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 Algonquin, Des Plaines.

Carnival Coming To St. Zachary's

Whirling, swirling lights, the calliope music of the turning wooden horses, children eating hot dogs and smiling at the noise and bustle.

It's carnival night, and it's in Des Plaines.

Sponsored by St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin, the carnival will be held for four nights this week in the church's rear parking lot.

Days and times are Thursday and Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Biggest ride will be the Tempest. This ride was described as being a pole, with another pole attached to it, with two cars another pole attached to it, with two oars attached to that. "Then they all whirl around together," according to St. Zachary recreation committee chairman Norm Tuccy.

FOUR OTHER RIDES will be available. They are the tilt-a-whirl, a kind of a revolving spinning device, a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and a children's ride.

Food will include barbecue beef sandwiches, hot dogs and corn on the cob. The food will be cooked by parish families under the coordination of the Food committee, led by Mrs. Carole Tuccy.

Seven or eight skill booths will be set up by parishioners. These will include tic-tac-toe games, ring tosses, ball throw and aim-games, Tuccy said.

About 1,000 people are expected, and everyone is invited, Tuccy said. The parish has about 2,000 families from both Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The idea for the carnival came from church members, including Mary Ann Sobeski and Mary Ann Pasterick, Tuccy said.

"The idea was to bring people together," he said.

CHURCH MEMBERS ALSO wanted to get the whole parish involved in church activities. The third reason was the desire to raise money.

This money will be used for the educational fund for the St. Zachary school.

Other members of the entertainment committee are Charles Wolf, vice-chairman, and Mary Ellen Green, secretary.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham,

Opening Of School Aim Of Arsonist?

Palatine police yesterday were still investigating an attempt at arson made early last week which may have been designed to delay the opening of High School Dist. 211 schools by destroying 64 buses.

Police said they received a report from Joe Gyrnek documenting the arson attempt. Gyrnek is high school district mechanic based at Fremd High School on Quentin Road near Illinois Street.

Gyrnek reported Tuesday that 12 of the buses were missing gas caps and one bus was scorched around the gas tank area in an apparent arson attempt. "That bus, number 55," he told police, "was located in the northwest corner of the rear lot."

Police said Gyrnek told them he found a partially burned piece of cloth inside the opening to the gas tank. The rag had been pushed down into the gas tank and after being ignited it burned to the edge of the gas tank opening.

GYRNEK TOLD police, that had the rag ignited the bus, the neighboring buses would have also been ignited.

Police gave two reasons for the arson attempt. First, they said, it could be that someone wanted to delay the opening of school. Second someone may have wanted to draw a number of police officers to the area while a theft was attempted on the other side of town.

Claude Bailey, director of transportation for Dist. 211, said it was an arson attempt, but that "burning one bus wouldn't hurt us."

"We'd have to lose more than 25 buses before the opening of school would be delayed," he said.

Asked if more buses could have been damaged had the one ignited, he said "It's possible, but I don't think so. If a gas tank did explode it would be pretty well confined to the bottom of the one bus."

Bailey, however, did not feel the arson attempt was aimed at delaying the opening of school. "It's just that these buses are a sitting temptation for someone who's just out for kicks."

LAST YEAR someone let the air out of several bus tires, and in previous years school officials have witnessed similar pranks, he said.

Currently, the only security measures being taken to protect the fleet which transports 80 per cent of the Dist. 211 enrollment comes from the Palatine police, who patrol the lot on the hour.

During school, Bailey said, workmen are also in or around the garage from 5 a.m. to 12 midnight "to keep an eye on the buses."

The recent arson attempt, however, will not result in more security precautions.

'No Fly Pest' Strip Ban Urged

The Palatine Health Department is asking local restaurants not to use Shell No-Fly Pest Strips for insect control.

Richard Dawson, health department chief, said the strips contain a chemical substance which may constitute a health hazard when used around food.

The strips, usually hung from ceilings, are known as vapona strips and contain a substance commonly referred to as DDVP.

DDVP is the abbreviation for Dichlorvos, the trade name of a chemical substance, dichlorovinyl-dimethyl phosphate.

Dawson said he would advise homeowners not to use the pest strips in the kitchen. He said he would recommend using the strips in the lids of garbage holders to control insects. The strips, he said, would also be safe to use in a garage or storage room.

Dawson said he did not know if the strips were harmful or not, adding that from a health viewpoint, it is better to take the same attitude the department has toward food. "When in doubt, throw it out," he said.

AS THE DEPARTMENT makes its inspections of restaurants, he said, if it notices the strips are being used the restaurant is asked to discontinue using them. The health department has been asking restaurants to discontinue the use of the pest strips for the last six months, he said.

One outward effect of the pest strips, he said, is that if an insect is killed by the vapors while flying, there is a chance it could fall into food.

He emphasized that he did not know of any direct effect of the strip.

Dawson said there are a number of other ways with which restaurants can control its fly population.

The most effective, he said, is through the use of air conditioning. Second, he said, is proper screening while the third consists of using fly swatters.

After a restaurant has closed, Dawson said, it is safer for it to use a pyrethrin spray. This is an insecticide which does not have much of a residual effect. When it is used, it solves the problem and then disappears, he said.

"It is my feeling that there probably is a hazard from DDVP," he said, but "I'm inclined to believe there is a hazard from all insecticides."

THERE IS A general feeling, he said, that Vapona is like fly paper. That is, there may not be anything toxic about it, but it is just unsanitary to have dead insects around.

Vapona itself, he said, will be banned in New York State this year. The resin strip, which is used in the no pest strip will not be banned, however.

Although no reason was given for this, he said, it is probably because the concentration of vapona in the no pest strip is not sufficient to constitute a health hazard.

Youth Faces Deportation

A 17-year-old Libertyville youth who pleaded guilty to selling LSD and the possession of marijuana in Palatine faces deportation proceedings tomorrow.

Philip J. Gray pleaded guilty to the charges in May and was sentenced to two years probation, the first 30 days of which were served in Cook County jail.

Gray, a citizen of Great Britain, appeared in the Evanston branch of Circuit Court yesterday and asked for a new trial. His attorney, public defender Clare Hillyard also asked that the marijuana possession charge be changed.

Judge James Maher Jr., denied both requests.

Miss Hillyard told a reporter that Gray could be deported only on the marijuana charge which is why she made the motion to have it changed to disorderly conduct.

In asking for a new trial Miss Hillyard claimed that Gray was not sufficiently advised of his rights to a trial by jury, Charles Whelan, assistant state's attorney, said.

Whelan said he argued that Gray had an attorney with him during all the pre-trial negotiations and knew the consequences of his guilty plea before it was made.

He said he also argued that Judge Francis W. Glowacki entered a finding in the case only after he had heard from all those involved in the case and a presentence investigation by the county's probation department.

Miss Hillyard said she entered the case because Gray had run out of funds for a private attorney. He was defended previously by Frank S. Kanelos.

Gray pleaded guilty to selling LSD March 9 at a drive in restaurant in Palatine and selling LSD March 11 at a new defunct teen-age gathering spot at 724 E. Northwest Highway.

He also pleaded guilty to charges of the possession of marijuana at the time of his arrest. It is this charge for which he can be deported.

against emphysema, tuberculosis and cigarette smoking," she said.

"Progress has been made against these health hazards, but much more needs to be done. Support of Christmas Seals will help assure continued progress in these fields," she said.

Mrs. Brown is also chairman of Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP), a member of the Clean Air Coordinating Committee, Open Lands Project and an associate director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation Association.

'Spotlight' Distribution Is Thursday

"The Spotlight," Palatine High School's yearbook, will be distributed from 6 to 10 p.m. Thursday in the high school's main entrance.

This is the first year for a fall publication, says Mrs. Florence Salzer, faculty advisor of the yearbook staff. The advantage of the fall book is that the entire school year is included, whereas all material had to be ready for printing by March when the book was published in the spring.

Thursday evening 1,150 books will be distributed. This year's Spotlight is 160 pages "telling the story of 1970," Mrs. Salzer said.

The student staff of this year's book consisted of Maureen Mulroy, editor; Margaret Deuel, business manager; and Ken Johnson, photographer.

Other staff members included Donna Christopher, Doreen Main, Mary Heikkinen, Nancy McAllister, Lynn Wickert, Laurie McDermott, Anne Castrodale, Jeff Incevo, Camille Scoma and Pam Miller.

Christmas Seal Head Chosen

Mrs. Clayton W. Brown of 506 W. Glencoe Rd., has been named community Christmas Seal chairman for Palatine. She is the wife of Village Trustee Clayton Brown.

The appointment was announced this week by Frank J. O'Rourke, general Christmas Seal chairman for Chicago and suburban Cook County.

"I am delighted to lead the Christmas Seal campaign in Palatine because of its leadership in the fight for clean air and its research and educational efforts."

No Dress Code In Student Handbook

How should a student attending any one of the four schools in High School Dist. 211 dress this year?

According to the recently published student handbook, there are no school-enforced guidelines for apparel.

"It is no longer proper or possible for the principals of the schools to exercise control concerning dress and grooming except in the areas specified: health, safety and disruptive influence," the handbook states.

"This means that legally, the only persons who can effectively control hair and dress are the parents of the students."

The policy change was the result of several nationwide court cases which outlawed school board control over dress and hair, and the Dist. 211 board's decision of last year to do away with their policy.

THAT POLICY, as stated in the 1969-70 Handbook, read: "Students are expected to wear clothing which meets reasonable standards of cleanliness and modesty. Typical attire for girls is dresses, suits, or skirts with blouses or sweaters. Boys ordinarily wear wash pants or slacks and sports shirts."

"Length of hair," the old handbook said, "is an issue only where cleanliness, neatness, and good taste are involved. Mustaches and beards will not be acceptable."

Although the dress code policy has been discarded, a relatively new aspect of the Dist. 211 program has been added to the 1970-71 Handbook for students.

On page 10, the purpose, qualifications and roles of the High School Dist. 211 police consultants are listed. Even though the program was in operation last year, previous Handbooks did not include this chapter.

The purpose of the program, the new Handbook says, is to meet the following needs:

—A closer, more personal relationship between law enforcement agencies and high school students.

—The use of a police enforcement agent in preparing education programs related to social problems.

—To protect students in school against vandalism, trespassing, theft and other violations of the law, and

—To offer closer contact with police in order to deal more effectively with juvenile offenses.

Aside from the deletion of the dress code and the addition of the police consultant description, the student Handbook for this year is the same as last year's.

The Handbook, published separately for each of the district's four high schools, is distributed to the district's 7,400 students and their parents by mail.

Community Goal Set By Jaycees

This is a continuing series of stories concerning community organizations of Palatine and their goals for the coming 1970-71 season.

Community involvement is the goal of the Palatine Jaycees, according to President Dave George.

The Jaycee-sponsored July 4th festivities are the biggest project of the year. Some 20 different projects beginning with a parade and ending with fireworks highlight the annual celebration of this country's birthday.

The Miss Palatine pageant is another popular activity.

At Christmas, the Jaycees sponsor a parade, Santa's Mailbox and a house decoration contest.

Saturday, the Jaycees will sponsor a boys trip to White Sox park. Each Valentine's day, they hold a party for the children at Clearbrook Center in Rolling Meadows.

George said all funds raised through Jaycee sales, such as the Christmas tree sale, are put back into the community. Two years ago, the Jaycees helped the park district construct a hockey rink and have also made donations to Northwest Community Hospital.

THE JAYCEE chapter is comprised of 52 men between the ages of 21 and 35. Some 25 Jaycee wives are also active, according to George.

Ed Murnane and Russ Strandberg are vice-presidents. Under Murnane are directors Jack O'Connor and Paul Rustemier. Directors Rod McQueen and Rich Ernst work with Strandberg.

Other officers include treasurer Robert DiFatta, secretary Jim Blaeser, state director Ken Bradley and past president Terry Leighty.

The Jaycees meet at 8 p.m. the second Thursday of each month in the Palatine fire station, 117 W. Slade. George said guests are welcome. Annual dues are $15.

Attempted Suicides Up

The rate of attempted suicides in Palatine for the first seven months of 1970 is more than double the rate for the comparable period last year.

According to the police department's July, 1970 report, there have been a total of 15 attempted suicides this year. Last year the department recorded only six attempted suicides during the first seven months.

The village recorded a total of 15 suicide attempts for all of last year.

Police Chief Robert Centner said he did not know why there were more suicide attempts this year. He did say, however, that people who learn of attempted suicides may be calling the police more than in the past to request assistance. This means police may be recording attempts that previously may have gone unreported, he said. He added that there probably is no one reason for the attempts.

THE VILLAGE has already matched last year's total of two suicides.

Crime in general and motor vehicle arrests in particular are up in the village.

According to the July report, a total of 781 complaints have been received during the first seven months of 1970, compared with the 600 complaints received last year for the comparable period.

Most of the increase is accounted for by the increase of complaints of theft under $50. For the first seven months of this year, a total of 253 of these complaints were received, compared to the 175 complaints received last year.

CENTNER BLAMED most of this increase on bicycle thefts.

More than half the motor vehicle arrests made by the department involve speeding, the report shows. During the first seven months of this year, a total of 1,207 arrests were made for speeding compared with 681 made last year.

A total of 2,064 motor vehicle arrests have been made so far in 1970 compared with the 1,415 arrests made last year.

Last year the department was using only one radar unit, Centner said, this year it is using two.

The report also notes that 190 arrests have been made for improper or malfunctioning vehicle equipment this year compared with last year's total of 171 for the first seven months.

Unpredictable Kids Astound Lou Hibbs

BY TOM ROBB

Capturing second place in the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference recently was thrill enough for Palatine Park District Coach Lou Hibbs, but there have been other things which have made the man's volunteer work with children even more rewarding.

For example, during the four years Hibbs has spent coaching youngsters, eight sets of twins have passed under the watchful eye of a coach who never swam competitively himself, but "who just took an interest in the sport and made the most out of it."

A dispatcher with United Airlines, Hibbs has also had the experience of being disheartened when one of his prize swimmers was taken ill with appendicitis last season and amazed when the boy went on to victory in the Aug. 5 championships barely three weeks after his surgery.

"There's no telling what these kids can do," said Hibbs, who resides at 7206 E. Paddock Dr., Palatine. "That's the fun of it all."

COACHING SOME 110 children practically five mornings per week whose ages range from 16 to 17 has to be "fun" to keep a man at it for several years.

Also a coach for the Countryside YMCA swimming teams, Hibbs said he was very fortunate this past season to have been assisted by Chris Pedersen, assistant coach; and Dolly Chamberlin, diving coach.

Their work paid off. Out of the 17 teams in this year's Northern Illinois Conference, the Palatine Park District's team placed second in the championships in their league — which put them up against several other teams with more experience.

In past years of competition, the park district tankers placed 14th out of 16 places (before the conference was divided up into leagues) and 4th out of 7 places in their second year of competition.

Around July 1 next year, Hibbs and his crew will be at it again, hoping that history will repeat itself and they will move up another notch to capture the crown.

BUT WINNING IS not Hibbs' primary concern. Rather, "I just like to see these kids out there swimming, trying and having fun," he said.

In fact, Hibbs said, "What I'd like to see next year is more of the 6 and 7-year-olds coming out for the team. If they can just barely swim the length of the pool, parents should send them over and we'll make swimmers out of them, by golly."

ALTHOUGH THE PARK district only missed the championships by 36 points recently, they can be proud of the fine job coaches and youngsters did in taking home this impressive second place trophy displayed by coach Lou Hibbs (left) and park director Rex McMorris. Behind them, are Norman Joseph, president of the parents swim team association, Chris Pedersen and Dolly Chamberlin, coaches.

Probe Light Plane Crash

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 680 Murray La., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 300 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 60 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Meadows Man Cited In Chain Collision

A Rolling Meadows man was cited for failure to control his vehicle after a chain collision Sunday night at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, Arlington Heights.

Donald J. Gurka, 18, 2410 Robin Lane, Rolling Meadows, was cited after his car struck the rear of a car driven by Walter O. Peterson, 67, 506 S. Elmhurst, Mount Prospect.

Peterson's car then struck a car driven by Frank Nomellini, 59, 712 N. Prospect Rd., Mount Prospect, police reports said.

Two passengers in Nomellini's car were

A special subcommittee of the Illinois Racing Board yesterday heard several objections to the proposed rule regarding the licensing of "all officers, directors and substantial owners" of Illinois race tracks.

W. S. Miller, former racing board chairman and current president of Balmoral Park and Chicago Downs Race Track, objected strenuously to the board's proposal that "every person, trust or foundation owning five per cent or more of the equity of the applicant for racing dates" shall be required to be licensed by the board prior to the granting of racing dates.

"This board should be interested in the officers and directors of a track, not anyone who only owns five per cent," Miller said.

Miller said that when he was on the board a case came up concerning some-that a track operator could do nothing about an undesirable person who had a financial interest in the local race track.

ALBERT E. Jenner Jr., attorney for Gulf and Western; and Frank Riley; and Newton W. Mandel, representing Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) raised several objections to the proposal and offered alternative plans. CTE, an offshot company of Transnation which is a part of Gulf and Western, owns and operates Arlington and Washington Park race tracks.

Riley said the power of the board is limited by the power granted to it by the legislature. Riley said CTE has no objections to the licensing of officers and directors or anyone else involved in the day-to-day operations of the tracks.

Reading from the statute, he said, the board "shall have no right" to determine, through its licensing procedure,

STATE'S ATTORNEY Robert Maloney countered with another section of the law which he said gives the board "implied power" to properly carry out fully the best interests of racing.

Mandel said, "The board has the right and obligation to supervise racing in the state of Illinois. The board presently has sufficient power to see to it that the proper people are involved in racing — to keep the undesirable elements out by denying a license."

He noted that under the proposal, 53 applications would have to be filed by persons in CTE, Transnation and Gulf and Western. "The board would spend all its time checking out people all over the world," Mandel said.

Mandel said that while the board should have power over those who run the track, it should have "no power to license those who run the Arlington Park

jected to another section of the proposal that would require the applicant to "bear the expense of any inquiry into the applicants financial integrity and moral responsibility to participate in racing in Illinois."

RILEY SAID it is "unreasonable for the board to have carte blanche authority to spend unlimited funds" of the applicant. He added that he feels the board has no right to charge more than $10 as provided for in the existing state statute.

Riley said, "It's none of the board's business how many times I kiss my wife."

Jenner then took issue with another portion of the proposal that states, "A licensee's ownership of an interest in a gaming operation, whether or not permitted by another jurisdiction, shall be considered inconsistent with the stan-

STATE SENATOR John Graham of Barrington looks pensive during hearings held at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel yesterday. Graham, a long term member of the Senate, is chairman of the Illinois Election Laws Commission now holding two days of hearings at the local hotel.

BGA Praises New Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Vallrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

Cable Car Clangs To Town

by MURRAY DUBIN

Clang, clang, clang.
Clanging down Campbell Street, ringing your way left, past the no left turn sign on Vail Avenue, chiming through the Jewel parking lot with amazed faces registering disbelief.

Hold onto the rail for dear life as the cable car zips around. It's suddenly San Francisco and the streets are a roller coaster, rolling up and down like your stomach.

But it's really Arlington Heights and the smell of the wharves disappears as the police cadet looks on menacingly. There aren't any no-left-turn signs in San Francisco.

Clang, clang, clang.
Dennis Sanfilippo and Bennie Sharpe brought a little bit of San Francisco with them last week when they arrived in Arlington Heights driving a cable car replica.

SANFILIPPO, representing California Parlor Car Tours, started his promotional drive across the country eight days ago. Along with him is Bennie Sharpe, a representative of Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii.

Clang, clang, clang.
It's a funmobile that seats about 30 laughing people and has room for others if they hang on to the poles, stick their heads out the car's open sides, and make funny faces to passing motorists and surprised old people.

That cop won't give us a ticket, will he?

Travel posters and bumper stickers make the brown, red and green cable car without a cable look like a noisy, ringing rainbow, complete with a Ford Chassis.

Clang, clang, clang.
"We've met the backbone of America," the 22-year-old Sanfilippo said. "Yeh, we've seen every gas station attendant on Route 80," he added.

THAT COP KEEPS staring at us.
The next stop for the transcontinental cable car is Michigan, and visits to travel agencies and others who may be interested in cable car tours to California.

The $20,000 six-eighths scale cable car attracts gawkers wherever it goes and Arlington Heights was no different as downtown shoppers looked up from their chagrin, at no left turn sign and stared at the strange moving conveyance.

Clang, clang, clang.

Win at Bridge

by
OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 86th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the America's Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd lives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1935. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team:

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

Rejection Of Contract Urged

The Dist. 59 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 500 teachers reject the contract proposal the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting so the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8. "The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated."

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated."

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Waltman had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $266,000. Waltman has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 59 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contracts. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,600. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Waltman, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

WALTMAN TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

Local Woman Wins European Vacation

Sending in the label from a bottle of salad dressing and a contest application blank resulted in a "once in a lifetime dream" for Mrs. A. Hemauer, 121 S. Pine, Palatine.

Mrs. Hemauer was recently informed that she was a Grand Prize Winner in the Kraft Food's Miracle Whip Fun in Europe Sweepstakes.

For simply sending in the label from a bottle of Miracle Whip and application blank, Mrs. Hemauer has won a two-week trip to Europe for two, $500, and a $200 check for spending money.

Hotels, sightseeing and meals will be provided as Mrs. Hemauer and her husband travel to Brussels, London, Paris and Vienna.

Mrs. Hemauer said she plans to leave via Sabena Air Lines on Oct. 17. Al Hemauer, her husband, is a teacher at Wheeling High School and may not be able to take a leave of absence, however. In that case, the Hemauer's 17-year-old daughter, Beverly, will make the trip.

How To Get Rid Of Glass

If broken glass or empty bottles are filling up your garbage can, now there's a place you can get rid of them and help the environment at the same time.

The River Trails Nature Center at 3120 Milwaukee Ave. has opened a glass reclamation center for anyone who wants to bring in broken, unwanted and not returnable glass. Ray Schwarz, director of the center, said it is the only reclamation service in the North and Northwest suburban area.

"People can come and drop off glass here instead of throwing it into a garbage can that would send it to a dump," said Schwarz. "The glass can be recycled so it will save on natural resources instead of filling up the dumps."

The Anchor-Hocking Glass Co. in Gurnee, Ill. has arranged with the nature center to buy the glass each month at one cent a pound. The company will then reuse the glass to make bottles. Schwarz said the money will be used for conservation projects at the nature center.

"We hope people will bring in the glass just because they are concerned about ecology," Schwarz said.

He said if the reclamation center can recycle glass, it will save on natural resources instead of filling up area garbage dumps and cluttering the highways.

Schwarz said he expects people to bring in anything from fruit jars and beer bottles to broken window panes. He asks that people bringing in glass remove the paper, labels and any metal parts on bottles to save the center time. People can bring in any kind of glass of any color, and the center will sort it before it takes it to the glass company.

The nature center has tried to make similar arrangements with aluminum companies but as yet none of the companies have agreed to support a reclamation center for cans in this area, according to Schwarz.

Police Issue Report

In Inverness this year there have been 27 vandalism complaints, one disorderly conduct, three forcible burglaries, seven thefts over $50 and seven thefts under $50 complaints, according to the Palatine police department report for July.

Palatine's police department took over the police function for the village last December.

A total of 34 traffic arrests have been made in Inverness this year, 16 for speeding, the report says.

New School Is 'Rolling Meadows High School'

by TOM WELLMAN

It's "Rolling Meadows High School." Before an angry and enthusiastic crowd of perhaps 200 residents of Rolling Meadows, the High School District 214 Board last night voted unanimously to finally and officially name the district's seventh high school.

After a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion held in the Prospect High School Theater because the Rolling Meadows residents had overflowed the district's normal meeting room, board member Leah Cummins moved that Rolling Meadows High School be approved.

The room fell silent as each board member voted yes. Before the vote was taken, a variety of civic leaders from the community repeated their request which had been presented to the board twice in the last 10 months to name the school after the community.

Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, said that he realized only a slight majority of the students at the new high school might be from Rolling Meadows. He said, however, that a majority vote of those students would indicate support for the Rolling Meadows name.

Thomas Walbyon, an alderman from the community, and Mrs. Joan Meyer, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, repeated the request for the naming.

Of the ten to fifteen persons who spoke from the audience, only one suggestion was made that a name other than Rolling Meadows High School, or Meadows High School should be selected.

The large group, which arrived at 7:30 wielding three placards brought about the shift in the meeting location from 799 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect to Prospect High School after they had filled the administration building's meeting room.

At 7:30, when the meeting was due to begin, Board Chairman Richard Bachhuber ordered the placards to be removed from the board's meeting room. Some of the citizens resisted. "Aren't we taxpayers?" said one man.

Bachhuber said that he was responsible for the conduct of the meeting and the placards were removed. Meanwhile, district officials contacted school officials at Prospect and they opened the high school theater.

After the vote had been taken and it was indeed official that at last the new school in Rolling Meadows had a name that was satisfactory to the citizens of Rolling Meadows, board member Jack Costello said what the residents had fought was not hostility on the part of the board. He said it was important that the residents recognized that it was not necessary for them to make demands of their school board.

The new name of the high school will go officially into effect when the minutes of last night's meeting are approved at the first board meeting in September.

There's Dignity In Them 'Blues'

School crossing guards in Rolling Meadows will be wearing blue uniforms Monday morning when they begin their duties at seven hazardous intersections in the city.

Uniforms, which include shirts or blouses, pants or skirts, and hats, are being provided by the city.

"We feel there is more dignity and respect for crossing guards when they are in uniform," Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case said. "A person helping kids across the street is respected by motorists if he is wearing a uniform."

Crossing guards will be placed at the intersection of Old Plum Grove and Meacham roads, Grouse Lane and Meadow Drive, Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive, School and Meadow Drive, Vermont Street and Kirchoff Road, and Central Road and Linden Lane.

"These are all zones where motorists should slow down and watch for children crossing the street, particularly at times when they will be walking to and from school," Case said.

"PARENTS SHOULD also insist that their children cross only at corners guarded by school safety patrol members, adult crossing guards or policemen," Case said.

Rolling Meadows police will be enforcing the school speed zones when children are crossing, Case said. "It's sometimes difficult for a car to slow down quick enough for a school speed zone. All school zones are at the most 20 miles-per-hour, regardless of what the posted speed is. There are some places where motorists have to drop 20 or 30 miles per hour to get down to the school speed limit."

Many children walking to school will be going for the first time, Case said. The experience of crossing streets alone will be a new one.

CROSSING GUARDS, who are out when children are going and coming from school, are placed at large and possibly dangerous intersections. School safety patrols, made up of students from each school, help young children cross near school.

Originally, school safety patrols were encouraged by the Chicago Motor Club of the American Automobile Association. The club has sponsored the traffic safety program for 50 years.

In addition to the safety patrols, the club provides safety posters and instructional material for students at school. Mayors throughout the state are joining the motor clubs in proclaiming Aug. 31 as "School's Open Day."

Mayor Roland J. Meyer, in announcing the day, is asking motorists and parents to be extremely careful of youngsters walking to school. "Older children, too, may be more careless than usual on the first few days of school," Meyer said.

WITH HAIR AND DUST flying, the first baseman for the Teen Government puts the tak on Alderman Tom Scanlan as he tries to beat out an infield hit during the annual city officials-Teen Government softball game.

City Officials Win Again

For the third year in a row, Rolling Meadows city officials slugged their way to triumph over members of the Teen Government in the annual softball game Sunday, kicking off Youth Week.

The officials got off to a good start in the game with a four-run first inning which led to an 18-11 win over the teens. The city's other powerful innings were a five-run third inning, and four runs in the fourth and ninth innings.

According to City Manager James Watson, who was pitcher for the city team, the outstanding player of the day was Denny Van Jacobs, a city police officer who played third base, whose hitting and fielding led the team to its victory.

One of the most traumatic moments in the game for Watson was when a batter hit a solid line drive right to the pitcher's mound where he was standing. Watson said he managed to stop the ball, but only through a self-defense maneuver.

A HIGHLIGHT of the game occurred when Alderman William Ahrens took off for second base with a hit by a teammate. However, when he realized he wouldn't make it to the base in time, he tried to go back to first and fell on his face, continuing down to the base line crawling on his hands and knees. After all his effort, Ahrens was called out when he finally reached the base.

Although there was quite a bit of discussion during the game, Watson said neither team had any violent arguments with the game's umpire, Jack Reif, who is also sponsor of the Teen Government and a coordinator of the Youth Week activities.

After their victory over the male teens, the city officials took on the girls in the Teen Government so they could also have a chance in the game. However, the girls didn't do much better than the boys and play ended after a few innings without anyone keeping score.

The city officials' squad was composed of Police Chief Lewis Case catching, Watson pitching, Alderman Don Winn at first base, Ahrens at second, City Attorney Don Rose at shortstop, Van Jacobs at third, police officer Richard Hammer at short center, Mayor Roland Meyer in left field, Alderman Tom Scanlan in center field and officer Brian O'Malley in right field.

The teen squad included both present members of the Teen Government and candidates who are currently running for positions in the mock city government.

Garage Bids Referred

Bids on construction an addition for the city garage have again been referred to committee by the city council to see if the cost can be reduced.

The streets, alleys and utilities committee will meet Monday night with the low bidders to discuss possible changes in the building plans which could reduce the cost further.

When the committee considered the bids the first time, the four low bidders were asked to resubmit bids. Second bids were several thousand dollars under the original bids, Ald. Steve Eberhard, chairman of the streets, alleys and utilities committee, said.

"Right now we are talking about a cost of $184,900 for the city garage," City Manager James Watson said. "Some aldermen don't like the high cost, which is why we are trying to get it reduced."

The committee will report again to the city council Tuesday, when a vote on the revised bids will probably be taken.

Rolling Meadows city garage is located on Central Rd., east of Sacred Heart of Mary High School.

The city has been working several months on plans for an addition on the back and west side of the present garage.

AN AGREEMENT with the park district has already been reached to give the city the additional space behind the garage for the addition. When the garage was built, the city and the park district shared the facility. It was built by the city on park property.

If the city council decides not to use the additional park property, the land will go back to the park district.

Originally, the city council had hoped to include expansion of the city hall in its construction plans. The property on Owl Drive behind city hall has already been purchased for expansion of the police department.

City officials are still trying to get federal funds to help build the police department addition. Preliminary plans call for an underground pistol range, a parking garage for police cruisers and additional office space for the department.

The pistol range which is used by the police department and the park district is now located at the city garage. Once a city hall addition is built, the range at the city garage would become a mechanics workshop for city equipment.

Community Groups Earn Budget Funds

Rolling Meadows community organizations which participated in the Jaycee carnival in July earned more than $1,800 for their group budgets this year.

The Jaycee-ettes received the highest amount, $625, from their ball toss booth. Boy's Baseball raised $286 from the beer booth, the Cub Scouts $100, and the Jaycees took in $570 for sponsoring the carnival.

An increase in costs to the Jaycees to bring the carnival to Rolling Meadows prevented them from taking in as much money as in previous years.

Proceeds from the carnival are used by the Jaycees to sponsor their fall programs.

IT'S A CLOSE PLAY but it looks like Rolling Meadows Alderman Don Winn was faster than the softball in reaching the base. Winn and his teammates overpowered the city's teens 18-11 in the softball game Sunday in Kimball Hill Park.

Youth Week Parade Set

The wildly decorated cars of candidates for the Rolling Meadows Teen Government will wind through the city streets Wednesday night as the Teen Government sponsors a parade as part of its Youth Week activities.

Candidates, present members of the Teen Government, and city officials will all participate in the parade, which will begin at approximately 7 p.m.

The parade will originate from the parking lot of the Salk School and will conclude at the shopping center parking lot. For anyone who would like to pull a lawn chair in front of their house and view the event, the parade route is:

Mayor Roland Meyer, City Mgr. James Watson, Police Chief Lewis Case and William Billings, Park Board President, will participate in the parade. Plans also include a musical group, possibly the Rolling Meadows Band, to march in the parade.

Unpredictable Kids Astound Lou Hibbs

BY TOM ROBB

Capturing second place in the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference recently was thrill enough for Palatine Park District Coach Lou Hibbs, but there have been other things which have made the man's volunteer work with children even more rewarding.

For example, during the four years Hibbs has spent coaching youngsters, eight sets of twins have passed under the watchful eye of a coach who never swam competitively himself, but "who just took an interest in the sport and made the most out of it."

A dispatcher with United Airlines, Hibbs has also had the experience of being disheartened when one of his prize swimmers was taken ill with appendicitis last season and amazed when the boy went on to victory in the Aug. 5 cham-ionships barely three weeks after his surgery.

"There's no telling what these kids can do," said Hibbs, who resides at 7208 E. Paddock Dr., Palatine. "That's the fun of it all."

COACHING SOME 110 children practically five mornings per week whose ages range from 16 to 17 has to be "fun" to keep a man at it for several years.

Also a coach for the Countryside YMCA swimming teams, Hibbs said he was very fortunate this past season to have been assisted by Chris Pedersen, assistant coach; and Dolly Chamberlin, diving coach.

Their work paid off. Out of the 17 teams in this year's Northern Illinois Conference, the Palatine Park District's team placed second in the championships in their league — which put them up against several other teams with more experience.

In past years of competition, the park district tankers placed 14th out of 16 places (before the conference was divided up into leagues) and 4th out of 7 places in their second year of competition.

Around July 1 next year, Hibbs and his crew will be at it again, hoping that history will repeat itself and they will move up another notch to capture the crown.

BUT WINNING IS not Hibbs' primary concern. Rather, "I just like to see these kids out there swimming, trying and having fun," he said.

In fact, Hibbs said, "What I'd like to see next year is more of the 6 and 7-year-olds coming out for the team. If they can just barely swim the length of the pool, parents should send them over and we'll make swimmers out of them, by golly."

ALTHOUGH THE PARK district only missed the championships by 36 points recently, they can be proud of the fine job coaches and youngsters did in taking home this impressive second place trophy displayed by coach Lou Hibbs (left) and park director Rex McMorris. Behind them, are Norman Joseph, president of the parents swim team association, Chris Pedersen and Dolly Chamberlin, coaches.

Probe Light Plane Crash

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 680 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

"IF AN AIRPORT is being used by the public, then we should have a way to improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Meadows Man Cited In Chain Collision

A Rolling Meadows man was cited for failure to control his vehicle after a chain collision Sunday night at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, Arlington Heights.

Donald J. Gurka, 18, 2410 Robin Lane, Rolling Meadows, was cited after his car struck the rear of a car driven by Walter O. Peterson, 67, 508 S. Elmhurst, Mount Prospect.

Peterson's car then struck a car driven by Frank Nomellini, 58, 712 N. Prospect Rd., Mount Prospect, police reports said.

Two passengers in Nomellini's car were treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital. Injured were Deloras Nomellini, 54, and Kathy Nomellini, 29.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,500 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Graup Of Girls On History Trip

Having raised $1,000 through various fund raising projects over the past two years, 35 Cadettes from Girl Scout Troop 80 in Palatine recently returned from a self-financed one week vacation.

Bake sales, nut and cookie sales, tips from coat checking and a fashion show earned the girls the money they needed to take their historical trip.

They left Aug. 16 via chartered bus and spent the first night at Camp Henry Kaufmann in Pennsylvania, where they took in a tour of Gettysburg the next day.

From there, the girls visited Washington, D.C., where they spent the next three days. Here, they visited the White House, Senate and House Galleries, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Arlington National Cemetery and Mount Vernon.

Their week came to an end when the girls took in a film, play and tour at historic Williamsburg.

The cadettes and their leaders, Mrs. Norman L. Klemas, Mrs. L. Hildebrandt, Mrs. G. Rubenlager and Mrs. L. Struttman, arrived back in Palatine this Sunday.

Driving Seminar Pushes Awareness

by JUDY RESSLER

Sixty thousand Americans are going to be killed this year. Five million persons are going to be disabled. Property damage will total 25 billion dollars this year.

Statistics from the Vietnam war? No traffic accidents.

The figures were cited by Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher at a driving seminar last week. By listing statistics, Horcher attempted to develop in the students an awareness of the traffic laws.

The traffic safety school lasts three weeks. It is held at the Wheeling Village Hall on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Most of the 45 persons from the Northwest suburban area attending the traffic school have been assigned to go there by the traffic court because they have received tickets for moving violations. However, anyone is invited to attend.

HORCHER ATTEMPTED to teach the students "to watch out for the other guy," to be aware of accident conditions and to be aware of their own driving attitudes. "Anything that can be prevented is not an accident," Horcher said. "I can assure you, there are very few accidents."

The police chief also attempted to alert the students by saying, "The chances in favor of all of you getting home tonight are 1,200 to one." He explained that those are very small odds, considering the number of persons on the road.

After completing the driver refresher seminar, he said, each student, being more aware, should see more accidents than they have ever seen.

To explain the student's presence at the driving seminar, Horcher said, "The only reason anyone ever got a ticket is because it was their unlucky day. We prove, beyond any doubt, that odds against getting a traffic citation for any reason, are 200 to one. This is why the accident rate is so high."

BUT ENFORCEMENT, the police chief said, is not effective for preventing accidents.

"Enforcement is a very negative approach to developing an awareness," he said. For this reason, he added, "awareness must be developed by other means, such as traffic schools."

Horcher said the most dangerous thing a person can do is drive a car down a two-lane highway. To explain this, he said that of 2,493 persons killed on Illinois streets, only 17 were killed on toll roads and inter-state systems.

Eighty-seven per cent of all deaths occur because of one of the following factors: speeding, failure to yield the right of way, crossing the center highway line, driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to follow stop signs and lights.

HORCHER SHOWED A movie, made by the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission, showing what happens to a car in an accident. At 20 miles an hour, the impact would be that of a car falling off a one-story building. At 40 miles per hour the impact would be that of a car falling from a 4-story building. At 60 miles per hour the impact would be like driving off a 9-story building.

Following the movie and a summary of traffic regulations, Horcher appealed to the students to protest traffic regulations they do not like. He asked, "When is the last time you saw someone burn his driver's license protesting the death of someone in a traffic accident?"

Tomorrow night Horcher will discuss the effects of alcohol on driving, tollroad driving, motorcycles and trucks and police driving. The session begins at 7 p.m.

How To Get Rid Of Glass

If broken glass or empty bottles are filling up your garbage can, now there's a place you can get rid of them and help the environment at the same time.

The River Trails Nature Center at 3120 Milwaukee Ave. has opened a glass reclamation center for anyone who wants to bring in broken, unwanted and not returnable glass. Ray Schwarz, director of the center, said it is the only reclamation service in the North and Northwest suburban area.

"People can come and drop off glass here instead of throwing it into a garbage can that would send it to a dump," said Schwarz. "The glass can be recycled so it will save on natural resources instead of filling up the dumps."

The Anchor-Hocking Glass Co. in Gurnee, Ill. has arranged with the nature center to buy the glass each month at one cent a pound. The company will then reuse the glass to make bottles. Schwarz said the money will be used for conservation projects at the nature center.

"We hope people will bring in the glass just because they are concerned about ecology," Schwarz said.

He said if the reclamation center can recycle glass, it will save on natural resources instead of filling up area garbage dumps and cluttering the highways.

Schwarz said he expects people to bring in anything from fruit jars and beer bottles to broken window panes. He asks that people bringing in glass remove the paper labels and any metal parts on bottles to save the center time. People can bring in any kind of glass of any color, and the center will sort it before it takes it to the glass company.

The nature center has tried to make similar arrangements with aluminum companies but as yet none of the companies have agreed to support a reclamation center for cans in this area, according to Schwarz.

School Will Start Monday In District

School will start Monday in School Dist. 21. Children in grades one through eight will attend classes from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Monday. Regular bus service will be available.

Children entering kindergarten this fall will visit their classroom Monday with their parents. Parents should bring their children to school at the time designated by officials in each of the schools.

Bus service for kindergartners living 1½ miles or more from school will begin on Tuesday, the first day of regular classes.

Learning Disability Program Meeting Set

Parents who have children in the learning disabilities program in Dist. 21 are invited to attend a meeting tomorrow to learn more about the program.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Sandburg School in Wheeling.

The purpose of the meeting is to brief parents on the program, to discuss changes in the program and how these changes will affect the classes and the children.

Following the presentation, parents will be able to meet with teachers and staff psychologists during a coffee hour.

Homeowners Group To Meet Tonight

The role of township government will be discussed tonight at the Park View Homeowners' Association meeting at 8 p.m. in the Prospect Heights Park District Field House, 308 S. Lee St. in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners' ideas on township government will then be submitted to the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, a group of nine Prospect Heights homeowner organizations, which is drawing up proposals on strengthening township government.

"JACK THE BEAR" blows his horn. Jack Bryant entertains persons at this Friday night edition of the "Red Garter Nights" at Maryville Academy, River Road and Central Avenue in Des Plaines.

U.S. Impresses Ana Maria

by DAVE PALERMO

If Ana Maria Ramon maintains her pleasant smile, polite manner and genuine curiosity, she shouldn't find the transition from Argentina to America too difficult.

Ana, 17, will be in America for one year, attending Prospect High School during her stay. She is one of thousands of foreign students who will be studying in the United States this year as part of the American Field Service program.

An attractive, dark-complected girl with long, brown hair, Ana tends to understate her mastery of the English language. She speaks haltingly, but clearly, breaking out into a blushing smile the few times she has to stop and think of the correct word or phrase to use.

It doesn't take long during the conversation for the real Ana to break through the thin language barrier. Her perception, intelligence and good-naturedness are universally accepted and appreciated characteristics.

"I always wanted to come to America," she said, sitting in the living room at the home of Donald Holm, 102 N. Evanston St. in Arlington Heights. She'll be staying at the Holm's residence throughout her visit in the United States.

"I READ ABOUT America all the time in Argentina. But in America there is nothing to read about Argentina," she said.

Ana said the large amount of publicity given to the United States and associations she had with Americans living in Argentina prepared her for her stay in this country.

But her eyes still widen when she speaks of the "many automobiles," "big breakfasts" and large high schools which made a big impression on her during her first week in this country.

She arrived from New York last Wednesday. The Holm's 17-year-old daughter, Carol, threw a party in her honor Friday.

"She really impressed everybody," said Carol. "They all said what a great girl she was and how lucky I was that she was staying with us. She talked to everybody all night."

In Argentina Ana studied most every subject from organic chemistry and physics to geography and geometry. At Prospect High School she'll be studying English and history as well as French.

ALTHOUGH SHE hasn't gotten a chance to develop her first case of homesickness, she still writes long letters to her family, friends and relatives in Argentina. She grew up in San Rafael in the province of Mendoza.

Mendoza is famous for its wines, and Ana readily admits a fondness for the festivals often held in her native country.

"They have snow festivals, wine festivals, olive festivals and fruit festivals. Wine in my country is the most important, most beautiful thing," she adds, wide-eyed and smiling.

She hopes that she can take up two of her most-loved activities, horseback riding and tennis, during her stay.

"I have always thought about playing tennis, but I was never very good about it because you don't have time for other things while you go to school in Argentina. I hope to learn how to play better here," she said.

ANA CAME FROM an all-girl school of 800 pupils. She is anxious to find out what it's like to attend a co-ed high school.

Her reasons for coming to America lend insight to the kind of girl Ana is. "I think it is important that young people from here, and from my country, get together and understand each other," she said. "It is important for young people to know and understand each other for soon we shall have the responsibility for our countries. In knowing we can understand," she said.

FAA Probes Crash Near Pal-Waukee

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said. Priester believes, however, that be-

Pilot Testimony Awaited by FAA

Neal Callahan, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman, said yesterday an investigation now underway into the cause of Sunday's plane crash at Pal-Waukee Airport cannot begin "in earnest" until the two men who were in the plane are able to speak to investigators.

The two men are listed in serious condition and will not be able to make statements until their condition improves. He said that will be in "a few days."

"The crash has already taken place, what's important now is the health of the two men," he said.

Their statements will be the most important part of the investigation, according to Callahan.

cause the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports. improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,500 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Scouts Attend Ranch Camp

Three Mount Prospect youngsters are among 10 Northwest suburban Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts currently participating in a 12-day expedition at the Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base in Cimarron, N.M.

The three are Dale Baldwin, Doug Klaus and Bill Bethell, all from Troop 23.

The group's Ranger is instructing them in wilderness cookery, backpacking, hiking techniques, and compass and map use. After three days with their Ranger, the expedition will continue following mountain trails on the 214-square mile ranch with their own adult leader.

While on the trail, the scouts can participate in programs offered in 21 mountain camps by members of Philmont's 400-man staff. These programs include burro packing, horseback riding, gold panning, mining, archaeological study and advanced mountaineering.

After the opening campfire at which the "New Mexico Story" was narrated, the scouts left camping headquarters and moved to their mountain starting camp in the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky Mountains.

From the Library

Kids' Last Chance

by LAURIE ROSSI

The very last chance children who are participating in the Mount Prospect Public Library's summer reading program have for turning in their book report sheets is September 1. As it must be with any project this large, no exceptions can be made for people with late reports, so it is very important for children to realize that the deadline is very soon.

The exact number of books required for each age group must be read in order to qualify for the play tickets, so have your children check at the library if they are in doubt about how many books they have read and reported on so far. Occasionally children think they have read more than they really have. It is also a possibility that some books were read and the reports were misplaced by the child or just never handed in. Some reports have been found inside of the library books. In the cases where they were accidentally found, the librarians turned them in for credit. However, they understandably cannot search through all the books for lost reports.

OF THE 1277 children who registered for the program this summer, only 272 have finished so far, and about 150 are within one or two books of finishing. Some have done even more than their share. One girl in the lower grades has read and reported on thirty-one books, and a first grader has read sixteen.

These children who complete their 10 or 12 books will be rewarded when they are treated to the first performance of a Goodman Players touring company, "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew." It will be at 10 a.m., Oct. 10, in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and promises to be a very entertaining and fun-filled children's play.

FOR SUGGESTIONS on good and new summer reading, the children's librarian has put out a monthly newsletter which can be picked up at the library. After some general news, it contains an annotated list of new books the children's room has acquired. By the way, Mrs. Miller, the children's librarian, has said several children have left their personal books at the library and have been called to pick them up. If these books are not picked up soon, they will become part of the permanent collection. A few other things have been left in the children's room and can be claimed by their owners, but Mrs. Miller said she isn't saving the piece of cheese and half eaten graham cracker bookmarkers she found recently.

There was another folk-sing last Wednesday afternoon led again by Miss Bryan Miller. A participating audience of 50, from adults to an 18-month old baby, deal, making the second folk sing another reportedly enjoyed themselves a great success.

FIVE JUNIOR HIGH volunteer girls are now helping with shelving in the children's room. Karen Mokate and Jessica Presperin have been helping for the better part of the summer. More recently, Sandy Skelink, Meg Marquette, and Lynn Renchette have volunteered their time. Naturally, this help is much appreciated by the library staff.

The children's room has a locked mini-display case, similar to that in the main entrance to the library, where children may display things of their own, like collections, hobby displays, art work, etc. Currently, Kathie Schreiber and Terri Wilkin from Lyons Park School have an exhibit on Illinois there. Children may inquire at the desk about using the case.

Don't forget to remind your children about the reading club deadline, absolutely September 1. Library hours are 9-9 weekdays and 9-5 Saturdays, but they will soon start their school year hours by being open also on Sundays 2-5.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Vallrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

Construction Site

Hit By Vandalism

A cement mixer, located at the construction site of Forest View Grade School in Mount Prospect, was extensively damaged by vandals last week.

A foreman for W. F. Fitzsimmons, the general contractor for the project, told Mount Prospect police vandals damaged the tub and paddles on a motor mixer, disconnected spark plugs, wire connectors and fuel lines and poured sand into the gas tank.

The foreman told police this was the second time within the week vandals damaged construction equipment and property at the school, Estates Drive just west of Busse Road.

There was no estimate on the amount of damage to the mixer.

Loud Speaker Falls;

Hits Woman On Head

A 30-year-old Palatine woman suffered minor injuries Friday following an accident and Butch McGuire's Pub, 300 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Patricia Fenlon, of 61 S. Winston St., was injured when a loud speaker fell from its mounting and hit her on the head and shoulder.

Mrs. Fenlon was taken by Mount Prospect firemen to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines where she was treated and released.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

Hydrants To Get New Color Codes

The fire hydrants in Mount Prospect will not only get a new coat of paint this year, but the traditional color red will be replaced with combinations of green, yellow and red.

Fire Chief Larry Pairitz said the 3,500 or more fire hydrants in the village will be repainted with a luminescent yellow paint. Fire hydrant caps will be color coded to indicate the amount of water available for firefighting at each hydrant.

"The caps on the hydrants will be painted with different colors according to the size of the water main which supplies the hydrant. Red will indicate four to six-inch water mains, yellow for eight-inch mains and green for any size over eight inches," Pairitz explained.

"The color-coded caps will be an indication of the amount of water firemen can expect from the hydrant. This is a simple system which is used by many fire departments for quick recognition of available water supplies.

"Firemen can anticipate almost an unlimited water supply from 10 and 12-inch mains, while four to six-inch mains supply a limited amount of water," he said.

IN ADDITION TO the color-coded caps, the basic color of the hydrants will be switched from red to yellow for easier recognition. "Yellow is considered one of the most visible colors, while red is one of the worst colors, second only to black. A red fire hydrant isn't as easily visible as most people think it is," he said.

"I don't know why the color red was originally painted on fire hydrants. This has always been the tradition but I don't know the reason behind it."

Pairitz said the color coding will start as soon as possible, probably around Sept. 1, and the basic color change from red to yellow will be completed following the color coding. Pairitz said he hopes all the caps will be repainted this year, while completion of repainting the 3,500 or more fire hydrants will depend on the weather.

New School Is 'Rolling Meadows H. S.'

by TOM WELLMAN

It's "Rolling Meadows High School." Before an angry and enthusiastic crowd of perhaps 200 residents of Rolling Meadows, the High School District 214 Board last night voted unanimously to finally and officially name the district's seventh high school.

After a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion held in the Prospect High School Theater because the Rolling Meadows residents had overflowed the district's normal meeting room, board member Leah Cummins moved that Rolling Meadows High School be approved.

The room fell silent as each board member voted yes. Before the vote was taken, a variety of civic leaders from the community repeated their request which had been presented to the board twice in the last 10 months to name the school after the community.

Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, said that he realized only a slight majority of the students at the new high school might be from Rolling Meadows. He said, however, that a majority vote of those students would indicate support for the Rolling Meadows name.

Thomas Walbron, an alderman from the community, and Mrs. Joan Meyer, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, repeated the request for the naming.

Of the ten to fifteen persons who spoke from the audience, only one suggestion was made that a name other than Rolling Meadows High School, or Meadows High School should be selected.

The large group, which arrived at 7:30 wielding three placards brought about the shift in the meeting location from 799 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect to Prospect High School after they had filled the administration building's meeting room.

At 7:30, when the meeting was due to begin, Board Chairman Richard Bachhuber ordered the placards to be removed from the board's meeting room. Some of the citizens resisted. "Aren't we taxpayers?" said one man.

Bachhuber said that he was responsible for the conduct of the meeting and the placards were removed. Meanwhile, district officials contacted school officials at Prospect and they opened the high school theater.

After the vote had been taken and it was indeed official that at last the new school in Rolling Meadows had a name

Carnival Coming To St. Zachary's

Whirling, swirling lights, the callopie music of the turning wooden horses, children eating hot dogs and smiling at the noise and bustle.

It's carnival night, and it's in Des Plaines.

Sponsored by St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin, the carnival will be held for four nights this week in the church's rear parking lot.

Days and times are Thursday and Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Biggest ride will be the Tempest. This ride was described as being a pole, with another pole attached to it, with two cars another pole attached to it, with two cars attached to that. "Then they all whirl around together," according to St. Zachary recreation committee chairman Norm Tuccy.

FOUR OTHER RIDES will be available. They are the tilt-a-whirl, a kind of a revolving spinning device, a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and a children's ride.

Food will include barbecue beef sandwiches, hot dogs and corn on the cob. The food will be cooked by parish families under the coordination of the Food committee, led by Mrs. Carole Tuccy.

Seven or eight skill booths will be set up by parishioners. These will include tic-tac-toe games, ring tosses, ball throw and aim-games, Tuccy said.

About 1,000 people are expected, and everyone is invited, Tuccy said. The parish has about 2,000 families from both Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The idea for the carnival came from church members, including Mary Ann Sobeski and Mary Ann Pasterick, Tuccy said.

"The idea was to bring people together," he said.

CHURCH MEMBERS ALSO wanted to get the whole parish involved in church activities. The third reason was the desire to raise money.

This money will be used for the educational fund for the St. Zachary school.

Other members of the entertainment committee are Charles Wolf, vice-chairman, and Mary Ellen Green, secretary.

Rare Poplar Trees Damaged By Vandals

About 12 Silver Poplar Bonsai trees, valued at more than $300, were damaged extensively by vandals last week in Mount Prospect.

Brad VanDerhel, a classified research scientist, told Mount Prospect police the Silver Poplars, rare specimens of the Bonsai tree, were damaged by vandals who apparently used wood screws to destroy the bark on the trees.

Injured In Auto Sideswipe

Sam Sarwer, 50, of Mount Prospect, suffered minor injuries last week when his auto was sideswiped by another auto on Wolf Rd. near Thayer St. in Mount Prospect.

Sarwer, of 1818 Catalpa Ln., was transported by Mount Prospect firemen to Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, where he was treated and released.

Police said Sarwer's auto was sideswiped by an auto driven by Peter Lynne, 42, of Wheeling, Ill., 4418 E. Mors Ave., was charged by police with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Lynne, who was apparently not injured in the collision, is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect court Sept. 30.

Licensing Rule Rapped

A special subcommittee of the Illinois Racing Board yesterday heard several objections to the proposed rule regarding the licensing of "all officers, directors and substantial owners" of Illinois race tracks.

W. S. Miller, former racing board chairman and current president of Balmoral Park and Chicago Downs Race Track, objected strenuously to the board's proposal that "every person, trust or foundation owning five per cent or more of the equity of the applicant for racing dates" shall be required to be licensed by the board prior to the granting of racing dates.

"This board should be interested in the officers and directors of a track, not anyone who only owns five per cent," Miller said.

Miller said that when he was on the board a case came up concerning someone who had a partial ownership in Arlington Park Race Track. Miller said the attorney general's office at the time held that a track operator could do nothing about an undesirable person who had a financial interest in the local race track.

ALBERT E. Jenner Jr., attorney for Gulf and Western, and Frank Riley, and Newton W. Mandel, representing Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) raised several objections to the proposal and offered alternative plans. CTE, an offshot company of Transnation which is a part of Gulf and Western, owns and operates Arlington and Washington Park race tracks.

Riley said the power of the board is limited by the power granted to it by the legislature. Riley said CTE has no objections to the licensing of officers and directors or anyone else involved in the day-to-day operations of the tracks.

Reading from the statute, he said, the board "shall have no right" to determine, through its licensing procedure, the officers or directors of a track "other than those directly involved in the actual running of races."

STATE'S ATTORNEY Robert Maloney countered with another section of the law which he said gives the board "implied power" to properly carry out fully the best interests of racing.

Mandel said, "The board has the right and obligation to supervise racing in the state of Illinois. The board presently has sufficient power to see to it that the proper people are involved in racing — to keep the undesirable elements out by denying a license."

He noted that under the proposal, 53 applications would have to be filed by persons in CTE, Transnation and Gulf and Western. "The board would spend all its time checking out people all over the world," Mandel said.

Mandel said that while the board should have power over those who run the track, it should have "no power to license those who run the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, the gas station or a proposed shopping center."

Riley, Mandel and Jenner also objected to another section of the proposal that would require the applicant to "bear the expense of any inquiry into the applicants financial integrity and moral responsibility to participate in racing in Illinois."

RILEY SAID it is "unreasonable for the board to have carte blanche authority to spend unlimited funds" of the applicant. He added that he feels the board has no right to charge more than $10 as provided for in the existing state statute.

Riley said, "It's none of the board's business how many times I kiss my wife."

Jenner then took issue with another portion of the proposal that states, "A licensee's ownership of an interest in a gaming operation, whether or not permitted by another jurisdiction, shall be considered inconsistent with the standards of conduct expected of participating in racing in Illinois, and be grounds for denial of application."

Jenner said the board's definition of "gaming" is such that it would exclude from racing anyone that operated a track in another state. He also pointed out that Gulf and Western has a six-tenths of one per cent interest in Resorts International, a firm which has as part of its business the operation of gambling casinos in the Bahamas.

He emphasized that this stock is unregistered "investment stock" and under the law, cannot be disposed of by Gulf and Western at this time.

A regular meeting of the board is scheduled today at 10 a.m. A member of the subcommittee said the board will consider yesterday's testimony and may make a decision on the proposed rule today. A decision is scheduled to be made by Sept. 1.

Win at Bridge

OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 80th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the America's Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd fives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1935. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team:

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

Cable Car Clangs To Town

by MURRAY DUBIN

Clang, clang, clang. Clanging down Campbell Street, ringing your way left, past the no left turn sign on Vail Avenue, chiming through the Jewel parking lot with amazed faces registering disbelief.

Hold onto the rail for dear life as the cable car zips around. It's suddenly San Francisco and the streets are a roller coaster, rolling up and down like your stomach.

But it's really Arlington Heights and the smell of the wharves disappears as the police cadet looks on menacingly. There aren't any no-left-turn signs in San Francisco.

Clang, clang, clang. Dennis Sanfilippo and Bennie Sharpe brought a little bit of San Francisco with them last week when they arrived in Arlington Heights driving a cable car replica.

SANFILIPPO, representing California Parlor Car Tours, started his promotional drive across the country eight days ago. Along with him is Bennie Sharpe, a representative of Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii.

Clang, clang, clang. It's a funmobile that seats about 30 laughing people and has room for others if they hang on to the poles, stick their heads out the car's open sides, and make funny faces to passing motorists and surprised old people.

That cop won't give us a ticket, will he?

Travel posters and bumper stickers make the brown, red and green cable car without a cable look like a noisy, ringing rainbow, complete with a Ford Chassis.

Clang, clang, clang. "We've met the backbone of America," the 22-year-old Sanfilippo said. "Yeh, we've seen every gas station attendant on Route 80," he added.

THAT COP KEEPS staring at us. The next stop for the transcontinental cable car is Michigan, and visits to travel agencies and others who may be interested in cable car tours to California.

The $20,000 six-eighths scale cable car attracts gawkers wherever it goes and Arlington Heights was no different as downtown shoppers looked up from their chagrin, at no left turn sign and stared at the strange moving conveyance.

Whew, the cop left. Clang, clang, clang.

Registration Begins In Dist. 57

Registration for all new pupils in School Dist. 57 will begin today and run through Thursday, Aug. 27. All children eligible to attend the elementary grades this fall who have not yet registered should do so between the hours of 9 a.m. and noon and 1 to 3 p.m. at the school they will attend.

To be eligible for admission to kindergarten this fall a child must be 5 years old by Dec. 1. The child's birth certificate, hospital record or baptismal record must be presented at the time he is registered. A child must be 6 years old by Dec. 1 to register for the first grade.

Schools which will offer kindergarten classes for Dist. 57 are Busse, Fairview, Gregory, Lions Park, Sunset Park and Westbrook.

JUNIOR HIGH registration will be held on the same dates at the same times at Lincoln Junior High School.

Dist. 57 officials urge students to bring report cards from last year to speed up the registration process.

Teachers will report to their schools for workshops on Friday, Sept. 4, and the first day of classes will be Tuesday, Sept. 8.

ANA MARIA RAMON

U.S. Impresses Ana Maria

by DAVE PALERMO

If Ana Maria Ramon maintains her pleasant smile, polite manner and genuine curiosity, she shouldn't find the transition from Argentina to America too difficult.

Ana, 17, will be in America for one year, attending Prospect High School during her stay. She is one of thousands of foreign students who will be studying in the United States this year as part of the American Field Service program.

An attractive, dark-complected girl with long, brown hair, Ana tends to understate her mastery of the English language. She speaks haltingly, but clearly, breaking out into a blushing smile the few times she has to stop and think of the correct word or phrase to use.

It doesn't take long during the conversation for the real Ana to break through the thin language barrier. Her perception, intelligence and good-naturedness are universally accepted and appreciated characteristics.

"I always wanted to come to America," she said, sitting in the living room at the home of Donald Holm, 102 N. Evanston St. in Arlington Heights. She'll be staying at the Holm's residence throughout her visit in the United States.

"I READ ABOUT America all the time in Argentina. But in America there is nothing to read about Argentina," she said.

Ana said the large amount of publicity given to the United States and associations she had with Americans living in Argentina prepared her for her stay in this country.

But her eyes still widen when she speaks of the "many automobiles," "big breakfasts" and large high schools which made a big impression on her during her first week in this country.

She arrived from New York last Wednesday. The Holm's 17-year-old daughter, Carol, threw a party in her honor Friday.

"She really impressed everybody," said Carol. "They all said what a great girl she was and how lucky I was that she was staying with us. She talked to everybody all night."

In Argentina Ana studied most every subject from organic chemistry and physics to geography and geometry. At Prospect High School she'll be studying English and history as well as French.

ALTHOUGH SHE hasn't gotten a chance to develop her first case of homesickness, she still writes long letters to her family, friends and relatives in Argentina. She grew up in San Rafael in the province of Mendoza.

Mendoza is famous for its wines, and Ana readily admits a fondness for the festivals often held in her native country.

"They have snow festivals, wine festivals, olive festivals and fruit festivals. Wine in my country is the most important, most beautiful thing," she adds, wide-eyed and smiling.

She hopes that she can take up two of her most-loved activities, horseback riding and tennis, during her stay.

"I have always thought about playing tennis, but I was never very good about it because you don't have time for other things while you go to school in Argentina. I hope to learn how to play better here," she said.

ANA CAME FROM an all-girl school of 800 pupils. She is anxious to find out what it's like to attend a co-ed high school.

Her reasons for coming to America lend insight to the kind of girl Ana is. "I think it is important that young people from here, and from my country, get together and understand each other," she said. "It is important for young people to know and understand each other for soon we shall have the responsibility for our countries. In knowing we can understand," she said.

Rejection Of Contract Urged

The Dist. 50 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 300 teachers reject the contract proposal of the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting as the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8. "The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated.

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated.

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Walkman had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $200,000. Walkman has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 50 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contract. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,000. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Walkman, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

WALTMAN TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

Decision On Rob Roy Seen Soon

A special meeting of the Mount Prospect Village Board will be held Sept. 8 to determine the fate of the Rob Roy Driving Range, Mayor Robert Teichert announced yesterday.

"We've been waiting for the plan commission's recommendation on the project for a long time, and I see no reason to delay a decision any further. I expect a decision on the case will be made at the special board meeting," he said.

The plan commission voted last week to turn down a request from Kenroy Builders, Inc. to build a $24 million planned unit development for the Rob Roy Driving Range on Euclid Avenue near Wolf Road.

"I'm not happy or unhappy about the plan commission's decision on the case. I'm just happy a decision was finally made by the commission," Teichert said.

"I DON'T SEE ANY reason to postpone a decision on the case, and I hope the board does its homework before the special meeting Sept. 8, so a decision can be reached at this time. I think Kenroy's request is a reasonable one which does not warrant additional delay. This is a straight forward request for annexation and rezoning," Teichert said.

"If Mount Prospect doesn't want Kenroy in the village, then let's tell them. If we want them in the village, then let's say so, but I think the builders have a right to know the decision one way or the other."

"Let's vote to annex and rezone or let them build in the county. I think there's been a considerable delay already in reaching a decision on Rob Roy. Kenroy demanded a decision from the plan commission, and I think the builders have every right to demand a recommendation one way or the other," Teichert said.

"WHETHER THE DECISION is for or against the petitioner is not as critical as the fact that he doesn't get an opinion on his request in a reasonably prompt amount of time. I'm not criticizing any one in particular but the entire administration across the board. I just don't think we can keep a petitioner waiting month after month for a decision, especially when a decision in Mount Prospect takes six months to a year," he said.

Teichert said Kenroy builders indicated they'd prefer to build the planned unit development in the village, rather than in the county, but the builders couldn't afford another two-year delay with negotiations.

"It took about two years before the village approved the Kenroy planned unit development at Rt. 83 and Dempster Street. Builders just can't afford to wait months for a decision, when the price of land and the cost of building materials keep climbing. I think every builder is entitled to a prompt decision on his request," Teichert explained.

KENROY PLANS TO build 624 apartment units and 130 townhouses on the 37-acre parcel of land located in the county. Two six-story and three four-story buildings will be constructed in a Y-shaped layout. If the village board denies the Kenroy request, the builders may still build in the county, since zoning approval has already been granted.

"The village board is responsible for the growth around Mount Prospect by its action or inaction. I've told the trustees that vacant land in the county will not remain vacant just because Mount Prospect doesn't approve the development. Directly or indirectly, we'll be responsible for the development of vacant land around the village," Teichert said.

"The negotiations over the Kenroy project started in May, and I don't know why builders just don't build in the county and then talk to us later. It would be easier for everyone, especially when Mount Prospect can't make a decision of its own within a reasonable amount of time," Teichert said.

FAA Probes Crash Of Light Plane

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports."

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Youth Charged On Drug Count

A 15-year-old Mount Prospect boy Thursday was charged by police with possession of marijuana and dangerous drugs after he was arrested at Meadows Park.

Police said a small bag filled with marijuana and five marijuana tablets were found in the youth's possession. Police notified the boy's parents. The youth is scheduled to appear in juvenile court Sept. 11.

Scouts Attend Ranch Camp

Three Mount Prospect youngsters are among 10 Northwest suburban Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts currently participating in a 12-day expedition at the Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base in Cimarron, N.M.

The three are Dale Baldwin, Doug Klaus and Bill Bethell, all from Troop 23. The group's Ranger is instructing them in wilderness cookery, backpacking, hiking techniques, and compass and map use. After three days with their Ranger, the expedition will continue following mountain trails on the 214-square mile ranch with their own adult leader.

While on the trail, the scouts can participate in programs offered in 21 mountain camps by members of Philmont's 400-man staff. These programs include burro packing, horseback riding, gold panning, mining, archaeological study and advanced mountaineering.

After the opening campfire at which the "New Mexico Story" was narrated, the scouts left camping headquarters and moved to their mountain starting camp in the Sangre de Cristo range of the Rocky Mountains.

From the Library

Kids' Last Chance

by LAURIE ROSSI

The very last chance children who are participating in the Mount Prospect Public Library's summer reading program have for turning in their book report sheets is September 1. As it must be with any project this large, no exceptions can be made for people with late reports, so it is very important for children to realize that the deadline is very soon.

The exact number of books required for each age group must be read in order to qualify for the play tickets, so have your children check at the library if they are in doubt about how many books they have read and reported on so far. Occasionally children think they have read more than they really have. It is also a possibility that some books were read and the reports were misplaced by the child or just never handed in. Some reports have been found inside of the library books. In the cases where they were accidentally found, the librarians turned them in for credit. However, they understandably cannot search through all the books for lost reports.

OF THE 1217 children who registered for the program this summer, only 272 have finished so far, and about 150 are within one or two books of finishing. Some have done even more than their share. One girl in the lower grades has read and reported on thirty-one books, and a first grader has read sixteen.

are treated to the first performance of a Goodman Players touring company, "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew." It will be at 10 a.m., Oct. 10, in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and promises to be a very entertaining and fun-filled children's play.

FOR SUGGESTIONS on good and new summer reading, the children's librarian has put out a monthly newsletter which can be picked up at the library. After some general news, it contains an annotated list of new books the children's room has acquired. By the way, Mrs. Miller, the children's librarian, has said several children have left their personal books at the library and have been called to pick them up. If these books are not picked up soon, they will become part of the permanent collection. A few other things have been left in the children's room and can be claimed by their owners, but Mrs. Miller said she isn't saving the piece of cheese and half eaten graham cracker bookmarkers she found recently.

There was another folk-sing last Wednesday afternoon led again by Miss Bryan Miller. A participating audience of 50, from adults to an 18-month old baby, deal, making the second folk sing another reportedly enjoyed themselves a great or success.

FIVE JUNIOR HIGH volunteer girls are now helping with shelving in the children's room. Karen Mokate and Jessica Prosperin have been helping for the better part of the summer. More recently, Sandy Skelink, Meg Marquette, and Lynn Renchette have volunteered their time. Naturally, this help is much appreciated by the library staff.

The children's room has a locked mini-display case, similar to that in the main entrance to the library, where children may display things of their own, like collections, hobby displays, art work, etc. Currently, Kathie Schreiner and Terri Wilkin from Lyons Park School have an exhibit on Illinois there. Children may inquire at the desk about using the case.

Don't forget to remind your children about the reading club deadline, absolutely September 1. Library hours are 9-4 weekdays and 9-5 Saturdays, but they will soon start their school year hours by being open also on Sundays 2-5.

Mount Prospect Boy Hurt By Pellet Gun

A 14-year-old Mount Prospect boy was listed in fair condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights following surgery Saturday to remove a pellet from his eye.

Glenn Bourassa, of 718 N. Fairview St., was hit in the eye with a pellet from a B-B gun, while playing in a field near Meadows Park.

Mount Prospect police said several youths were playing in the field when the accident occurred. Bourassa was apparently hit in the eye with a pellet from gun fired by an unidentified youth.

Better Government Group Praises Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Vallrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as on West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

Construction Site Hit By Vandalism

A cement mixer, located at the construction site of Forest View Grade School in Mount Prospect, was extensively damaged by vandals last week.

A foreman for W. F. Fitzsimmons, the general contractor for the project, told Mount Prospect police vandals damaged the tub and paddles on a motor mixer, disconnected spark plugs, wire connectors and fuel lines and poured sand into the gas tank.

The foreman told police this was the second time within the week vandals damaged construction equipment and property at the school, Estates Drive just west of Busse Road.

There was no estimate on the amount of damage to the mixer.

Loud Speaker Falls; Hits Woman On Head

A 30-year-old Palatine woman suffered minor injuries Friday following an accident and Butch McGuire's Pub, 300 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Patricia Fenlon, of 41 S. Winston St., was injured when a loud speaker fell from its mounting and hit her on the head and shoulder.

Mrs. Fenlon was taken by Mount Prospect firemen to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines where she was treated and released.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

Hydrants To Get New Color Codes

The fire hydrants in Mount Prospect will not only get a new coat of paint this year, but the traditional color red will be replaced with combinations of green, yellow and red.

Fire Chief Larry Pairitz said the 3,500 or more fire hydrants in the village will be repainted with a luminescent yellow paint. Fire hydrant caps will be color coded to indicate the amount of water available for firefighting at each hydrant.

"The caps on the hydrants will be painted with different colors according to the size of the water main which supplies the hydrant. Red will indicate four to six-inch water mains, yellow for eight-inch mains and green for any size over eight inches," Pairitz explained.

"The color-coded caps will be an indication of the amount of water firemen can expect from the hydrant. This is a simple system which is used by many fire departments for quick recognition of available water supplies.

"Firemen can anticipate almost an unlimited water supply from 10 and 12-inch mains, while four to six-inch mains supply a limited amount of water," he said.

IN ADDITION TO the color-coded caps, the basic color of the hydrants will be switched from red to yellow for easier recognition. "Yellow is considered one of the most visible colors, while red is one of the worst colors, second only to black. A red fire hydrant isn't as easily visible as most people think it is," he said.

"I don't know why the color red was originally painted on fire hydrants. This has always been the tradition but I don't know the reason behind it."

Pairitz said the color coding will start as soon as possible, probably around Sept. 1, and the basic color change from red to yellow will be completed following the color coding. Pairitz said he hopes all the caps will be repainted this year, while completion of repainting the 3,500 or more fire hydrants will depend on the weather.

New School Is 'Rolling Meadows H.S.'

by TOM WELLMAN

It's "Rolling Meadows High School." Before an angry and enthusiastic crowd of perhaps 200 residents of Rolling Meadows, the High School District 214 Board last night voted unanimously to finally and officially name the district's seventh high school.

After a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion held in the Prospect High School Theater because the Rolling Meadows residents had overflowed the district's normal meeting room, board member Leah Cummins moved that Rolling Meadows High School be approved.

The room fell silent as each board member voted yes. Before the vote was taken, a variety of civic leaders from the community repeated their request which had been presented to the board twice in the last 10 months to name the school after the community.

Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, said that he realized only a slight majority of the students at the new high school might be from Rolling Meadows. He said, however, that a majority vote of those students would indicate support for the Rolling Meadows name.

Thomas Walbron, an alderman from the community, and Mrs. Joan Meyer, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, repeated the request for the naming.

Of the ten to fifteen persons who spoke from the audience, only one suggestion was made that a name other than Rolling Meadows High School, or Meadows High School should be selected.

The large group, which arrived at 7:30 wielding three placards brought about the shift in the meeting location from 799 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect to Prospect High School after they had filled the administration building's meeting room.

At 7:30, when the meeting was due to begin, Board Chairman Richard Bachhuber ordered the placards to be removed from the board's meeting room. Some of the citizens resisted. "Aren't we taxpayers?" said one man.

Bachhuber said that he was responsible for the conduct of the meeting and the placards were removed. Meanwhile, district officials contacted school officials at Prospect and they opened the high school theater.

After the vote had been taken and it was indeed official that at last the new school in Rolling Meadows had a name that was satisfactory to the citizens of Rolling Meadows, board member Jack Costello said what the residents had fought was not hostility on the part of the board. He said it was important that the residents recognized that it was not necessary for them to make demands of their school board.

The new name of the high school will go officially into effect when the minutes of last night's meeting are approved at the first board meeting in September.

New School Is 'Rolling Meadows H. S.'

by TOM WELLMAN
It's "Rolling Meadows High School." Before an angry and enthusiastic crowd of perhaps 200 residents of Rolling Meadows, the High School District 214 Board last night voted unanimously to finally and officially name the district's seventh high school.

After a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion held in the Prospect High School Theater because the Rolling Meadows residents had overflowed the district's normal meeting room, board member Leah Cummins moved that Rolling Meadows High School be approved.

The room fell silent as each board member voted yes. Before the vote was taken, a variety of civic leaders from the community repeated their request which had been presented to the board twice in the last 10 months to name the school after the community.

Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, said that he realized only a slight majority of the students at the new high school might be from Rolling Meadows. He said, however, that a majority vote of these students would indicate support for the Rolling Meadows name.

Thomas Walbron, an alderman from the community, and Mrs. Joan Meyer, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, repeated the request for the naming.

Of the ten to fifteen persons who spoke from the audience, only one suggestion was made that a name other than Rolling Meadows High School, or Meadows High School should be selected.

The large group, which arrived at 7:30 yielding three placards brought about the shift in the meeting location from 799 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect to Prospect High School after they had filled the administration building's meeting room.

At 7:30, when the meeting was due to begin, Board Chairman Richard Bachhuber ordered the placards to be removed from the board's meeting room. Some of the citizens resisted. "Aren't we taxpayers?" said one man.

Bachhuber said that he was responsible for the conduct of the meeting and the placards were removed. Meanwhile, district officials contacted school officials at Prospect and they opened the high school theater.

After the vote had been taken and it was indeed official that at last the new school in Rolling Meadows had a name that was satisfactory to the citizens of Rolling Meadows, board member Jack Costello said what the residents had fought was not hostility on the part of the board. He said it was important that the residents recognized that it was not necessary for them to make demands of their school board.

The new name of the high school will go officially into effect when the minutes of last night's meeting are approved at the first board meeting in September.

One of the reasons for the large turnout of residents from Rolling Meadows was a fear that the new building, scheduled to be completed in September 1971, might be named partially after another town (for example, Arlington West High School) or after a national leader. Most of those who attended said the community almost completely supported Rolling Meadows or Meadows High School.

THE QUESTION IS, who's watching whom more intently? Two boys watched two lions during the setting-up operations yesterday of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus which was sponsored by the Elks Lodge. The circus employees folded up their tents last night and went to Aurora for another show.

A Fun-filled Day At The Circus?

by LINDA PUNCH

A thrill a minute. And my two-year-old niece Kelly loved it.

But we hadn't reached the circus tent yet.

Parking the car proved to be one of the highlights of the afternoon for Kelly. While I struggled to get the car down the steep side of the frontage road and through a rutted field, my niece jumped up and down to the roller coaster rhythm of the car.

I was beginning to wonder if I really wanted to take my niece to her first circus. My sister seemed to share my doubts as nephew Kevin threw up on her dress.

Our spirits renewed as we finished the long trek from the parking lot and heard the colorful spiel from the sideshow Barker.

"Come and see Serpentina, the world's youngest snake lady. See the wild lions and elephants. The babies are free. Right Kelly wanted a snow cone. She was impressed when the "kitty" stood on its hind legs but she was more interested in the roustabouts setting up equipment for the next act.

Don Marco, the man who stands on one finger, may be unbelievable as the program states. My sister and I were too busy to notice. We were wiping a snow cone off her dress.

Once again I wondered if Kelly was old enough to appreciate the thrills of the big top. Besides that, the coke vendor was taking an awful lot of interest in us.

WE HAD A strong urge to leave, but the dog act came out and Kelly was getting involved. As each dog bounced out dressed in a different costume, her eyes widened and she'd cry out "Two more."

We have never found an exact trans-

Elks Here Meet The Elephants

The Elks met the elephant during the 8 p.m. show at the circus last night.

Four top officers of the Elks' Lodge 2048 which sponsored the circus rode an elephant during the beginning of the circus' second show.

Atop the elephant were Jerry Dittman, Exalted Ruler; Wayne Wilkins, Leading Knight; David Smith, Loyal Knight; and Brian Jacobsen, Lecturing Knight.

All four officers are residents of Arlington Heights.

alert, she had spotted a stand selling stuffed animals.

Somehow we diverted her attention and headed towards the circus tent.

We were greeted by a ticket taker who informed us our complimentary tickets had a slight tax. My sister went back to pay the tax while I stood loaded down with Kelly, two purses and a doll Kelly had invited along.

THE USHERETTE who showed us to our seats was very friendly and had carried on a conversation with Kelly and Kevin. She later turned up as an elephant rider. Kelly didn't notice.

The show opened with a lion tamer act.

Kelly wanted a snow cone. She was impressed when the "kitty" stood on its hind legs but she was more interested in the roustabouts setting up equipment for the next act.

Don Marco, the man who stands on one finger, may be unbelievable as the program states. My sister and I were too busy to notice. We were wiping a snow cone off her dress.

Once again I wondered if Kelly was old enough to appreciate the thrills of the big top. Besides that, the coke vendor was taking an awful lot of interest in us.

WE HAD A strong urge to leave, but the dog act came out and Kelly was getting involved. As each dog bounced out dressed in a different costume, her eyes widened and she'd cry out "Two more."

We have never found an exact translation for "two more" but it's Kelly's way of expressing pleasure. We decided to brave the amorous coke vendor.

The horse act was also a hit with Kelly. She commented on the "shoes and socks" the big white-stockinged horses wore.

The Appolos, a flying trapeze act, was great. Kelly didn't notice. Aballoon vendor had walked into sight and she wanted one.

I WAS FISHING in my purse for fifty cents when the Appolos did their daring triple somersault.

The performance finally ended and we began filing out of the tent. We circled wide around the coke vendor and tried to sneak past the souvenir stand before Kelly saw something else she couldn't live without.

Setting Up Circus Is No One-Man Job

by WANDALYN RICE

The large red trucks with yellow lettering lurches across the field.

An elephant, responding slowly to its trainer, hauled on one of the cables to raise the Big Top.

Lions and tigers paced in their cages while a camel slept on the grass.

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus was getting ready to play for one day in Arlington Heights.

Watching the preparations, a young, bearded man resembling a college professor explained the activity. "No one who works with elephants ever stands in front of them. Sometime they may decide to take off and elephants don't have very good brakes."

THE MAN IS Bob Hoover, chief electrician for the circus. He joined the troop in March, leaving his studies of electrical engineering at the University of Southern Florida.

"I didn't really run away to join the circus. I was thinking of this as a job for the summer and was going to go back for my masters. But I don't need a masters, I'm doing just fine," he said.

Hoover walked slowly to the refreshment truck. "I like traveling. I think I'll stay with the circus."

Roustabouts, most of them college students working for the summer, wrestled with the tent poles.

A young man with curly blonde hair stopped in his work. "I'm a student at Ann Arbor. I've been here about 16 days and I'm getting tired of it, but there are some strange people here."

Most of the performers were asleep and the morning belonged to the backstage workers. They had started at 5 a.m. setting up stakes for the Big Top.

CHILDREN RODE THEIR bicycles onto the field, looking for work at the circus. "In Connecticut we gave away 193 tickets to kids who helped set up. They don't do much, but it makes them feel good to earn something," Hoover said.

Each day the cook truck stops at gr-cery stores to buy food for the 200 performers and workers, and every night the circus pulls out for the next stop.

On Sunday the circus had played at Oak Park, then moved to Arlington Heights. "I don't think there is one truck that didn't get lost," one man said.

The trucks left Oak Park and planned to follow a route marked out by an advance man. "But he didn't do a very good job marking the route, and trucks were going every which way. It reminded me of the movie 'It's a Mad Mad World,'" Hoover said.

Traveling with the animals can be exciting, too. Hoover said he took one truck through an inspection station and "the guy was looking around the truck when he saw a tiger's face looking down at him. He asked me what it was and I told him 'It's a tiger.'"

BY 10:30 A.M. THE Big Top was almost up, the highwire was being rigged and the wild animal cages were being moved in.

Children gathered around the dozen elephants tethered near some trucks.

And the circus was almost ready.

Schedule Blackout In Arlington Area

Some Arlington Heights residents will find themselves without electricity tomorrow morning.

According to W. C. Lambert, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison, the area from Rand Road and Oakton Street, west to Drury Lane, north to Olive Street and south to Euclid Avenue will be without power from 9 to 9:45 a.m.

From 10 a.m. to 10:30 the area from Drury Lane and Oakton Street to two blocks west and south to Euclid will be blacked out.

The power blackout is because the company is switching the area from 4,000 volts of power to 12,000 volts, Lambert said.

ELEPHANTS TO THE right of me, elephants to the left of me, elephants all around me... Setting up its own natural roadblock, one ponderous pachyderm of yesterday's circus in Arlington Heights gets his nose in the way of a circus employee. The Elks Club sponsored the performance.

Licensing Rule Rapped

A special subcommittee of the Illinois Racing Board yesterday heard several objections to the proposed rule regarding the licensing of "all officers, directors and substantial owners" of Illinois race tracks.

W. S. Miller, former racing board chairman and current president of Balmoral Park and Chicago Downs Race Track, objected strenuously to the board's proposal that "every person, trust or foundation owning five per cent or more of the equity of the applicant for racing dates" shall be required to be licensed by the board prior to the granting of racing dates.

"This board should be interested in the officers and directors of a track, not anyone who only owns five per cent," Miller said.

Miller said that when he was on the board a case came up concerning someone who had a partial ownership in Arlington Park Race Track. Miller said the attorney general's office at the time held that a track operator could do nothing about an undesirable person who had a financial interest in the local race track.

ALBERT E. Jenner Jr., attorney for Gulf and Western; and Frank Riley; and Newton W. Mandel, representing Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) raised several objections to the proposal and offered alternative plans. CTE, an offshoot company of Transnation which is a part of Gulf and Western, owns and operates Arlington and Washington Park race tracks.

Riley said the power of the board is limited by the power granted to it by the legislature. Riley said CTE has no objections to the licensing of officers and directors or anyone else involved in the day-to-day operations of the tracks.

Reading from the statute, he said, the board "shall have no right" to determine, through its licensing procedure, the officers or directors of a track "other than those directly involved in the actual running of races."

STATE'S ATTORNEY Robert Maloney countered with another section of the law which he said gives the board "implied power" to properly carry out fully the best interests of racing.

Mandel said, "The board has the right and obligation to supervise racing in the state of Illinois. The board presently has sufficient power to see to it that the proper people are involved in racing — to keep the undesirable elements out by denying a license."

He noted that under the proposal, 33 applications would have to be filed by persons in CTE, Transnation and Gulf and Western. "The board would spend all its time checking out people all over the world," Mandel said.

Mandel said that while the board should have power over those who run the track, it should have "no power to license those who run the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, the gas station or a proposed shopping center."

Riley, Mandel and Jenner also objected to another section of the proposal that would require the applicant to "bear the expense of any inquiry into the applicants financial integrity and moral responsibility to participate in racing in Illinois."

RILEY SAID it is "unreasonable for the board to have carte blanche authority to spend unlimited funds" of the applicant. He added that he feels the board has no right to charge more than $10 as provided for in the existing state statute. Riley said, "It's none of the board's business how many times I kiss my wife."

Jenner then took issue with another portion of the proposal that states, "A licensee's ownership of an interest in a gaming operation, whether or not permitted by another jurisdiction, shall be considered inconsistent with the standards of conduct expected of participating in racing in Illinois, and he grounds for denial of application."

Jenner said the board's definition of "gaming" is such that it would exclude from racing anyone that operated a track in another state. He also pointed out that Gulf and Western has a six-tenths of one per cent interest in Resorts International, a firm which has as part of its business the operation of gambling casinos in the Bahamas.

He emphasized that this stock is unregistered "investment stock" and under the law, cannot be disposed of by Gulf and Western at this time.

A regular meeting of the board is scheduled today at 10 a.m. A member of the subcommittee said the board will consider yesterday's testimony and may make a decision on the proposed rule today. A decision is scheduled to be made by Sept. 1.

Veterinary Plea Denial Urged

The Arlington Heights Zoning Board of Appeals last night recommended that a petition for a veterinary office at 906 W. Rand Rd. be denied by the Board of Trustees.

The office would have been located in a strip of retail stores directly southeast of the Greenbrier Apartment Complex.

Donald Geller, owner of the property, asked the board for a land use variation of the property. The store is presently zoned B-2, business use, which does not permit animal hospitals.

Geller wants to rent the store to L. A. Johnson, D.V.M., for use as a small animal clinic. Johnson said the office would operate on an out-patient basis and would never house more than 15 animals at a time.

The petition was objected to by Dave Patterson, vice president of the Greenbrier Civic Association.

Patterson said the association had met with the Village Board in 1966 to place a covenant on the land which prohibited the use of land for various uses including pet shops, taxidermy and extermination.

Patterson said that granting a land use variation for Geller would set a precedent that other areas adjacent to the site could follow.

"We do not feel that this is an acceptable use of this land at this particular time," he said.

The petition will be forwarded to the Village Board of Trustees with the ZBA's recommendation for denial.

Police Confiscate Pot

A large quantity of what is believed by Schaumburg police to be marijuana was confiscated early yesterday morning following a high speed chase.

The owner of the car, Carl Jacobson, 27, Roselle, was charged with possession of marijuana, a felony because of the amount allegedly involved, and with public intoxication.

The driver of the car, Linnea L. Lundberg, 24, of Arlington Heights, was charged with speeding in excess of 75 miles per hour, and driving with a faulty muffler.

THE ARRESTING OFFICER, William Bartkavich, stopped the Jacobson vehicle following a high speed chase down Meacham Road. While questioning the two, Bartkavich said he saw Jacobson slip a pillowcase underneath the auto.

The officer stated the pillowcase contained "a large quantity of crushed green plant." A search of the vehicle also revealed a cigarette pack, a pillow-case and a reefer each containing what police said was small amounts of the "plant substance."

Jacobson will appear in Niles Court at 11 a.m. Oct. 15. He was released on $2,500 bond.

New Scoutmaster

Howard M. Richardson of Arlington Heights was named Scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 135.

He is succeeding John Cornell, who will continue with the troop as an assistant scoutmaster.

Rejection Of Pact Urged

The Dist. 59 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 500 teachers reject the contract proposal the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting so the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8. "The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated."

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated.

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Waltham had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $288,000. Waltham has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 59 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contracts. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,500. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Waltham, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

WALTHAM TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

CLANG, CLANG CLANG. A little bit of San Francisco came to Arlington Heights Friday afternoon in the form of a mini-cable car. The smaller than life-size replica chimed its way through town as part of a promotional tour for a California car tour agency. Michigan is the next stop on the line for the cable car.

Cable Car Clangs To Town

by MURRAY DUBIN

Clang, clang, clang. Clanging down Campbell Street, ringing your way left, past the no left turn sign on Vall Avenue, chiming through the Jewel parking lot with amazed faces registering disbelief.

Held onto the rail for dear life as the cable car zips around. It's suddenly San Francisco and the streets are a roller coaster, rolling up and down like your stomach.

But it's really Arlington Heights and the smell of the wharves disappears as the police cadet looks on menacingly. There aren't any no-left-turn signs in San Francisco.

Clang, clang, clang. Dennis Sanfilippo and Bennie Sharpe brought a little bit of San Francisco with them last week when they arrived in Arlington Heights driving a cable car replica.

SANFILIPPO, representing California Parlor Car Tours, started his promotional drive across the country eight days ago. Along with him is Bennie Sharpe, a representative of Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii.

Clang, clang, clang.

It's a funmobile that seats about 30 laughing people and has room for others if they hang on to the poles, stick their heads out the car's open sides, and make funny faces to passing motorists and surprised old people.

That cop won't give us a ticket, will he?

Travel posters and bumper stickers make the brown, red and green cable car without a cable look like a noisy, ringing rainbow, complete with a Ford Chassis.

Clang, clang, clang. "We've met the backbone of America," the 22-year-old Sanfilippo said. "Yeh, we've seen every gas station attendant on Route 80," he added.

THAT COP KEEPS staring at us.

The next stop for the transcontinental cable car is Michigan, and visits to travel agencies and others who may be interested in cable car tours to California.

The $20,000 six-eighths scale cable car attracts gawkers wherever it goes and Arlington Heights was no different as downtown shoppers looked up from their chagrin, at no left turn sign and stared at the strange moving conveyance.

Whew, the cop left. Clang, clang, clang.

BGA Praises New Election Reforms

by ED MURNANE

The Better Government Association (BGA), a non-partisan watchdog organization and long-time advocate of election reform, said Tuesday current proposals by the Illinois Election Laws Commission "would be a great step toward ending fraudulent election practices in Illinois."

Richard Friedman, executive director of the BGA, told the commission that false registration and other fraudulent practices would be reduced sharply if the commission's recommendations are accepted and become law.

Friedman's testimony came during the first session of a two-day series of hearings at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in Arlington Heights.

The commission, chaired by Third District Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is attempting to modernize Illinois election laws.

"WE WANT TO PRESERVE the right of everyone to vote and have their vote counted — only once," Graham said in opening the hearings.

Friedman was one of a half-dozen witnesses who testified yesterday. Others included Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman; State Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and William Valtrath, Kane County clerk.

Today's hearings begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all witnesses are heard. Scheduled to testify today are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, the Republican candidate for Cook County clerk, and the League of Women Voters.

Friedman said one of the major abuses of registration procedures which the BGA has uncovered is falsifying voter lists in areas with many transients, such as West Madison Street in Chicago.

But he said the practice was not confined to Chicago alone and said a BGA study in four counties in the Chicago area disclosed voter irregularities.

THE PROPOSAL Friedman said would help eliminate false registration would require the owner of lodging houses to file an affidavit showing who has lived in the house long enough to be eligible to vote. Tenants in hotels, motels and other temporary living quarters would be included.

Cowen, who also has been an advocate of election reform, said he agreed with the commission's proposal to consolidate all local elections on one day and also recommended that primary elections be held in September, rather than in the spring, as the commission is proposing.

He said consolidation would reduce costs for polling places and election judges and would help avoid voter confusion on election dates and polling places.

A September primary date, he said, would reduce the cost of election campaigns and would help focus attention on them by condensing the time between the primary and general election.

This year, Illinois had a March 17 primary, almost eight months before the Nov. 3 general election.

Redmond, who is chairman of the Democratic Party in heavily Republican DuPage County, said current election laws are inadequate for counties as large as DuPage.

HE SAID THAT although the recommended size of a precinct is 600 voters, there are some DuPage County precincts with more than 1,000 voters and that dual jurisdiction over elections by the county clerk and county board of supervisors has prevented adequate supplying of election judges in some precincts.

"We had precincts in the Constitutional Convention primary election last year that had no judges and the polling places never opened," he said.

Redmond also said he has not been notified of the number of Democratic judges that will be needed in November and said last year, the Democratic Party had to find 818 judges in a two week period because of the late notice.

FAA Probes Plane Crash

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson a flight instructor at the airport and John McFadden, 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Bolte Wins Trophy For Playing Organ

Brett Jeffrey Bolte, 12, of 1314 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights won the Governor's Trophy and a blue ribbon in the annual Illinois State Fair organ playing contest.

Brett, a student at Thomas Junior High School, won the trophy for the third time in four years.

Brett is the son of Mrs. Margaret Budd. He plays piano and clarinet with his school band.

Lindstrom Seeks Missing Prisoners

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom, Prospect Heights pastor and national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, left the United States Sunday to seek the release of American prisoners of war.

Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty, will tour Europe and the Middle East to get third-party assistance in behalf of over 1,300 Americans listed as missing or captured in North Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Lindstrom said he hopes contacts made through the Remember the Pueblo committee will help in his campaign.

He will tour England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Israel, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt.

"The time has come for a more determined effort by our State Department to obtain the release and freedom from captivity of all American fighting men of the Vietnam conflict," he said.

Awareness Is Aim of Seminar On Driving

by JUDY RESSLER

Sixty thousand Americans are going to be killed this year. Five million persons are going to be disabled. Property damage will total 25 billion dollars this year. Statistics from the Vietnam war? No traffic accidents.

The figures were cited by Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher at a driving seminar last week. By listing statistics, Horcher attempted to develop in the students an awareness of the traffic laws.

The traffic safety school lasts three weeks. It is held at the Wheeling Village Hall on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Most of the 45 persons from the North-west suburban area attending the traffic school have been assigned to go there by the traffic court because they have received tickets for moving violations. However, anyone is invited to attend.

HORCHER ATTEMPTED to teach the students "to watch out for the other guy," to be aware of accident conditions and to be aware of their own driving attitudes. "Anything that can be prevented is not an accident," Horcher said. "I can assure you, there are very few accidents."

The police chief also attempted to alert the students by saying, "The chances in favor of all of you getting home tonight are 1,200 to one." He explained that those are very small odds, considering the number of persons on the road.

After completing the driver refresher seminar, he said, each student, being more aware, should see more accidents than they have ever seen.

To explain the student's presence at the driving seminar, Horcher said, "The only reason anyone ever got a ticket is because it was their unlucky day. We prove, beyond any doubt, that odds against getting a traffic citation for any reason, are 200 to one. This is why the accident rate is so high."

BUT ENFORCEMENT, the police chief said, is not effective for preventing accidents.

"Enforcement is a very negative approach to developing an awareness," he said. For this reason, he added, "awareness must be developed by other means, such as traffic schools."

Horcher said the most dangerous thing a person can do is drive a car down a two-lane highway. To explain this, he said that of 2,493 persons killed on Illinois streets, only 17 were killed on toll roads and inter-state systems.

Eighty-seven per cent of all deaths occur because of one of the following factors: speeding, failure to yield the right of way, crossing the center highway line, driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to follow stop signs and lights.

HORCHER SHOWED A movie, made by the Cook County Traffic Safety Commission, showing what happens to a car in an accident. At 20 miles an hour, the impact would be that of a car falling off a one-story building. At 40 miles per hour the impact would be that of a car falling from a 4-story building. At 60 miles per hour the impact would be like driving off a 9-story building.

Following the movie and a summary of traffic regulations, Horcher appealed to the students to protest traffic regulations they do not like. He asked, "When is the last time you saw someone burn his driver's license protesting the death of someone in a traffic accident?"

Tomorrow night Horcher will discuss the effects of alcohol on driving, tollroad driving, motorcycles and trucks and police driving. The session begins at 7 p.m.

U.S. Impresses Ana Maria

by DAVE PALERMO

If Ana Maria Ramon maintains her pleasant smile, polite manner and genuine curiosity, she shouldn't find the transition from Argentina to America too difficult.

Ana, 17, will be in America for one year, attending Prospect High School during her stay. She is one of thousands of foreign students who will be studying in the United States this year as part of the American Field Service program.

An attractive, dark-complexioned girl with long, brown hair, Ana tends to understate her mastery of the English language. She speaks haltingly, but clearly, breaking out into a blushing smile the few times she has to stop and think of the correct word or phrase to use.

It doesn't take long during the conversation for the real Ana to break through the thin language barrier. Her perception, intelligence and good-naturedness are universally accepted and appreciated characteristics.

"I always wanted to come to America," she said, sitting in the living room at the home of Donald Holm, 102 N. Evanston St. in Arlington Heights. She'll be staying at the Holm's residence throughout her visit in the United States.

"I READ ABOUT America all the time in Argentina. But in America there is nothing to read about Argentina," she said.

Ana said the large amount of publicity given to the United States and associations she had with Americans living in Argentina prepared her for her stay in this country.

But her eyes still widen when she speaks of the "many automobiles," "big breakfasts" and large high schools which made a big impression on her during her first week in this country.

She arrived from New York last Wednesday. The Holm's 17-year-old daughter, Carol, threw a party in her honor Friday.

"She really impressed everybody," said Carol. "They all said what a great girl she was and how lucky I was that she was staying with us. She talked to everybody all night."

In Argentina Ana studied most every subject from organic chemistry and physics to geography and geometry. At Prospect High School she'll be studying English and history as well as French.

ALTHOUGH SHE hasn't gotten a chance to develop her first case of homesickness, she still writes long letters to her family, friends and relatives in Argentina. She grew up in San Rafael in the province of Mendoza.

Mendoza is famous for its wines, and Ana readily admits a fondness for the festivals often held in her native country.

"They have snow festivals, wine festivals, olive festivals and fruit festivals. Wine in my country is the most important, most beautiful thing," she adds, wide-eyed and smiling.

She hopes that she can take up two of her most-loved activities, horseback riding and tennis, during her stay.

"I have always thought about playing tennis, but I was never very good about it because you don't have time for other things while you go to school in Argentina. I hope to learn how to play better here," she said.

ANA CAME FROM an all-girl school of 800 pupils. She is anxious to find out what it's like to attend a co-ed high school.

Her reasons for coming to America lend insight to the kind of girl Ana is. "I think it is important that young people from here, and from my country, get together and understand each other," she said. "It is important for young people to know and understand each other for soon we shall have the responsibility for our countries. In knowing we can understand," she said.

Win at Bridge

by OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 80th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the America's Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd lives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1935. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team.

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

ZIP! ZIP! ZIP! It's carnival night this Thursday through Sunday at St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 Algonquin, Des Plaines.

Church Plans Carnival In Des Plaines

Whirling, swirling lights, the calliope music of the turning wooden horses, children eating hot dogs and smiling at the noise and bustle.

It's carnival night, and it's in Des Plaines.

Sponsored by St. Zachary's, Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin, the carnival will be held for four nights this week in the church's rear parking lot.

Days and times are Thursday and Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m., and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Biggest ride will be the Tempest. This ride was described as being a pole, with another pole attached to it, with two cars attached to that. "Then they all whirl around together," according to St. Zachary recreation committee chairman Norm Tuccy.

and aim-games, Tuccy said.

About 1,000 people are expected, and everyone is invited, Tuccy said. The parish has about 2,000 families from both Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The idea for the carnival came from church members, including Mary Ann Sobieski and Mary Ann Pasterick, Tuccy said.

"The idea was to bring people together," he said.

CHURCH MEMBERS ALSO wanted to get the whole parish involved in church activities. The third reason was the desire to raise money.

This money will be used for the educational fund for the St. Zachary school.

Other members of the entertainment committee are Charles Wolf, vice-chairman, and Mary Ellen Green, secretary.

Scout Troop Sets Hot Dog, Pop Sale

Boy Scout Troop 263 of Devonshire School will hold a hot dog and Pepsi-Cola sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The sale will be held in Market Place Shopping Center parking lot at the intersection of Golf and Elmhurst roads.

Proceeds from the sale will be used toward the purchase of tents and other camping equipment.

FAA Investigates Crash of Plane

Two men remained in serious condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital following the crash of their private plane near Pal-Waukee Airport Sunday afternoon.

The men, Dan Johnson, a flight instructor at the airport, and John McFadden, 680 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, were aboard a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza when it struck a tree while making a landing approach to the airport and nosed into the ground about 200 feet short of the runway. The plane came to rest about 50 feet from a private residence and 50 feet from the westbound frontage road north of the Palatine Expressway.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the crash. A final report should be released within three months, according to George Priester, owner and operator of the airport.

MRS. MAE CLARK, owner of the house near where the plane crashed said low flying planes have skimmed the trees in the area before.

"If they hit the trees they are much too close to the ground. They should land farther out on the field, using more of the runway," she said.

Priester has offered to trim the trees in the area, but Mrs. Clark has refused, contending that the trees are her only protection against the planes. She feels if the trees were removed, the planes would hit her house.

Priester said it is easier for pilots to see the house than the trees, especially at night and during the time of the year when there are no leaves on the trees.

He also pointed out that a plane could hit a tree with only one of its wings, causing it to flip over and crash into the house.

Because Pal-Waukee is privately owned, Priester has no legal means to force the trees to be trimmed, he said.

Priester believes, however, that because the airport is being publicly used, "we should be covered by laws covering public airports improve it and get rid of obstructions," he said.

"Until the laws are changed, this situation isn't going to get any better. It's a shame that people have to risk getting killed just to prove a point."

Priester said heavier air traffic has made Pal-Waukee busier. A new regulation limiting the altitude of light planes has added to the congestion. Light planes now have a maximum ceiling of 1900 feet above sea level. The elevation at Pal-Waukee is about 700 so planes in the area are flying at 1200 feet, except during landings and take-offs.

According to Priester the new regulation is a safety feature to give the commercial carriers more room to operate.

Art Fair To Be Held On Sunday

More than 130 artists from Chicago and 45 suburbs will display paintings, ceramics and sculptures at the 15th annual Des Plaines Art Fair Sunday, Sept. 13 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The fair, which is sponsored by the Des Plaines Art Guild, will include exhibits by 134 Des Plaines artists. The exhibits will be displayed in the Des Plaines National Bank parking lot on Ellinwood Street between Lee and Graceland Streets.

According to the fair's publicist, Peggy Wetter, the artists will be coming from as far away as Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana. "And we expect several thousand people to attend the fair," she said. "The artists will be selling oil paintings, ceramics, sculptures and special crafts. Cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded to exhibitors for the best oils, water colors and mixed media exhibits," she said.

"There will be two paintings awarded at the close of the fair," Mrs. Wetter said. "The paintings, which were donated by their artists, Christi Hansen and Milvi Wheeler, are now on display in the lobby of the Des Plaines National Bank."

Mrs. Wetter also said the fair would have a refreshment wagon on Ellinwood Street. "They'll sell hot dogs and soft drinks. There will also be organ music throughout the day," William Haywood, formerly of Des Plaines, will play the organ.

Des Plaines Art Guild president Gard Renner thinks the fair will be "lots of fun. We run the fair to encourage other people to try their painting ability. And, besides," Renner said, "it's a nice way to spend a Sunday afternoon."

In case of rain the fair will be held the following Sunday, Sept. 20.

New Take-Off Plan May Hike S. Side Noise

New take-off procedures at O'Hare Airport, begun last week by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), may be bringing more noise to the south side of Des Plaines.

According to Neal Callahan, FAA community relations officer, the new regulations force aircraft departing over Des Plaines to turn away from air space now allocated to Pal-Waukee Airport near Wheeling.

The sharper turns, according to Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, are being made at lower altitudes and will be 100 bringing more noise to the south side of the city. At his weekly press conference yesterday, Behrel said the new rules will "subject us to more noise rather than less noise."

Callahan said the new rules, intended to increase air traffic safety in the O'Hare area, are the result of a two-year study that showed most mid-air collisions and near-collisions occur within 20 miles of the primary airport involved.

THE SAFETY MEASURES, Callahan said, which eventually will be initiated at U.S. airports, set strict limits on flight patterns for planes using both O'Hare and Pal-Waukee.

"The basic idea of this new terminal control area rule is to reduce the possibility of mid-air collisions," he said. "The effect it has on Des Plaines would be the aircraft departing on runway 32R eastbound would have to make tighter right hand turns in order to stay within the protected airspace."

"There's a slight pie-shaped break in the normal circle around O'Hare in order to provide Pal-Waukee with normal clearance for airspace there," he said. "So that's one of the reasons the aircraft have been turning tighter than what they had been in the past."

Callahan said he does not think the new rules will greatly increase the number of planes departing over Des Plaines that will be making sharper turns at lower altitudes.

"IT'S POSSIBLE, I certainly can't deny the fact, that if some aircraft are making tighter turns, they may be penetrating some areas and making more noise," Callahan said.

Departing planes from O'Hare will make the sharper turns at different altitudes, depending on the type of plane, its load, weather conditions and the regulations of the airline involved, he said.

The new rules will provide "tight control" of flight patterns, segregating planes using Pal-Waukee and O'Hare and cutting down the mixture of small, slow aircraft and big airline jets, Callahan said.

According to Behrel, south side areas that are getting more noise under the new procedures include the Douglas Manor and Anderson subdivisions in the 5th Ward.

Dorothy Oliver

I rediscovered fresh air while we were traveling along Interstate 80 to Colorado. I also came to the conclusion that I'll take the Des Plaines air any day compared to the stench you breathe as you pass a cattle farm. Fresh country air you can keep.

For the last 200 miles of the trip my husband had the boys and I keep steady watchout the front window for the first blue-shaded glimpse of the Rockies. It was worth the wait. Nothing I have ever seen (and I've been East, South and North) has compared to the majestic Rockies.

We camped for the week in Rocky Mountain State Park which rests about 60 miles north of Denver in the midst of the mountain range. We took advantage of the excellent roads which ran through the mountains and drove along the peaks.

The snow tundra country was still there, snake-like rivers wound their way everywhere. You could round a curve and happen upon shimmering, crystal clear lakes. I was very impressed - it was back to nature time.

AND NATURE IT WAS. Our two boys spent hours feeding Oreo cookies and Cheerios to ground squirrels and chipmunks. These were choosy mammals, folks. They wouldn't touch breads of any kind and our wildlife population soared when we brought out the cookies and cereal.

Our seven-year-old took great delight in building houses out of mud and sticks. They became a fort for his soldiers or towns for his miniature cars. He's never had the opportunity to climb so many trees and rocks or hike so many trails.

The three-year old lived in dirt. He was never clean (and rarely near-clean) and bounded out of our tent each morning to dive, stomach first, into the soft, abundant dirt. He was tickled to death each time a "chipmunk" ate something from his hand. He even managed to wade in the ice-cold rapids with us and trudge through a mile-long hike.

THE DAYS WERE hot, the nights cool, the people friendly, the toilets flushed (a luxury where we've been camping) and all this for $2 a night. We hated to see this vacation end.

On the long (18 hours including pit stops) drive home we took a side trip to Minden, Neb., the site of Harold Ward's Pioneer Village. Twenty-two buildings form a circle on the two-block spread and house articles from 1630 to the present.

Antique collectors and history buffs could live in a place like Pioneer Village, which Ward built in tribute to his parents, who were original settlers of Minden, and other pioneers. More than 30,000 items are included - everything under the sun from vehicles to buttons.

There was a building devoted to hobbies, one to home appliances, one to tractors and another to agriculture. There was an authentic one-room rural school furnished with the original desks, books, stove, water pails, etc. and containing all of the minutes of meetings ever held in the school, built in the late 19th century.

There was a sod house completely furnished with furniture of the era. St. Paul Lutheran Church, built in 1884 and the first church of Minden, is also on the property.

The Ward family artifacts are everywhere. Pictures of the settlers are in the Bloomington Land Office which was moved from Franklin County, Neb. where it served pioneers filing their homestead claims; the family Bible is in the church, and Mrs. Ward's china and glass collection are displayed in a special house.

OBVIOUSLY I could go on and on. If you're ever on Interstate 80 going West, take the 12 mile trip south to Minden. It is worth the trouble.

So it's back in Des Plaines for the Olivers. Back to the mold (which I'm allergic to); back to the housework; back to the noise of the airplanes; back to the pressures of the job. But, ironically, it's good to get back.

"Be it ever so humble . . .

Rejection Of Contract Urged

The Dist. 59 Teachers' Council negotiating team will recommend that some 500 teachers reject the contract proposal the board of education has ratified.

This statement was made in a letter sent to board members yesterday. The teachers will be meeting next Tuesday to vote on their contracts.

The letter added that after the Teachers' Council meeting the teachers' negotiating team requests the board contact them for an "immediate meeting so the remaining areas may be settled before school starts."

Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 8. "The board of education is either misinformed or lying to the community," Dave Robert, negotiation team chairman, said in explaining the letter.

HE CONTINUED, "On a number of occasions agreements on certain parts of the contract have been made by the negotiation team and initiated.

"The areas of class size, a career program, summer school salary, workshops and details of the extra duty program are part of the contract and have never been agreed upon and never initiated.

"It was the understanding of the committee that these remaining areas would be simple to settle as Mr. Al Walthman had assured us that any unbudgeted funds would be used to lower class size below that of last year. The board now refuses to negotiate the remaining $200,000. Walthman has previously negotiated the hiring of additional teachers, but now, suddenly, Harold Harvey of the board states this is a non-negotiable."

The topic of class size and other details of the Dist. 59 comprehensive payment program have held up ratification of the contracts. Negotiations have continued without conclusive success since last February.

LAST MONTH the board ratified what it considered to be a final contract. It included a starting salary of $7,600. The teachers' negotiation team, however, said the contract as proposed was contingent on settlement of other items such as class size.

In discussing reasons for the recommendation to reject the proposed contract, Robert said, "When negotiations began we asked that board members be present. The board members have consistently refused to attend any session. Obviously misinformation is getting back to them."

He said, "All we ask is that the board look at the programs we have proposed and accept or reject them on the basis of their merit to the school system."

Last week about 40 teachers at the board of education meeting requested to meet with the board to discuss these issues. The board said they should deal with Walthman, chairman of the administration negotiation team.

WALTHMAN TOLD THE teachers later that he had no authority to discuss the issues they wished to discuss.

In May, many of the teachers participated in a teach-out, leaving the schools at the lunch hour to walk out in the community and inform parents of the problems of class size.

Neither teachers nor district administration have discussed the possibilities of a teachers' strike or further teach-outs if a contract is not ratified by Sept. 8.

New School: Rolling Meadows

by TOM WELLMAN
It's "Rolling Meadows High School." Before an angry and enthusiastic crowd of perhaps 200 residents of Rolling Meadows, the High School District 214 Board last night voted unanimously to finally and officially name the district's seventh high school.

After a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion held in the Prospect High School Theater because the Rolling Meadows residents had overflowed the district's normal meeting room, board member Leah Cummins moved that Rolling Meadows High School be approved.

The room fell silent as each board member voted yes. Before the vote was taken, a variety of civic leaders from the community repeated their request which had been presented to the board twice in the last 10 months to name the school after the community.

Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, said that he realized only a slight majority of the students at the new high school might be from Rolling Meadows. He said, however, that a majority vote of those students would indicate support for the Rolling Meadows name.

Thomas Walbrun, an alderman from the community, and Mrs. Joan Meyer, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of PTAs, repeated the request for the naming.

Of the ten to fifteen persons who spoke from the audience, only one suggestion was made that a name other than Rolling Meadows High School, or Meadows High School should be selected.

The large group, which arrived at 7:30 wielding three placards brought about the shift in the meeting location from 799 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect to Prospect High School after they had filled the administration building's meeting room.

At 7:30, when the meeting was due to begin, Board Chairman Richard Bachhuber ordered the placards to be removed from the board's meeting room. Some of the citizens resisted. "Aren't we taxpayers?" said one man.

Bachhuber said that he was responsible for the conduct of the meeting and the placards were removed. Meanwhile, district officials contacted school officials at Prospect and they opened the high school theater.

Dance Classes Plan Dinners

Three special candlelight dinner dances will be held this season at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines. Students of Grace V. Hansen, dance director, and twelve of her ballroom classes will attend.

The combined Christmas dance and guest nite will be held Dec. 5, Western Nite March 8, and the popular annual luau May 1. Dining will be by candlelight followed by dancing. A special feature will be a half hour session during which the latest dance moves will be taught.

New dance classes for adults and teens will begin Sept. 10, 11 and 14th. Teen students enrolled in the dance classes will be admitted free to teen nite the fourth Saturday of each month.

Reserve Policeman Bitten By Stray Dog

Des Plaines Reserve Policeman Gene Hyken was bitten by a stray dog Saturday night when he tried to catch it.

According to police they received a call of a dog lying in a parkway at 1140 Perda St. The dog ran north to Florian Drive where it was caught by a girl.

When the girl handed the dog over to Hyken the dog bit Hyken's right arm. Hyken was treated and released from Holy Family Hospital.

The dog was impounded at Wright's Animal Hospital in Des Plaines.

Maine West Stages Second Book Sale

On Monday, Aug. 31, the bookstore at Maine West High School, 1755 S. Wolf, will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. for students who have not already purchased their books for the coming school year.

This "make up" day is for the convenience of Maine West students who were ill or away on vacation and could not purchase their books on their appointed day between Aug. 17 and Aug. 26, school officials said.

The bookstore at Maine West is located in Room E-101.

After the vote had been taken and it was indeed official that at last the new school in Rolling Meadows had a name that was satisfactory to the citizens of Rolling Meadows, board member Jack

Costello said what the residents had fought was not hostility on the part of the board. He said it was important that the residents recognized that it was not necessary for them to make demands of their school board.

The new name of the high school will go officially into effect when the minutes of last night's meeting are approved at the first board meeting in September.

ANN DALAET, a field worker for the Elk Grove Park District, helps eight-year-old Lisa Johnson build with visor this summer.

She Remembers Park Fun

More than 100 Elk Grove Village youngsters will be heading back to school soon after spending many hours hunting frogs, making spaghetti, and doing things that little kids like to do.

Their memories of summer 1970 will include a vibrant girl who helped them catch the frogs. She is Ann Dalaet, a field-worker for the park district.

Ann, who lives in Des Plaines, where her father is a park board member, is a student at the University of Illinois, Champaign.

With years of background in park district work, Ann still had high comments for the Elk Grove Park District.

"I'd like to come back to Elk Grove. I thought it was a very moving park district. It got things done and tried things a little out of line but it worked."

AS AN EXAMPLE of "things a little out of line," Ann mentioned the park district overnight held earlier this month.

"I'd never heard of a park district holding one before, but now that I look back on it, it is something very good. The park district has the funds and the resources and the people to supervise."

Before coming to the park district this summer Ann had worked in a resident camp in St. Louis, as a playground supervisor, lifeguard, and swimming instructor. "I hope to go on in administration in school," she said, and then talked about how she became interested in park work.

"I was in a junior leader program in Des Plaines and got talked into going to a weekend convention. It was then that I began thinking about it as a profession."

WHILE WITH THE park district this summer Ann supervised the day camp program in the forest preserve and the overnight at Wooster Lake Park.

"She's a very enthusiastic girl and will make a good recreation person," Jack Claes, park district director, said. "She's devoted and puts in a good many hours," he added.

Ann shuffled around stakes for tents so that when several were left behind all the tents would stand up anyway. She

Police Warn About Mini-bike Rules

Youngsters who ride mini-bikes may be in trouble if they ride their vehicles on public streets or sidewalks.

According to Des Plaines police, the miniature motor bikes are considered motor vehicles and must be licensed by the state if they are driven on the street. The driver of the bike must also be licensed.

Police say the mini-bikes can only be used on private property and if they are driven on the street the driver can be fined for failure to have a state license or improper equipment on a motorized vehicle.

Parents of minors can also be fined for letting unauthorized drivers operate the bike.

Police added that there is an open field at Golf and River roads where mini-bikes can be used.

Social Security And You

Q. — My wife collects Social Security as my dependent. She just started working and will make more than $1,600 this year. How will this affect our checks?

A. — Your check will stay the same, because your benefit is only affected if you work. But your wife's benefit will be reduced according to the amount she earns.

Q. — I have already made over $7,800 this year. Now that I've changed jobs, I'm still contributing to Social Security. Since I'll end up paying more than I should, can't I get some money back?

A. — Yes. You'll get a refund after you file your Federal income tax return for 1970. The tax return is designed to show any overpayment of Social Security contributions during the previous year.

Q. — I am a student Social Security beneficiary and I worked this summer. Will this work cause me to lose benefits?

A. — If you earn more than $1,600 during the year, some benefits will be withheld. The amount depends on how much you earn above $1,600. One dollar in benefits is withheld for every $2 you earn between $1,600 and $2,800. In addition, $1 in benefits is withheld for every $1 of earnings above $2,800. However, no matter how much your total yearly earnings exceed $1,600, you can get a check for any month in which you neither earn more than $140 nor perform substantial services as a self-employed person.

Q. — During the summer months, I usually hire a maid and a gardener. When must I report their wages?

A. — If you pay your maid or gardener cash wages of $50 or more during a calendar quarter, you must report the wages and send the Social Security contribution to the Internal Revenue Service. This report should be made during the first month after the quarter in which the wages were paid. Get a copy of "Social Security and Your Household Employee" (SSS-21) — from any Social Security office for more information on this subject.

From the Library

Programs Success

by MARION DAVIS

Des Plaines Public Library

Helping the child from a non-English speaking home has long been the concern of the inner-city librarian. Two years ago, when a speech teacher of the Des Plaines schools asked for the librarian's help in preparing a reading list for children of Spanish speaking homes, we discovered that there are non-English speaking families in the suburbs as well as in the inner city.

With the help of teachers and interested townspeople a fund was established to cover the cost of non-resident library cards for Spanish speaking children who lived outside the library district but attended Des Plaines schools.

The principal of an elementary school was appointed chairman of a committee of teachers and citizens to administer the fund and provide library cards for children when the families could not assume the cost.

THE OFFICE OF Economic Opportunity (OEO) provided a translator who was in the library Friday evenings and Saturdays. Librarians gave individual reading guidance to children and to the few parents who accompanied them.

With the growth of Des Plaines as an industrial city, the number of non-English speaking families has increased to such an extent that a summer school session was arranged this year to teach English to children who will be attending Maine Township schools this fall. The children attending the Title 1 program come from homes where only Greek, French, Italian, Polish or Spanish are spoken.

To supplement the program of the school, the public library staff, under the direction of Marguerite Flentge, assistant children's librarian, has worked this summer with small groups of children. School Librarian, Margaret Melvin, has helped by encouraging children to attend informal programs at the library. Planned to make the children feel at home in the library, the programs included book talks, stories, discussions of authors and books, films, all on an informal participating basis.

Emphasis has been on encouraging children to take part in regular library activities rather than segregating them as a "special group." Several of the children spoke no English at their first visit but there was always a friend to translate.

At the suggestion of the summer school principal, we planned a program for parents. "Know Your Community" was the subject chosen. The program was held at the school while the children were attending classes. A panel of five community leaders (the City Health Nurse, a representative of the Police Department, the Director of Recreation from the Park District, a member of the church sponsored Laubach School for learning English and a library representative) told of facilities of the community that are available and how they may be used. There was much give-away material to be taken home in a Des Plaines Public Library bag.

WHILE EACH SPEAKER was presenting his part of the program, there was a low murmur of voices throughout the room as the speaker's words were translated into Greek, Spanish, French, Italian and Polish. Although the number of parents who attended was less than we had hoped, their enthusiasm filled the room and at the close of the program they greeted us with handshakes and smiles.

Through our experiences this summer we have learned that only the most outgoing non-English speaking people will come to a meeting or to the school or library in response to a written or oral invitation.

More people will come if a person whom they have learned to know and trust (a teacher, a school librarian, a pastor, an employer) will accompany them on their first library visit. Once they become acquainted, the language barrier is no great problem.

A sincere interest in each person as an individual, a welcoming smile establishes a lasting and meaningful relationship.

Abandoned Cars Plan Sought

Cook County is looking for an "economical method of eliminating abandoned cars from the highways without creating unsightly auto grave yards," said County Commissioner Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect following three county hearings on abandoned cars last week.

Hansen is chairman of the special county board committee studying the abandoned car problem. Other members are Commissioners Floyd T. Fulle of Des Plaines and Charles S. Bonk of Chicago.

Public hearings were held in Des Plaines, River Forest and Palos last week.

"Our purpose was not to present a plan, but to hear comments and suggestions before working on a solution," Hansen said.

He estimated that 10,000 abandoned cars are dumped in the suburbs every year and said the number will get considerably higher in the future.

"ALL YOU HAVE to do is look at the number of cars being sold and you can see that the problem will get worse," Hansen said.

The key to a solution, Hansen said, is to find a method of disposing of junked autos that does not depend on the market price of scrap.

Motel Burglaries Not Serious

Although there have been a number of room burglaries at a Des Plaines motel, area motel keepers say the problem is not a serious one.

Roberto Giansoldati, manager of the Des Plaines Holiday Inn, thinks that even though there have been nearly a dozen burglaries at the motel during the past few months the percentage of burglaries is not high.

"We have 300 people in and out of the motel every day," Giansoldati said. "So considering the great number of people we serve, proportionately the number of burglaries is low."

"Of course," he said, "we'd like to not have any burglaries. But we're doing the best we can to stop the problem. We have an internal investigation at the motel and we're working with detectives from the Des Plaines police department. We also have security guards at the motel around the clock."

GIAN SOLDATI ADDED that there are signs in every room which tell patrons to double lock their doors and patrons are also informed that there are safety boxes provided by the motel for valuables and large amounts of money.

According to Des Plaines Police Det. William Kuta, the burglaries at the Holiday Inn fit a pattern. "They usually occur on weekends and while the victims are using the motel swimming pool," Kuta said. "And in each of the burglaries there was no forcible entry into the room."

The manager of the DeVille Motel, at 1275 Lee St. in Des Plaines, said there has not been a room burglary in the motel for at least a year.

"WE HAD A group of people who stayed in the motel last year," James Scott, manager of the DeVille said "and they were responsible for three or four or four burglaries here last year. But since they left we've had no problems."

Scott added that his motel does employ 24-hour security guards and the motel has a depository for guests so they can safely store their valuables.

"We also have a routine of changing locks on each room," Scott added. "We do this three times a year. This is done as a preventative measure."

The DeVille did have an armed robbery almost two weeks ago. Two robbers got $425 from the motel office. "We have people watching in case it happens again," Scott said. "We also have a signal system to catch robbers without hurting employees," Scott added.

The manager of the O'Hare Travelodge, at 3003 Mannheim Rd. in Des Plaines, said she didn't want to talk about the problem. Mrs. Lawrence Johnson said the motel is just inside Des Plaines here last year. But since they left we've had no problems."

Plaines so problems at other Des Plaines motels don't necessarily reflect on the Travelodge.

Des Plaines police said the Travelodge has not reported any room burglaries lately.

Holiday Inn Scene Of Weekend Thefts

Two burglaries at the Holiday Inn in Des Plaines, both similar in nature, took place over the weekend.

According to Des Plaines police, Lyle Stahl of Wyoming, Ill., a guest at the motel on Mannheim and Touhy roads, was swimming at the motel pool between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. Friday.

When Stahl returned to his room he found missing his wallet, which contained two credit cards and $100 in cash. Police say there was no forcible entry and the burglar may have used a key to enter through the front door.

Another burglary at the motel was reported to police Friday by Ronald Rumbold of Toulon, Illinois, also a guest at the motel.

Rumbold told police he had gone swimming from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. and when he returned to his room he found $150 missing from his wallet. There was no forcible entry to his room, police said.

Police theorize the burglar used a key to the front door.

Discount Store Theft Reported

More than $300 worth of cigarettes was stolen from a car parked at the Tartan Discount store at 830 Elmhurst Rd. in Des Plaines.

According to Des Plaines police, 125 cartons of cigarettes were taken from the car of Marilyn Meese of Melrose Park, a clerk in the store, about 7 p.m. Friday.

Miss Meese told the police two young men had detained her in the store during the time she thinks the theft took place.

Miss Meese said the cartons contained various brands of cigarettes valued at $360.

Win at Bridge

by OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt died on July 4, just two days before his 88th birthday. Oswald Jacoby is taking over today's column to tell something about the inventor of contract bridge.

Mike was a perfectionist. One reason why he successfully defended the America's Cup three times was that he learned everything possible about sailing conditions where the races would be held.

When he invented contract in 1925, he did such a good job that his original laws have continued with practically no change. No-trump became 40 for the first trick and 30 thereafter, instead of 35 a trick, to get rid of the odd fives and the penalties have been slightly reduced, but slam and rubber bonuses and the vulnerable feature are unchanged.

He played in his Vanderbilt tournament several times and won it once with his favorite partner, Waldemar von Zedtwitz. He also won the American Whist League pairs and team with me in 1938. Here is one of the hands that helped us win the team:

I opened the three of clubs. Mike was a studious player and he thought over his first play for several minutes. I could see South getting more and more nervous as Mike thought. Finally, Mike produced the eight-spot. South had to take his ace and could do no better than play diamonds. I took my ace and led a second club to set declarer.

Had Mike played a club honor, South would have made four no-trump and won the board for his side, since our partners had bid five diamonds and made six. South's team would also have won the tournament, since they did finish in second place just one-half a board behind us.

CONDUCTING HER ANSWERING service by switchboards with the help of six part-time women is a far cry from when Marion Herman did it all herself at phones that lined her dining room walls.

Marion's Telephone Is A Way Of Life

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Maybe a man's best friend is his dog, but it is a common attitude that a woman's best friend is her telephone. To Marion Herman the telephone is a way of life. For over nine years she has been tied to the cord of a telephone through her business enterprise, A & A Answering Service, 1318 Lee St.

Marion's mother owns an answering service in Park Ridge, and when Marion and her two sons, Barclay and Peter, moved to Des Plaines 9½ years ago she decided to begin one of her own. When she began only two other answering services were in operation: one was run by a paraplegic who had been asked by local doctors to take their calls and the other by a man who was closing out his business.

"MY FIRST ACCOUNT was the really company that rented me this house," she said. "Then I received another by referral, and the man who went out of business let me solicit the three accounts he had. My first month's income was $10; the next $15 and the third month I jumped to $47."

For two years Marion tended the phones 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The dining room walls were lined with phones and shelves. She slept in the midst of it on a bed shoved against the wall.

"I once went 49 hours without sleep or relief," Marion said. "You have to understand that they didn't ring constantly all night long, though."

Life was hectic to be sure. Peter was just a toddler in diapers and the phones would inevitably ring in the midst of a change. Every Wednesday night Marion's family came to dinner and took over for a few minutes so "I could wheel the garbage out to the street for pickup the next day."

"I HAD ALL THE family dinners here for more than five years because I just couldn't get help on the holidays," she said.

Housework was done piecemeal between rings. "I couldn't run the vacuum cleaner for fear I wouldn't hear a phone. One of my friends would come over and listen for me while I was vacuuming and yell if a phone rang. Once I tried to hang curtains upstairs. I had to race downstairs about 14 times and finally just gave up," she laughed.

"I don't want it to sound as if I'm crying the blues," she added. "It was quite an adventure."

When she was finally able to afford help in the business, Marion hired two part-time girls. One worked 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. twice a week and the other from 6 p.m. until Marion didn't need her. Now, with A & A a thriving business, she employs six part-time women and has switched from answering phones to doing the voluminous bookkeeping and public relations chores.

"I'M HERE DURING the day most of the time and fill in if the girls are really busy or if someone can't come in," she said.

There are seldom five quiet minutes in the small office which houses A&A Telephone Answering Service. There are now two switchboards for the calls of more than 125 clients.

Marion's Telephone-3-60

"I was tremendously thrilled when I had enough accounts to order the first switchboard. It took 4½ years and was a big milestone. There was a time that I thought I'd never get more than 12 accounts. I'd get 14 and lose two. And then I hit another snag at 40. Once I lost all accounts in about 10 minutes," Marion reminisced.

THERE IS MORE to the answering service business than answering a telephone. Marion's employees are trained to handle emergency calls, not only for doctors but for several industries (using computers, etc.) and security guards. They take accident reports for insurance companies after office hours and see to it that an adjuster is called out.

They handle light mail for a few businesses and take hundreds of messages for all. Marion estimates that they write more than 200 messages a day and receive many more calls that don't require a message.

MARION LEADS ANOTHER full life separate from her business. She loves to play bridge and sail, but her passion is gardening. A burst of pink, orange, yellow and purple surrounds the backyard where Marion has nurtured more than 35 varieties of flowers. The marigolds, foxgloves and dahlias are in bloom, and she stands back and surveys her pride-and-joy with a smile.

Back of the flowers is a vegetable garden, and bounding around behind the fence is a fluffy black mongrel — the family dog, Tuffy.

There is pride too when she talks of her two sons. Barclay is now 16 and a sophomore at Maine West. He is active in Boy Scouts and very interested in astronomy. Peter is 12 and a seventh grader at Algonquin Junior High. His life is filled with scouting activities.

MARION IS A NEW member of the Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines. "They do so many good things," she said.

There have been many hectic moments since Marion started in business — there have also been many funny ones. We asked Marion what her most memorable moment has been and she replied, "There has definitely been THE most memorable moment in the past nine years. But I'll have to answer the way Carol Burnett answered the question, 'What was your most embarrassing moment?' Next question, please."

Wedding Or Anniversary?

With the summer's end rush of engagements, weddings and golden wedding anniversaries, Paddock's Suburban Living Department is again besieged with calls from those seeking information on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for readers' information and help:

ENGAGEMENTS

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill in an engagement form at our office or submit their own copy along with a wallet-size picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet-size picture is not available, a larger one may be submitted for reduction our photo engraving plant. Photos accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelopes will be returned; others may be picked up at our main office in Arlington Heights.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information on their own stationery. If submitted in handwriting we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the signature at the bottom of the announcement.

A glossy picture is preferable, although a dull finish is often acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors, depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pictures, and the announcement will be published within a week after reaching our offices.

WEDDINGS

Wedding forms, also available at our offices, are automatically mailed to mothers of all girls giving a wedding date in their engagement announcement. Others may request them by mail.

Deadline for receipt of wedding forms in our office is five weeks from date of wedding. If photo is not available at deadline, the story will be printed without picture. However, a picture of the bride and groom with a caption material only will be accepted up to three months following the date of the wedding.

To accompany the story, a picture of the bride AND groom is preferable. This should be a close-up, black and white glossy (preferred), from the bouquet and up. No small snapshots are acceptable. Color prints will be acceptable. Color prints will be used at the discretion of the editors. Pictures of the bride alone are acceptable but will be printed only in 1-column width.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a picture for the newspaper immediately upon receiving the photographer's proofs. Any delay in relaying choice of photo to the photographer may mean missing the deadline. There is no charge for printing wedding photos.

ANNIVERSARIES

Golden wedding anniversary forms are also available in our offices. Professionally-taken, black and white glossy pictures are acceptable; color prints will be accepted at the discretion of the editors. There is no charge for pictures.

We regret space does not permit us to publish anniversaries of less than 50 years.

Announcements should be mailed to:

Vacation Ending For Jaycee Wives

Des Plaines Jaycee Wives are reminded that vacation time is ending on their Thursday night meeting at the home of Mrs. John Kargl, 1309 2nd Ave., will concentrate on projects of the forthcoming months.

The first project will be in September when the Jaycee Wives will be helping the Jaycees with their Oktoberfest by roasting corn among other things.

The Wives will have a fashion show in November, and ideas are still needed. Craft items have to be made as well.

Thursday's meeting starts at 8 p.m.

It's Fashion

by United Press International

Among museum-like pieces from the Pauline Trigere collection of costume jewelry is a group of Aztec rings, brooches and necklaces. Many have the look of old gold and are studded with tiny jewel-like stones and mini-pearls.

For fall and winter, midi coats with the Robert Hall label go over mini skirts in fresh new colorations and take to pants with equal aplomb. Plaid ponchos go over straight-leg pants which vie with knickers for the fashion spotlight when pants are the order of the day. Purple tweed knickers in the collection take purple suede patches as a practical accent.

Envelope purses for fall range from little clutches to huge ones suspended from the shoulder. In between are a dozen other sizes. Some of the handsomest envelopes look like huge rectangles instead of being long and lean.

In case anyone asks, cowpatamus is a heavy, grainy leather that looks a bit like elephant hide. It's used in handbags for fall and winter.

She Wanted The Vote

A Radical In Her Day

by BARBARA PETERSON

"You always need a few radicals to go out ahead!" Mrs. Bertha Tash, 7710 Campbell, Des Plaines, was commenting on the Women's Lib strike scheduled for tomorrow.

Bertha Tash should know. She has been arguing for women's rights and social progress since before women got the vote in 1920.

"From the time I was 10 years old, living near Kokomo, Ind., I couldn't see why women couldn't vote. I began reading about the struggle for women's rights and had my first debates about the subject with my father," she commented.

Mrs. Tash, a widow and retired school teacher, ruefully described the social climate for women in the early years of this century. "You were considered practically a Bolshevik if you wanted women to vote. Girls couldn't even play in school bands because the uniforms had trousers, and the violin, of all things, was considered unladylike. Married women weren't hired to teach school at that time."

BERTHA'S LIFELONG ambition was to be a teacher. "I even used to teach the empty chairs when I was a little girl," she smiled. "Best pupils I ever had!"

She determined early in life to make her home in Chicago and told Chester Tash, her late husband, that if he wanted to marry her, he'd have to come to Chicago and find a job there.

Prior to her marriage, Bertha worked for the government in Washington, D.C., during the closing days of World War I. Active as usual, she joined a volunteer group which passed out pamphlets in favor of U.S. participation in the League of Nations. She recalls mingling with the crowds at the victory parade for Gen. John "Black Jack" Pershing, selling booklets for a fund to benefit wounded soldiers.

HER EARLY IDOL was Ella Flagg Young, a Chicago educator with liberal views toward full teacher's rights for women. Bertha came to Chicago permanently in 1920, and remembers her pleasure at being in her favorite place to celebrate when women were given the vote that summer. The League of Women Voters, to which she belongs, was founded that same year.

During her 45-year teaching career, she was active in PTA and student council work, and served in many underprivileged areas of the city, including the Hull House neighborhood, where she knew Jane Addams.

"I loved the people there. I take a special joy in the struggles and the triumphs of Negroes," she said. "When people realize they are being denied their rights, they'll try to get them."

A voracious reader, Mrs. Tash is currently immersed in the biography of Malcolm X, the late black leader.

OPEN-MINDED AND articulate, Bertha Tash holds her own view of religion. "I go to the church that's closest. I can't see any reason for anyone to say 'My church is better than any other.'"

Her household reflects her ecumenical feelings. Since her husband is deceased and her only son grown and married, Mrs. Tash has several roomers. One is a native of Lithuania and a Catholic, and the others are Mormon missionaries.

Returning to politics and women's rights, Mrs. Tash expressed approval of the Women's Lib groups, although she would not go so far as to advocate the women's strike. "I approve of their aims, if not necessarily their methods," she observed. "I sure do believe in equal pay for equal work, and I think if there's something you can do, just do it. I took a lot of pride in that gal who became a jockey!"

HOWEVER, BERTHA TASH does not have much use for the current hippie and drug culture. "I don't approve of drugs, and I think the hippies should be put to work on a rockpile somewhere — they're just allergic to work. And the way they look — well, you know nothing good comes from a swill barrel!" she commented tartly.

Bertha Tash is a great believer in third political parties. "After all, both major parties take up things that were advocated by the nuts," she said. Needless to say, she votes as independently as she does everything else.

Although she never chained herself to the White House railings as some early suffragettes did, Mrs. Tash is definitely cast in their mold as far as free thinking and women's progress are concerned. After more than 50 years in the vanguard, she's still not ready to take a back seat to anyone.

AN EARLY ADVOCATE OF women's suffrage, Mrs. Bertha Tash recalls the days before women got the vote.

One of the easiest ways to help a drab exterior is to add wood shutters, painted in a pleasing contrast to the siding. At tuch them so they can be removed for an occasional spray painting.

Newcombe-Gonzalez: Classic In Evanston

John Newcombe, 1970 Wimbledon Champion, will have more at stake than the $10,000 prize money when he meets Pancho Gonzalez in a head-to-head match Sept. 18 at McGraw Hall, Evanston.

Newcombe remembers, only too well, how easily Gonzalez beat him last January in Detroit — 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 — to win a $10,000 head-to-head match and knock "New" out of competition in the $200,000 Tennis Champions Classic. The Sept. 18 rematch will give Newcombe a chance to even the score in more ways than one.

The Newcombe-Gonzalez match will be the highlight of the two-day Marriott All-Star Tennis Classic at McGraw Hall, Sept. 17 and 18.

Following the January match, the 26-year-old Aussie felt despondent. "I just LOST CONFIDENCE, THAT'S ALL," HE SAID. "I started off losing. I had no concentration whatever. I never even got into the match."

Since that time, Newcombe's concentration has vastly improved and, more important, he has regained his confidence. Last July he won Wimbledon, becoming a two-time winner.

And, if that wasn't enough, John and his partner Tony Roche, who have won Wimbledon doubles the past two years as well as 1965, did it again. That made Newcombe, who also won with Ken Fletcher in 1968, the first five-time doubles winner since 1914. It also made him the first player in 14 years to win both the singles and doubles.

Newcombe was confident going into the tournament, played at the famous All England Club in the London suburb of Wimbledon. "I knew I was ready," John said. "You remember, I said at the Rawlings Tennis Classic in St. Louis (the first part of June) that I was ready to hit my peak. I lost the finals at Queens Club (a Wimbledon warm-up tournament played in London) to Laver but that didn't bother me. I was ready."

Newcombe's remarkably even high-level performance over two weeks of Wimbledon competition would certainly attest to his concentration. His important championship win over veteran Ken Rosewall in the finals 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, was a severe test of that all-important concentration, for the steady, small guy nicknamed "Muscles," is the owner of the best backhand around. In addition, the Wimbledon crowd — all 15,000 — were Pro-Rosewall.

"That crowd went ape for him . . . I never heard anything like it. While I was trying to figure why they hated me I lost concentration," Newcombe said. "Sure I was sorry for Kenny, but I wanted to win the damn thing, too. I was in trouble then, but we had a few close games which I managed to win and pulled it out," he recalled.

He pulled it out all right, if you call 11-9 in the fifth pulling anything out. That match lasted three hours and 10 minutes.

The question now is, can the handsome native of Sydney maintain that concentration and confidence in the face of a return match with Pancho Gonzalez?

So far this year Newcombe has won $45,280, but he says, "My winnings should come to between $50,000 and $80,000 before the year is out." Only $7,200 of that total came from winning the most prestigious tournament in the world — Wimbledon. More importantly though, with that win Newcombe can face the endorsement offers and say "I'm the best and I proved it." That's important too, because according to Newcombe, "A top player ought to make $110,000 to $150,000 a year, including endorsements."

Newcombe and Gonzalez will have good company at the Marriott All-Star Tennis Classic. On Thursday night, Sept. 17, fellow 1970 Wimbledon champion

Margaret Smith Court will be here to play Nancy Richey, U.S. No. one-ranked woman player. Then, Arthur Ashe and Cliff Richey, of this year's Davis Cup team, will meet in singles action. The third and final event Thursday night will be a mixed doubles with Cliff and Nancy Richey playing Margaret Smith Court and Arthur Ashe.

Friday night's action will start off with Evanston's Marty Riessen playing U.S. Pro Champion Tony Roche. Next comes the Newcombe-Gonzalez match. The action wraps up with Marty Riessen and Tom Okker teaming against Tony Roche and Ismail El Shafei.

Action starts both nights at 7:15 p.m. Tickets are priced at $6.50 and $3.00 and are on sale at all Ticketron outlets and Marshall Field and Montgomery Ward stores. Tickets can also be purchased at Northwestern's Dwyer Stadium or by mail order. Mail orders should be addressed to Marriott All-Star Tennis Classic, Suite 505, 333 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Button-Down Riders Are Building Cycle Market

by BOB COCHRAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) There is a chap of some renown in this city called Robert Metz who by day is a mild-mannered financial columnist for The New York Times, a newspaper of some renown.

Metz is a slight, pleasant fellow of distinguished mien, favoring the button-down raiment of his Times and Wall Street colleagues.

On weekends, however, this quiet scribe repairs to his country home in Pennsylvania not for a round of croquet on the lawn, not even for a sail on the lake, not even to take his ease with his devoted wife and loving children. Robert Metz owns — and evidently loves — a motorcycle.

"I've wanted to own one for years," he says, as his eyes glaze and his voice changes to the rhapsodic sing-song of a possessed man. "While I was in college I traveled everywhere on my thumb. This bike is a good approximation of that sense of adventure and pure freedom."

"It's an extension of the cowboy spirit, a release from everything. You hit that throttle and roar forward with an incredible sense of power and exhilaration. Yes, he has seen 'Easy Rider' three times. 'The film does capture the feeling,' he says.

Metz is by no means alone in his lust. There are more than 2.2 million motorcycles now registered in the United States. In 1960, bikes were estimated to be a $300 million business and according to Peter Thornton, president of the Birmingham Small Arms Company U.S. (BSA, Triumph), "If the industry maintains the present growth rate, sales may well approach the $1 billion mark in 1970."

And the industry need no longer apologize for the Hell's Angels types who happen to like bikes. Thornton points out that the average owner of a Triumph motorcycle is 27 and makes $14,000.

Thornton is an MIT graduate, former automobile executive and professional manager who does not have engine grease under his nails, thus blunting another image. "Motorcycles are not simply another means of transportation," he says. "There is something strangely hypnotic about them, something like skiing or surfing."

BSA's Thornton easily credits the Japanese for creating an entire generation of motorcycle enthusiasts in the United States. The boom began in 1960 when some 80,000 lightweight, inexpensive bikes were sold, he says. People, especially young ones, soon learned how much fun bike riding was. The British eventually noticed what was happening in the states and dusted off their heavier, more powerful motorcycles.

"Today, the average purchaser buys his second bike less than a year after he buys his first one, always trading up into more powerful equipment, of course."

According to a recent story in a financial paper, the increased business appears to have come from the middle-aged executive who is using his motorcycle instead of a car to get to work. "Motorcyclings seems to be almost socially acceptable," Thornton observes.

BSA is, of course, interested in broadening the market and figures that racing is a good attraction. "We'll be spending about $400,000 on our racing program this year," the chief executive notes, "which we think is a good investment. I've noticed a lot of solid-looking citizens at the race tracks."

Metz of The Times, disclaims interest in competition but adds shyly that he is "thinking about a bigger bike. I'd like more power."

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

IF INTENTIONS were the key to victory, the battle against environmental destruction in the United States would have been over as soon as it began.

In recent years, no single cause has attracted the attention and interest of the American people as has the effort to preserve fresh air and clean water. Government leaders, industry and the academic community have been joined by John Q. Public in the race to preserve the environment Americans have lived in for almost 200 years.

Unfortunately, despite the fact that it is a one-sided fight with no one opposed to a clean environment, the battlefield logistics have been such that a victory has not been attained.

One of the hindrances has been a lack of total coordination and direction of the effort. For example, the public wants an immediate end to pollution of all kinds but industry, which is one of the major polluters, is not able to provide that without serious financial consequences.

If the industries were to direct their efforts solely toward eliminating their contributions to pollution and environmental destruc-rupting other important functions of society.

An effort in this direction is being undertaken by the Midwestern Regional Conference on Science, Technology and State Government, which will hold its next meeting at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel in November.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, is a member of the conference and deserves the credit for attracting the 15-state conference to the Northwest suburbs.

The three-day conference is expected to attract governors, legislative leaders and scientists from throughout the Midwest, as well as representatives of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Department of Commerce and the National Science Foundation.

Graham said the intention of the conference is to weigh the arguments on all sides of the environmental protection issue and learn solutions that are compatible with both a healthy environment and a healthy, growing economy.

This appears to be an excellent approach to the whole issue of environmental protection. Obviously, everyone wants to correct the mistakes which led to the gradual destruction of the environment but we cannot make a similar mistake by plunging ahead with solutions before the consequences are known.

That, after all, was the mistake that allowed the environment to get fouled up in the first place.

The Midwestern Regional Conference on Science, Technology and State Government has the potential to find answers to many questions and, happily, the conference will be held in the Northwest suburbs.

Down The Parks' Memory Lane

by LEON SHURE

Summer is over for the Des Plaines Park District and plans are being formed now for the winter.

There are some happy memories.

What about the happy winners of the watermelon eating contests? They were Sally Boylan, Cindy Wade, Mary Fredrich, Marty Kneller, Ken Johnson, Therese Melone. Also, Mike Gaven, Tony Cabello, Pat McGahan, Don Quinetti and Linda Florey. Let's not forget that the top hopsotch winners were Ron Kaminski and Mike Cabello.

Remember the time the "And How" day campers at Lake Park had their treasure hunt? The treasure was a large box of popcorn.

IT WAS A SUMMER filled with various activities of the Golden Agers Club, featuring trips to points of interest and valuable tips on how to spend their time.

The "Battle of the Bands" was held at Lake Opeka in mid-July. They performed a band selection written by Des Plaines resident Jacob Jerger, 1904 S. Birch. The Maine West Summer Band performed, under the direction of Gerald Hug. Guest conductor was Don Prorak, 40 E. Kathleen, a Maine West graduate.

Old dogs learned new tricks this summer, as part of the park district dog training course, with instructors from the Rand Park Dog club.

The first place winner for best trained dog was Karen Ladendorf. Her dog's name is Becky, a wire-haired Terrier.

The Round-up, which ended several of the camp park district programs was held at the end of July. On display were the products of the arts and crafts program. There were such things as pop-sicle stick bird houses, and Father's day gifts.

SADDEST MEMORY was the accidental drowning of a Des Plaines youth. But five Des Plaines youths earned their Red Cross senior life saving cards, and almost 800 youths took swimming lessons.

New programs planned for the winter include a first-aid course, creative stitching, and judo classes. The Foot-lighters, a theater group, are planning to present an original play.

A new women's volleyball league will meet Sept. 2, to organize.

The usual winter programs also will be presented. These include football, winter swimming classes, square dance instruction Sept. 2, to organize.

Also new this year, will be a winter brochure explaining all the programs available. Usually, the district would issue monthly flyers.

These brochures, which will describe the programs from October through March, will be available soon from the park district's pretty recreation supervisor, Pam Falt, at the park office, 748 Pearson, 296-6106.

Need Recreation For Teens

I couldn't help but be amused (or perhaps discouraged would be a better word) by the two items appearing one above the other on the front page of the Aug. 14 edition of the Mount Prospect Herald.

The lower part of the page is devoted to the last of four articles regarding the "teenager problems at Meadows Park." The article mentions problems such as speeding motorcycles, "rodding" up and down Council Street, the noise caused by the running of automobile and motorcycle engines — and the groups feeling that "they have no other place to go."

I AGREE THAT engine noise, hot-rodding on the public streets, etc., are very annoying — not to say dangerous. But why can't we face the fact that a large number of teenagers (if not the majority) are no longer satisfied with more baseball fields in the parks, with new football fields — with new community centers that impose restrictions that obviate their usefulness.

Why can't one of the parks provide bicycle and motorcycle trails, a controlled drag-strip, a place where a local rock group can practice and/or perform, a place where the group can get together and work on their bikes and cars? I'm afraid the answer is that you can't let all those long-haired, sloppily dressed "hip-pies" do that — because we who control the parks know that they're bad, and if they were good teenagers they'd join a baseball league. Anything they want to do that I don't appreciate and don't enjoy, must be wrong. Can't we face the fact that it's we who are behind the times — that we can't enforce our idea of recreation on someone else, and then complain because they are wrong?

Just above this article is a large picture with a caption that states in part: "earth movers level the land . . . for a lighted baseball field, a football field and six tennis courts, etc." We once again are building what we want the teenagers to want — and once again we'll have groups saying they have no other place to go. Here was a chance, in the 30 acre area, to provide bike trails, etc. A place to take care of all of those teenagers who aren't turned-on by the older generations idea of what to do for recreation.

We can't complain, when we refuse to understand, or even listen to the teenager. When we continue to insist that they like exactly what we like. When we automatically equate long hair and a different way of dress with reasons for fear and hate. Let's face facts, and give them some of the recreational areas and equipment a lot of them want . . . let's give them some place to go.

Kids 'Unbelievable'

The teen-age destruction in the Weller Creek area (near Wa-Pella Avenue) in Mount Prospect is unbelievable. So is the noise, violence and indiscriminate acts.

Young men and women — commonly known as "tree monkeys" (because they swing from limbs of trees by big ropes) — have virtually stripped the insides of the beautiful park trees. They litter the area with beer cans, wine bottles. They've ripped apart the Weller Creek bridge a number of times in the past two years. From their tree perches, they scream obscenities at innocent passers-by. They ignore rights which they so piously pretend to uphold.

In turn, the police department and park district choose to ignore these breaches of the law, apparently fearing the wrath of the young.

Youths' Good Deeds Need Recognition, Too

All too often we hear about the bad things teen-agers are doing. I feel some recognition for good deeds and performance is very much in order in this case.

I speak of the Palestine summer recreation group — the three young people of the Pleasant Hill staff, Debbie Kratochvil, Jim Jarocki and Peter Zopp. Under the leadership of Duane Hosmer, of the Palestine Park District, we feel that they did an outstanding job.

We couldn't have been more impressed with their weekly schedule of activities and were amazed how their unlimited range of ideas motivated the children through the summer. Upon observing the detailed schedules sent home and samples of actual projects, we would like all involved in this program to know how much their efforts were appreciated.

Knox Notes

System's Strength Was Upheld

by KEN KNOX

The Brian Flanagan case represents a benchmark decision in the new age of revolution.

For Hippies, Yuppies, the SDS and assorted other revolutionaries, Flanagan's acquittal really is something of an embarrassment. I suspect they'd rather hide from it, because their ends would have been better served if the young New Yorker had been sent up for a couple years.

But he wasn't, and the jury's decision to set him free left an inescapable conclusion: The System works, even for someone who would spit on it.

Flanagan, whatever role he might have played in the havoc in Chicago last October, got his free pass in the courtroom because the jurors bore down on the one issue before them: whether Flanagan broke the neck of Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Elrod.

FLANAGAN'S SALVATION came through the doctrine of reasonable doubt. There was enough contradictory testimony by prosecution and defense witnesses that the jury couldn't be sure one way or the other, and under our trial system, the doubt clears the defendant.

Another kind of reasonable doubt has arisen since the verdict, with Flanagan's clenched-fist emergence from the courtroom, his obscenity-sprinkled vow to return to the streets to fight, his cynical and ironic denunciation of the chances to get a fair trial in Chicago.

Was the jury wrong? No matter. The case wasn't proved, and that's the first requirement. If the prosecution did assume that the jury would do its duty on the general premise that Flanagan wasn't a nice character, it erred grievously. The system works only if you work at it.

Something has been made of the fact that Flanagan "played the game" during his trial, that he trimmed his hair and traded his jeans and sweater for Edwardian suits to help him beat the system.

HE DIDN'T BEAT it at all, of course. He just helped it work, and proved that it hasn't endured through our history without merit. If anything, Flanagan, the self-styled revolutionary cast aside his integrity, unwilling to take the risk of any hitch in the system, such as a hang-up over life styles.

Even in the celebrated, riotous Chicago 7 trial, that essential strength of the system was upheld. There, the defendants went to the other extreme of Flanagan, literally showing their revolutionary views and life styles down the throats of anyone in sight or earshot.

And still — despite the general assumption that in the end repression would have its day — all seven were acquitted on one charge and two of the seven on the other. That was a pretty careful deliberation, however much some may howl "compromise."

Great and strained efforts were made to characterize both trials as political, but in neither case did it work out that way. If the issues indeed had been life styles, and if all American citizens had symbolically jammed the jurors' box to sit in judgment on the revolutionary ethic, none of the defendants would be free today.

It all made exciting reading while it was happening, but it's over now. It ended up in the hopper of the trial by jury system, which did what it had to do and dressed and clanked on its way. And that, in the days and years to come, is something that Brian Flanagan is never going to be able to explain.

$225,000 To Wood Dale Park Dist.

by KEN HARDWICKE

Owners of the Travelaire Day Camp have donated the site with an Olympic-size swimming pool, two acres of property and numerous recreational facilities to the Wood Dale Park District, the Register has learned.

The pool, property and equipment is valued at approximately $225,000. The park board is unaware of the donation but Mayor Ralph Hanson intends to inform them of the recreational gift this week.

Ethel and Joseph Vichok, owners of the day camp, decided to offer the valuable recreational facilities to the park district because the camp was getting too expensive to maintain.

"The camp is just not profitable anymore," Joseph Vichok said. "It just costs too much money to bus kids. It's too much trouble for us and we're getting too old."

Reportedly, the maintenance of the Travelaire Day Camp cost approximately $100 a day. The owners were also concerned with the high cost of labor.

"MY ONLY FEAR is that the park district might say that it can't afford it," Mayor Hanson said. "If they can't I certainly intend to approach the Lions to find funds to operate the pool. I think it is terrific that the man wants to donate this property. He could sell it. This sort of thing doesn't happen every day."

Mayor Hanson was the first village official informed of the Travelaire donation. Friday night he was summoned by the owners to take a tour of the camp's facilities. He was notified of the donation at that time.

Besides the L-shaped swimming pool, the Vichoks also will donate two acres of their property at the corner of Central and Third Avenue to be used as a park and baseball field.

ALSO, RECREATIONAL equipment such as baseball gloves, bats, footballs, volleyballs, two trampolines and arts and crafts materials will be donated.

"There are so many things that would go to waste and the park district will utilize the equipment," Vichok said. "We're donating it because we can't sell it."

The land, equipment and pool will be free and clear of all liens, according to the owners.

Although the board has yet to be notified of the donation, Bill McDowell, park commissioner, said Monday night he was immediately receptive to the Vichok's gift when contacted by The Register.

"I'm certainly not opposed to it," McDowell said. "The idea sounds great. The park district would have the funds available to maintain it."

Owners of the Travelaire Day Camp had offered to sell the pool along with 19 surrounding acres to the park district two years ago. The sale never evolved. Since that time the camp has operated, mostly in the summer, by busing kids from the neighboring areas.

THE LARGE SWIMMING pool is about ten years old and would give Wood Dale residents their second pool within the park district. Construction on the new $325,000 park pool behind the Municipal Building has begun.

"There was only one way to utilize that size pool and that was to donate it to the park district," said Vichok.

The Travelaire Day Camp, 17W350 Third Ave., lies outside Wood Dale's park district but Commissioner McDowell feels it would be an ideal site for another park. Wood Dale already has two parks under development.

"It's a good park site because there is room to put recreational equipment there," McDowell said. "It has a lot of possibilities."

The Travelaire Day Camp has been operating in the Wood Dale-Bensenville area for 20 years but the Vichoks have only directed the camp's activities for the past two years. It was the strain of running the camp and operating his Action Marking Products Co. in River Grove, that forced the donation.

"IT JUST IS NOT feasible anymore," Vichok said of the camp's operation. "I would like to do something for the kids in the area."

Jo Kuffel, park commissioner, indicated that the park board would discuss the Vichoks' contribution this week and decide whether to accept it.

"LOOK MOM, No hands!" That's what this youngster is shouting as he floats atop the water at the Travelaire Day Camp swimming pool. Travelaire owners, Ethel and Joseph Vichok, have decided to donate the pool, two acres of adjacent land and numerous recreational facilities to the Wood Dale Park District. The donation is valued at $225,000 and will give the village added park facilities.

Flood Plain Areas Problem In Village

Bensenville's flood plain area, located east of the Brentwood area in the vicinity of George Street, has been the center of recent concern from area residents and village officials.

To help alleviate the flood problem in the area, Trustee William Hegebarth has suggested that Bensenville boulder Ralph Cantrell should bring fill from within the flood plain instead of from outside sources.

Cantrell has been bringing in fill for a section on George Street of low level flood plain where the builder is planning an apartment development.

"This fill should be moved around within the flood plain instead of bringing it in from outside which complicates the flood problem," Hegebarth said.

"IF YOU WANT us to raise George Street (above the flood plain level) I am going to get the fill wherever I can for as cheap as I can," Cantrell recently told the board.

In a recent telephone survey, the board voted 4 to 1 to allow Cantrell to bring several loads of fill into the George Street area.

"We don't want additional fill brought into the flood plain," Hegebarth said in defense of his lone negative vote. "The purpose of the load limit on George Street was to stop people from bringing fill in from outside. I'm not opposed to trucks going on George Street, but I am opposed to Zaccari or Cantrell bringing more fill into the flood plain."

Women's Liberation Loses

by LINDA VACHATA

If the response of the female employees of the Village of Bensenville is any indication as to how the Women's Liberation Movement is accepted in the village, the males of Bensenville have no worries.

Today is Strike Day for these women of the country who feel they are being discriminated against by the male population. Women throughout the country have been asked to cover their typewriters, chuck their laundry and ironing and march in protest of this discrimination.

"Don't Iron while the Strike is Hot" may be a familiar cry of the Women's Lib fans, but in Bensenville today, it appears few will join the bandwagon.

"I don't believe in Women's Liberation," said Charlotte Baylor, village hall secretary. "If women don't like it why don't they stay at home. We don't need to have two bosses in a house. I want to be dominated to a certain extent."

"RIGHT ON" claims Norma Wallace, Village finance officer, who contends she is not discriminated against. After all, she is the first female finance officer in the village.

"I feel women should have equal rights with men. Women are stronger mentally and physically," she said in feeble agreement with the movement. "Women are always mother until the day they die."

Norma does feel there is some discrimination, but "men are coming across." That's why she does not support the Women's Liberation Movement.

"Women's Liberation is really a big farce. They don't have a decent argument and they are going about it in the wrong way," Norma added.

Violet Pockus, receptionist, thinks women should get more credit for intelligence and strength than men are willing to give them. Although she does not intend to strike today, she sympathizes with the Women's Liberation Movement.

"I THINK WOMEN are more intelligent than men," she said. "A man will put a woman down because he does not think she is capable. I don't think a man could do a receptionist's job."

"There is no way I am going to strike," said Judy Guido, 18, a part time summer employee for the village. "Do your own thing. I am satisfied with the way things are."

Judy, who was the first 18-year-old to register to vote in the village, doesn't think the strike will do any good. "It will get a lot of publicity and that may help them in the long run."

The liberation of women from a male oriented society has been breeding for many years. In Bensenville however, it appears women may just as soon take on their mother role in society and leave the men's world to the men.

The males of Bensenville, at least today, can rest easy in knowing most women in the village will carry on with their chores as always.

St. Alexis Begins Year

It will be back to the grind of classes for St. Alexis Catholic School youngsters in Bensenville Sept. 1 at 8:30 a.m. when the first full day of classes begins for the 1970-71 school year.

This year St. Alexis will be back to 14 classes with the addition of another first grade class. Last year one of the first grade classes was dropped because of a decrease in enrollment for that age level, according to the school's principal, Sister Barbara Rowan.

Four new faces will be added this fall to the St. Alexis faculty of four sisters and 10 lay teachers.

ANN CARBO, of Elmwood Park, will teach first grade; Mrs. Judith Ann Lindboe, of Addison, will teach the other first grade class; Virginia Watts of Oak Park, will teach second grade and Sister Anita Fischer, the principal of Holy Ghost Catholic School in Wood Dale last year, will teach reading to levels four, five and six and will have a fifth grade homeroom.

While St. Alexis youngsters enjoyed summer vacation, several teachers were back at school. Mrs. Jean Groesch attended Wheaton College; Sister Fischer and Sister Rowan attended graduate school at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, and Sister Theresa Lemak attended the Conservatory of Music in Chicago.

Beginning yesterday St. Alexis faculty members were back in Bensenville for a week of faculty workshops.

A special church service was held for the faculty yesterday morning followed by a picnic lunch conducted by women of the parish. Informal sessions for faculty members are scheduled for the rest of the week.

PARTICIPANTS in the Bensenville Park District Water Ballet program took a dive last weekend for the community water show. Precious swimming costumes were performed by Bensenville youngsters while "landlubbers" from the Addison Park District supplemented the program with poolside acrobatic acts.

Bensenville Park District Celebrates Ten Years

BY LINDA VACHATA

Ten years ago tomorrow the Bensenville Park District was created with little more than a wealth of enthusiasm from its creators and the support of the community.

Tomorrow evening those people who were responsible for its creation and those who have directed its growth through serving on the park district board of commissioners, will celebrate the conception of the growing ten-year-old district.

In August, 1960, over 700 Bensenville voters went to the polls and with a vote of 444 to 332 gave the go-ahead for the formation of a park district.

Ten years later, still a child, the park district has grown stronger with the addition of facilities and the aid of professional guidance.

Tomorrow night park commissioners, past and present and others, will gather at White Pines Country Club in Bensenville to reminisce about how exciting it was when the first park sites were donated in 1963 or how hectic it was during negotiations to purchase forest preserve property in 1965.

THERE IS MUCH to look back upon, but still more to look forward to for the district.

In addition to the 103 acres of land owned by the park district as of this summer, 75 acres more are leased from the village, Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2, the Bensenville Home, Peace Church, Campbell Products and the DuPage Forest Preserve Commission.

Negotiations are now underway for an additional three to five acres for an east-side playground. Lease discussions with the village are being conducted for a major park of 15 to 25 acres to serve residents living east of York Road.

THE CURRENT MASTER plan for the district includes three major park sites in the village to be supplemented with nine to 12 neighborhood playgrounds.

Plans for Deer Park and the Blackhawk Junior High School area have already been approved. This area will serve as one of the three major park sites and will include several baseball diamonds, a swimming pool, track area and possibly a lake.

The leased village site would serve as another major park area for residents east of York Road and the third major park site is planned for an area west of Rte. 83.

IN 1970 THE park district received its first recreation tax funds and entered a new phase of park district service to the community — a summer recreational program.

The successful summer program provided recreation activities for the youngsters. A fall program has already been planned and will include activities for adults and high-school-age young people as well as grammar school children.

The immediate plans of the park board include major improvements at the Poplar Street Playground, Crestbrook Playground and Belmont (Marge) Park. The board also hopes to begin developing the Deer Park recreation complex this year.

"Tobogganing at Deer Park this winter" is a promise several commissioners have made to their children.

The present plans for development would never have been possible, however, without the efforts of those people who laid the ground work.

PEOPLE LIKE GUS Van Mol, Bensenville's Village President in 1958, who set the wheels in motion for the creation of a park district.

Others like Bill Grothstuck, Bob Nichols, Tom Wiley, Sandy Howell, Earl Whelan, Dick Terhune, John Goss, Tom Simms, Wally Hartcraft, Joe Kula, Bill Durlak, Red McCarthy, Dick Mueller and Grace Thompson who served on the first park district study committee.

People like Rudy Krempels, Wayne Scheppe, John Varble, Maxine Gells and Bob Nichols who served as the first park commissioners.

The park presidents, Nichols, Varble, Scheppe, Jack Schuster, Donald Carroll and Bill Burde have all been instrumental in strengthening and expanding the park program.

The future of the park district, however, lies with the present park board, Burde, Carroll, Schuster, Nichols and Merle Hummel and the professional staff, Allan Randall, park director and Dan Plaza, superintendent of recreation.

Damaged Property To Get Repairs

All repairs to Wood Dale property damaged by the installation of village water lines should be completed within the next 15 days, according to John R. Adamson, village manager.

Adamson made his assessment Thursday after 60 per cent of the village had been properly landscaped for repairs.

"All we're asking Marisch (water line contractor) is to have the water flow where it did before," said Alex Tennant, public works superintendent. Tennant was referring to improper repairs to ditches Marisch made that have caused water not to flow properly for natural drainage.

Lenz Oil, who was contracted by Marisch for the repair work, will be fixing ditches, driveways, culverts and crosscuts throughout the village where water line installation has caused damage.

Lenz Oil will also conduct repairs for the village's annual street maintenance program.

Speakers Available

Group speakers from the DuPage Area Vocational Education Authority (DAVEA) are available upon request by civic, PTA and other groups.

Speakers will discuss the need for a vocational education authority in the county and answer questions.

Those interested should call the DAVEA office at 682-7183 or 682-7184.

Lake Park High School in Roselle and Fenton High School in Bensenville are members of DAVEA.

ONE OF THE Bensenville Park District's "prize" possessions is the swimming pool-snack bar complex of Central Park, which was donated by a local businessman's organization in 1966. An addition was built on to the structure in 1967 to provide a warming house for Central Park ice skaters.

Dedication Held At Park Building

Itasca's new park district building was officially dedicated to Walter A. Schmidt, often called the "father of Itasca politics," at the groundbreaking ceremonies held Tuesday morning at Washington Park.

His two grandsons, Mike and Peter Pawlak, 317 W. Bloomingdale Rd., Itasca, broke ground with a silver shovel bearing the inscription, "Walter A. Schmidt Park and Recreation Building." When the building is completed, the shovel will be placed in a walnut case and displayed in the lobby.

According to Jerry Usher, president of the park board, the dedication decision was made over a year ago. "It was to have been a surprise" to Schmidt, who died last June, he said.

Others attending the ceremony were Schmidt's daughter, Harriet Pawlak, her husband John, and two other children, Barbara and Mary. Glenn Morrison, Joan Lawson and Ed Schubel of the park board were also present, along with the architect, Robert Jensen, and the builder, Robert Barth.

BENSENVILLE PARK Commissioner Robert Nichols, center, broke "snow" in January, 1968, for the park maintenance building, now located on Church Road. Taking part in the brief gathering were, from left, Glenn Morrison, architect; Bill Flor-ing, then park director; Nichols, Donald Carroll, both commissioners, and Wayne Waltrip, president of Watson Construction Co. Nichols has served with the park district since 1960.

Help Diabetes Research

Hundreds of millions of people in the world today inject drugs into their blood, not for kicks or out of curiosity, but because they must. They are diabetics. Unlike many people today, diabetics don't live for drugs, they live because of drugs. There are 300 million known diabetics in the world today and another 300 million who haven't been detected.

Insulin gives many of them their lives but it doesn't provide answers to many other problems facing diabetics, whose jobs, insurance and family life are affected because of their disease.

Research can help provide the ultimate answer in a cure. However, research requires money. An important source of money, federal funds has been cut in all areas of health research.

COPE, (Concerned Parents of Diabetic Children Research Fund Raising Foundation) is a newly formed group with a complicated name but a very clear purpose — to raise funds for diabetic research.

Consisting of parents from the entire suburban area, COPE, is aware of the work that needs to be done if a cure for diabetes is to be found.

COPE IS SPONSORING a carnival this week at Roselle's Scout Park, just off of Irving Park Road. It begins today continuing through Sunday. Proceeds will go to Northwestern University's diabetic research program.

The people in COPE don't have a monopoly on the concern for more research. Mrs. Mary Sodermark, president of the group, points out "everyone either knows or is related to a diabetic and there are many potential diabetics."

COPE's efforts so far have been fruitful. Many businesses and individuals have contributed generously toward making the event a success. We urge readers to join in that effort and support diabetic research by attending the carnival in Roselle.

Clown Promotes Benefit Carnival

Hundreds of people in the Chicago suburban area will see the captivating face of a melancholy clown this week on the poster advertising a special fund raising carnival sponsored by Concerned Parents of Diabetic Children (COPE).

"Please help. There's so much to do," the clown seems to say and his message is the same as COPE's.

The newly formed group is holding its first fund raising project in Roselle at Scout Park starting today and continuing through Sunday.

The clown, reproduction of an oil painting by 13-year-old Larry Farenkopf, Park Ridge, is now an exclusive trademark for COPE, and will be used for future projects.

Plans for the carnival began less than two months ago. Business industry and individuals have donated time, money and merchandise toward its success, according to Mrs. Mary Sodermark, Roselle, president of COPE.

Newspaper, television and radio personalities have been invited to attend the carnival in support of diabetic research along with members of the medical profession.

The carnival is scheduled to begin around 6 p.m. each day for the five-day run. Proceeds will be given to the Northwestern University Diabetic research program, according to Mrs. Sodermark.

DRAWN BY the sad eyes of the clown, Glenn Andersen, 7, Kimi Sodermark, 4, and Johnny Sodermark, 6, read all about the carnival. The clown on the poster is a reproduction of an oil painting by Larry Farenkopf, 13, Park Ridge.

With a virtual guarantee that the DuPage County Board is qualifying for national headlines in the news, what with TV cameras shooting all over the board room and the quarters jammed to the rafters including crying babes and consoling mothers, the members forthrightly did their duty Tuesday "as God gives us to see the right." This quote is apropos because it's an all-Republican assemblage.

What attracted the TV people and outside reporters as well as scores of DuPage County taxpayers and their kids was the much heralded and controversial Green Trails deluxe planned development in Lisle Township, rated as a $300 million project on 1700 acres.

In the pledge of allegiance to the flag, a part of the board's opening ceremony, there was a unanimous expression of "justice for all!" In his invocation the chaplain asked for divine direction to make sure this "justice" was accomplished.

Frankly what was at issue was dollar justice vs. people justice, the future as well as the present. Chairman Weeks of the county board said Green Trails was the biggest project and the biggest issue ever to hit DuPage County. He called it an "economically viable community" with homes for 20,000 people. He had been deluged with phone calls, he said. He admitted that what was taking place in the county "most of us don't like" but it appears to be the wave of the future.

One of the last minute innovations in this program when it came up for a vote was a provision (school boards in the area insisted on), that the planners — four landowners — set aside 81.3 acres for school sites. This was mandatory.

It was brought out that formal protests were made by Lisle and Wood Ridge against the project as well as a petition signed by 550 people. There was some question of the landowners. Was it constitutional? Can you take a landowner's property for schools in a planned community from which he expects to benefit dollarwise without his consent? Should the home buyer with kids look out for schools and pay for them out of his own pocket? Where is justice?

A recess was called to permit the zoning committee to reexamine its position in the light of late developments and studies. It voted unanimously to support the Green Trails plan request with the school sites included and so recommended to the board. A 24-4 vote supported the recommendation. (24 votes were required because of the protests).

Chairman James of the zoning committee admits there is no precedent to set aside acreage sites in a land development without the consent of the property owners. A court test would probably follow. It might go all the way to the Supreme Court in Washington. But Paul Hoffman, Oliver Hoffman Corporation, one of the four developers with 230 acres told reporters he did not foresee a court test. The school clause, he said, meant that he was pulling out of the development with the 230 acres. If this comes to pass the project falls flat or there has to be some revisions in the plans.

But there was still another fly in this Green Trails ointment. The DuPage County Peoples' Coalition for low income housing filed a memorandum asking the board to consider:

"That the DuPage County Board of Supervisors proceed immediately to direct and authorize the County Housing Authority to take necessary steps that will seek and negotiate for the including of low income or public housing provisions in the Green Trails Development Plan."

Pat Savano, Bloomingdale Township, moved that the request be received and placed on file. Chairman Weeks spoke the sentiment of the board when he said, "We are not prepared to act on the request at this time."

He said the county was in the process of rewriting zoning laws (14 years old) in the light of present day problems to bring these ordinances up to date. It can't be done overnight, he said, and will take as long as possibly two years. Facts are all-important in this work which means the exclusion of "biased opinion." That's the task before the county board.

Most of the spectators were said to be Coalition people who come from every township in the county. Organized low-income families, an economic necessity for a balanced local economy, are a growing social and political force in the DuPage urban society. Where will it all end?

Weekend Classes Set By College

College of DuPage has an open-door admissions policy, which means that anyone 18 years of age or older may apply for admission.

But often prospective students are hampered in their post-secondary studies by time conflicts during the week, such as a full-or part-time employment, child-care responsibilities and other personal demands.

To help serve the educational needs of those who find it difficult to attend classes during the week, College of DuPage is offering a full spectrum of "weekend" classes, which meet Friday evening or throughout the day on Saturday.

Approximately 60 such classes have been scheduled for the fall quarter at College of DuPage, set to begin Tuesday, Sept. 22.

MANY OF THE courses will be helpful to students who wish to improve occupational skills or change to another career area; among these are accounting, air conditioning and refrigeration, education, food and lodging, library technology and secretarial science.

Some are typical of courses taught during the first two years at a four-year school; for example, biology, economics, English, history and speech.

Additional weekend courses are listed in the fall schedule and will appeal to students who want education to be part of their weekend recreation.

A special open registration period has been scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 8, and Wednesday, Sept. 9, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8:30 p.m., in Building M1 at the west end of the interim campus, Lambert Road at 22nd St., Glen Ellyn.

Students who intend to work toward a certificate or a degree from the college have been told to call the office of admissions for further information.

Bensenville Man

Gets Safety Award

Safety-conscious employees of the Commonwealth Edison Co.'s Chicago-Central substation operating department were recently cited by the company.

Chester Ornas, 314 S. Barren St., Bensenville, was among the employees recognized for working two million man-hours without a disabling injury, a record spanning nearly eight years.

Annexation Is Discussed

About a dozen homeowners in Medinah-Lake Estates, on Lake Street east of Bloomingdale, discussed possible annexation of the approximately 60-acre area to Bloomingdale with members of the village board Monday night.

The homeowners asked questions concerning fees, village policies and rules, and the pros and cons of annexation.

Apparently, several of the residents in lowland sections of the area have received registered letters from the Village of Addison offering to negotiate the possibility of purchasing their land to be used for a lake.

According to Leonard Zimont, 4N616 Medinah Rd., Addison is offering about $2,500 per acre, which is "ridiculously low."

Residents are reportedly investigating the possibility of annexation to Bloomingdale as a defense against the property being presently sought by Addison.

Several Addison village officials were also present at the meeting.

Obituaries

Mrs. Mary Wall

Mrs. Mary Wall, 73, of 165 Forest Glen Drive, Wood Dale, died Monday in St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

Surviving are two sons, John J. of Evanston and Lewis F. of Chicago; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Jane Whalen of Wood Dale; seven grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Lonnie Nelissen of Glenview and Mrs. Julia Phifer of Evanston; and two brothers Joseph and Fred Neckel, both of Germany.

Visitation is today after 7 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Leo and Perry streets, Des Plaines, and all day tomorrow. Funeral mass will be said at 11 a.m. Friday in Holy Ghost Catholic Church, 254 S. Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

David Burmeister

Funeral services for David Burmeister, 20, of 216 S. Miner St., Bensenville, who died suddenly Sunday in his home, will be held at 11 a.m. today in Geils Funeral Home, 180 S. York St., Bensenville. Cremation will follow in Woodlawn Cemetery, Chicago.

Preceded in death by his father, Eugene, survivors include his mother, Violet; a sister, Laura Burmeister; and his grandparents, Mrs. Julia Burmeister and Mrs. Bessie Makovsky.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to The Thresholds, 1026 W. Wilson Ave., Chicago.

Nursery School To Help Handicapped

The DuPage Easter Seal Treatment Center, 706 E. Park Blvd., Villa Park, is now accepting registrations for nursery school.

The fall semester which begins Monday, Sept. 14, will operate four days a week, Monday through Thursday, with separate morning and afternoon classes. A child with any handicap, or multiply handicapped, between ages three and seven yrs., is eligible.

The preschool program provides an opportunity for socialization with peers, and emphasis is put on readiness for school, and helping the child learn to help himself. The nursery school teacher works closely with all therapy departments to re-enforce the aims of therapy and to aid in using newly acquired skills in everyday living situations. The school is licensed by the State of Illinois, and a working relationship with special education personnel aid in the placement of the child in the school system.

Individual physical, occupational, and speech therapy is also available.

If you have a handicapped child, or know of someone who would benefit from the services offered at the Easter Seal Center, call Mary Ann Baum, clinical coordinator, 832-2270 or 832-2279 immediately, as an evaluation appointment is necessary prior to enrollment in the nursery school or therapy program.

Louis Fasse

Funeral services for Louis Fasse, 86, of 57 W. Hattendorf, Roselle, who died Saturday in Sherman Hospital, Elgin, following an extended illness, were held yesterday in Trinity Lutheran Church, Roselle. The Rev. Eugene Triggiaff officiated. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Fasse, a resident of Roselle for 50 years was born in Schaumburg on March 17, 1884. He was a self-employed carpenter.

Preceded in death by his wife, Alma, nee Nerge, survivors include a son, Marvin of Roselle; three daughters, Mrs. Helen Haberkamp of Hinsdale, Mrs. Margaret Tonne of Streamwood and Mrs. Lorraine Eckwall of Elmhurst; eight grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and three sisters, Mrs. Amanda Nerge of Roselle, Mrs. Matilda Campbell of Des Plaines and Mrs. Hermine LeMieux of Fairhope, Alabama.

Contributions may be made to Trinity Lutheran Church Building Fund.

Richert and Meyer Funeral Home, Roselle, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Florence Haas

Private funeral services for Mrs. Florence Haas, 68, of Bensenville, who died Saturday in Ravenswood Hospital, Chicago, were held Monday in Oehler Funeral Home, Des Plaines.

Surviving are her husband, John; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Slack, Gertrude Ouellette, both of Caribou, Maine and Mrs. Odell Hinton of LaPorte, Ind.; and one brother, Edward Ouellette of Caribou, Maine.

Police Get Influx Of Complaints In July

The bustling summer months have provided Bensenville police with an influx of complaints, according to the department's monthly reports.

During the month of July, however, the number of complaints were down slightly over the total from the month before. A total of 469 complaints were handled by patrolmen in July as compared to 523 complaints in June.

Automobile accidents were up slightly in July over those recorded the previous month. There were 68 accidents reported in July compared to 61 in June.

The village's first auto fatality of the year was reported in July.

Of the 121 drivers involved in accidents in the village during July, less than 40 per cent were Bensenville residents. There have been 43 more accidents recorded this year as opposed to the same period of time in 1969.

TEENAGE DISTURBANCES were up to 41 during July as compared to 37 in June. The classification of juvenile offenses in July included eight reported for aggravated assaults, five held for thefts or larceny (excluding auto theft), seven bought, received or possessed stolen property, three violated liquor laws, nine were picked up for disorderly conduct and three violated curfew laws.

Thefts were up appreciably during the month of July. Forty-one thefts were recorded last month as compared to 22 the month before.

Complaints of damage to property were down from 30 in June to 16 in July.

In June, 43 general disturbances other than street disturbances, were reported compared to 19 general disturbances in July.

TEN MORE SPEEDERS were apprehended in July than in June. Parking violations were down from 166 during June to 82 in July.

The month of July marked the close of the first full month of work in the newly formed Juvenile, Detective and Narcotics Division of the Bensenville Police Department.

Hearing Planned On Salt Creek Problem

Like the weather, everybody talks about Salt Creek but nobody does anything about it.

All that may change Sept. 14 when the Wood Dale Village Council holds a public meeting with state officials to discuss a possible solution for the widening and dredging of Salt Creek.

The public hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Wood Dale Fire Hall, 270 N.

Wood Dale Rd. John "Pete" Phillips, chairman of DuPage County Republicans and 37th Dist. Rep., will be available for comment as will John Guillou, state director of the division of waterways.

"WE WANT TO GET Salt Creek updated so it can take the water we dump into it," said Ralph Madonna, village sewer and water commissioner.

Wood Dale residents who live near the creek have voiced their problems with overflowing following heavy rains. They are expected to be in attendance for the meeting.

Village councilmen are concerned with the future of Salt Creek because the village is thinking about installing a storm sewer program. Village officials have stalled the project because they are uncertain as to whether Salt Creek can properly handle the excess storm water without backing up.

To alleviate possible flooding conditions of the creek, Madonna recently proposed a resolution requiring all future developers to provide a water-retention basin for their excess water.

The sewer commissioner believes that developers who can temporarily withhold excess water from being dumped into Salt Creek may alleviate some of the creek's flooding problem.

Salt Creek is under state jurisdiction. All repairs and improvements to the creek must be made by the state or county. Wood Dale is seeking state and county support to clean-up the creek and make it a suitable drainage tributary.

Parks Plan Dance Class

The Addison Park District will offer programs in tap, ballet, modern jazz and acrobatics this fall for children four years through 17 years of age.

Registration for the 10-week courses will begin Wed., Sept. 9, in the park district office in the Addison Village Hall, 130 W. Army Trail Rd. Hours are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30-5 p.m. Cost is $5 per child.

Dance classes will be held in the village hall gym. Beginner tap and ballet students will be based on their experience and age.

Modern jazz classes will be held in late afternoon and evening classes. Participants will be placed in various sessions based on their age and experience.

Advanced classes in tap and ballet will be offered on Wednesday evenings in two sessions.

Acrobatic classes will be given in four sessions will be held on Monday and Friday nights. Students will be assigned to a class depending on their demonstrated ability to perform certain tricks.

For further information and details on the programs contact the park district office at 543-4100 ext. 37.

St. Paul Cops District Title

St. Paul Lutheran finished first in the Addison Park District's beginner league summer baseball program. The team fashioned a 11-2 record.

Old Mill finished second with a 9-3 record. Next came Fullerton, 8-3-1.

Lincoln finished fourth with a 7-6-1 record. Army Trail finished fifth with nearly the same record as Lincoln, however, Lincoln played one more game. Army Trail's record was 7-6-0.

Oak compiled a 5-6 mark for sixth place while Ardmore finished in seventh with a 4-6 record.

St. Joseph's had a 3-8 mark while St. Phillips dropped seven and won only two. Wesley, the last place team, lost 11 games and won only two.

The season finished with a picnic Tuesday.

German Language Classes Slated

Registration for German language classes for children will start Sept. 4.

Dolores M. Rapp, class supervisor, said the Addison Park District sponsored classes will start at 6 p.m. Sept. 11 in Indian Trail Junior High School. Deadline for registration is also that day.

Classes are designed for ages 4-16 years old and are open to all children. A total of 200 children are accepted from the area.

For further information and registration call Mrs. Mary Mungenast at 833-2413 or Mrs. Rapp at 543-3549.

Women's Right To Vote 1920-1970

Have They Made The Most Of It?

Unless you are over 50, you can't remember the days when not all women in the United States could vote.

That is why today is an important date for women. It was on Aug. 26, 1920, that the U.S. Secretary of State issued a proclamation that the 19th amendment, providing that the right to vote should not be abridged on account of sex, had been duly ratified by 36 state legislatures.

The occasion marked the end of a long hard fight of American women to achieve equal rights, a battle that is now raging again as women seek to extend that equality into other areas.

AS WE MARK THE 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, the Suburban Living staff polled various women leaders in the communities served by Paddock Publications for their own opinions on whether women are fully exercising the voting right so arduously won 50 years ago. We also asked whether they felt there is discrimination against women in other areas and what they foresee for women in the next 50 years.

Here are their answers:

MRS. MABEL LUCAS, secretary of the Roselle Chamber of Commerce: I think that in the next 50 years women will make even more progress than they have in the last 50 — salary-wise, position-wise, status-wise. In executive positions today, women still are discriminated against; they don't get the same pay as men in the top jobs. The group effect toward elevating the status of women helps — we never would have got the vote without it.

Too many women confuse liberty with license to do whatever they please. Maybe I'm a little old-fashioned, but I think women should maintain their high standards if they want men to respect them.

MRS. ELAINE JOHNSON, Mount Prospect homemaker who has been active in PTA and served as an election judge: It has to be an individual choice for women to vote, but I would like women to force themselves to become informed on issues. A special interest may inspire a woman to put forth that effort. In my own case, it was involvement in Donald Rumsfeld's campaign for 13th District Congressman.

Woman's first responsibility is in the home. Too many women working outside the home may be contributing to all our present-day problems. If a woman is equally talented and educated and must work, she should get equal pay. Working is an individual choice, but I don't think women should vie for men's jobs. They should fill the jobs open to women.

Though women probably will continue to enter the professions — I would hope we could return to a more stable family life and concentrate on raising "quality" kids for the good of society.

MRS. DEDE ARMSTRONG, Buffalo Grove Park District Commissioner: Women have shown they are capable as leaders, but they have not received fair pay though doors are open to them. I would not want women to lose their femininity, and I deplore their taking the dominant role of authority in the family. I see much vandalism in my job as park commissioner, and it is caused indirectly by lack of father interest. Teens need and want love and discipline.

Woman's role is changing, and I believe in the future women will achieve equality in the business and professional world, but they do not now receive equal pay for equal work. In the beginning a woman must work harder to earn respect, but once she earns that respect, she keeps it.

MRS. DEDE ARMSTRONG

MRS. SHIRLEY MUNSON, president of Palatine League of Women Voters: Women have not taken advantage of their voting privilege, but neither have men. The apathy toward public issues is equally bad among men and women. Citizens should get involved by reading the newspapers and other publications, by listening to youth, and most important, by watching our government in operation — local, state and national. They can do this by attending meetings and by getting active in citizens groups such as the League, the Chamber of Commerce and political parties.

Women definitely are discriminated against. I was graduated from college with a degree in finance. I signed up for five interviews, using my initials, and was turned down by four companies and granted only a gratis interview by the fifth because I was a female. When I did get a job on my own, I was paid less than three men in lesser positions because I was not "the breadwinner." Business has to be educated to give women equal pay for an equal job.

At times women downgrade their role of housewife. They should be proud. It takes a tremendous amount of ability to be a good homemaker. Motherhood is not an inborn trait; it must be learned and developed to be done right. Women must remember they are raising future citizens.

In the future I think women will participate equally with men in the economy and in the political field. Woman's role in the home will be revised through such vehicles as day care centers, more apartments and other multiple dwellings that replace the sprawling homes of today. In 10 years the desperate housing situation will force this issue.

MRS. HELEN MACION, owner of her own business in Rolling Meadows and active in the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club: Unfortunately women have not taken advantage of their freedom to vote or of other opportunities. Women in so-called backward countries, such as Israel and India, are running their governments. There is a large percentage of Russian women in the professional field. I think it's American women's own fault that they are not efficient, firm and progressive enough, and they can be all that and still retain their femininity.

As a businesswoman for many years operating in a predominantly male field (insurance), I have not met any discrimination. I receive deference and am treated with dignity by men, and I believe that stems from mutual respect.

MRS. MARSHA FRANZEN, president of the Bensenville Homemakers: Women have taken full advantage of their voting franchise and they have every opportunity to do what they desire. I do not think women are discriminated against.

Woman's role will stay pretty much the same in the next 50 years, but there will be more women employed, more doing volunteer work or active in political and service functions because they will have more free time due to the conveniences that will do their jobs for them.

MRS. EVELYN DIENS, Wheeling village clerk: I believe women have taken advantage of their right to vote, and for myself, I don't think women are discriminated against. I hold a full-time job, but I am also a full-time wife and mother. If you are willing to work hard enough, I am sure you will receive recognition.

I hope women will remain feminine, but if the Women's Liberation Movement is successful, I think there will be many more female leaders in government and business.

MRS. SALLY GAY

MRS. SALLY GAY, president of Des Plaines League of Women Voters: I don't believe women have taken full advantage of the opportunity to get into the political arena. They should become more active politically and should become more informed on issues.

Women don't get equal pay for equal work, and policymakers in business and the professions should take a long hard look at this discrimination. Equal opportunities are not available.

I foresee more women in public office and women politically active on all levels in the next 50 years. I think the role of wife and mother will change to include other endeavors, and women will be encouraged to work as our cultural values change. This change will open doors.

MRS. SALLY CATLIN, Schaumburg Township Republican committee-woman: Women have not exercised their opportunity to vote locally to the extent they could. They would have more influence on suburban elections if they would vote on issues, not emotions. They should go to their local headquarters and volunteer to work in any campaign.

A woman's first responsibility is to her family, and especially if her husband is a traveling man, her first concern must be to guide her children.

Women can serve a very useful function in politics in the future, but I personally feel men have the practical minds and I prefer a man's guidance.

MRS. ELNA LOEKA, president of Northwest Suburban Branch, American Association of University Women: I very definately feel women have not taken full advantage of their franchise to vote. They should subscribe to and read local newspapers to follow local politics; otherwise they are not well informed and cannot vote intelligently.

I agree with the Feminist Movement that in the professions women are discriminated against. Some professional schools for example, have quotas for women, and they will admit only a certain percentage of women students. I personally am very much a woman and prefer to remain so, but I think a woman can do a job and still remain feminine.

I foresee more women employed because of the high cost of living, and unless the economy stabilizes, more and more women will be working.

MRS. MARIAN WU, Addison District 4 school board: Women have made great strides in the last 50 years — almost out of necessity since men have been so absorbed in supporting their families.

Equality for women is a coming trend, but women probably never will take the place of men. They will always play a supportive role.

There are many capable, educated women who are finding their place in the world.

MRS. CAROLYN MULLINS, Schaumburg, trustee of High School Dist. 211: Not enough women vote, and if they do, they don't make their own decision on how to vote. They tend to vote as their husbands do.

Promoting women to the executive level in business is an individual matter, in my opinion. If a woman wants to leave home and feels comfortable about having a career, she should not feel guilty about it and should have equal opportunities.

I believe the future role of women will be pretty much the same as it is today, but it is up to the individual woman to do what she wants. Lower birth levels, more college trained women, better day care centers and nursery schools will free women for careers, but it will have to be an individual choice. If women must continue to bear children, things can't change too much.

MRS. CAROLYN MULLINS

ROBIN LEACH, public relations director, St. Alexius Hospital: I feel few women take advantage of their right to vote. I personally have missed out on registration because of having moved around a lot.

Women definitely are discriminated against in employment. They do not receive equal pay for equal work. If a man had my job, he'd demand and receive a larger salary, and in broadcasting, advertising and public relations, many women are doing identical jobs with the men but do not receive as much pay.

Women should be wives and mothers if that is "their thing." It's very important that these roles be filled. Most of my married friends do work part-time or are involved in something outside the home for stimulation. I think it should be a matter of individual choice.

MRS. FLORENCE HENDRICKSON, past president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Club and member of the Arlington Heights Library board: Women have not exercised fully their freedom to vote. I am opposed to the Feminist Movement, but I do want equal opportunities and pay for women. If a woman can perform the job, she should be paid for it. I fear the feminists are spoiling it for the rest of us. Women can grasp the opportunities that are there to fill without replacing men.

While children are small, woman's place is in the home, but the role of housewife is a challenge and, if it is well done, an art. When that role ends, I want women to get busy. They are as intelligent and capable as men. They ought to be in the legislature where they are especially fitted with their "seventh sense" and their compassion for the needs of others.

Women have been remiss in not entering the professions more. We need women doctors, educators, lawyers and the like. I predict we will see more women in top jobs, a woman president though she will have to be a giant of a woman. There will be more women in administrative positions — especially at the college level. But I hope they will hang on to their femininity and their dignity.

MRS. MARIE CAYLOR, Prospect Heights, former teacher and now an editor: Women are apathetic about voting, they leave it to their husbands to think for them, but I believe the situation has improved in the last 10 years.

As a businesswoman for 40 years, I think women have been discriminated against to a degree. They have not been accepted in accordance with their intellectual ability. But if a woman works hard, she will eventually gain the respect of co-workers and her intellectual pursuits will be recognized. Women still do not receive equal pay for equal work, but that situation is improving.

The pendulum may be swinging too far. I believe the hand that rocks the cradle rocks the world. Women have a particular place in the home and for men. We might not be having the trouble with youth we are having today if more women had stayed home. But women are their own worst enemies. They should move forward and rise up to their abilities when their children are grown.

For the future I hope women will get back to guiding children and giving them discipline, and that everybody will stop trying to run the world.

MRS. SUE WILLIAMS, former president of Bensenville Democratic Women's Club: Women have not taken full advantage of the right to vote, but there are more women registered than men on the voting rolls. And it's the women who remind the men to get out and vote. I think more women could fulfill their potential by entering political party work.

In the next 50 years we will have more women legislators. I'm not what most people call a feminist. I'm proud of being a woman and I think women with children should see that they are well taken care of. But they don't have to spend every living moment with their children. A woman needs outside activities for variety in her life, or she would become the most uninteresting creature in existence.

MRS. IRMA B. YOUNG, president of the North DuPage Business and Professional Women's Club: Women have made much progress in the last 50 years. Looking ahead, I believe we will be invaluable to business. We can plan according to our position and education and hold jobs men hold today.

MRS. JEANNE KARKOW, immediate past president of Itasca Woman's Club: Having worked in the precincts, I know that just as many women as men come out to vote and they are just as interested in legislation as the men.

A woman's place, especially if she had children, is in the home, not out competing with men. I don't see any big changes ahead for women in the next 50 years. Women are the wives and mothers, and they will always play those roles.

MRS. EUGENIA CHAPMAN, Illinois assemblywoman from Arlington Heights: Women are not exercising their political rights and responsibilities. They need to roll up their sleeves and get to work. Suburban women especially have more opportunities than men because they are in the voting area 24 hours a day. Men have other jobs. At present women do the routine work and men the policymaking. Men think women are not capable of thinking, but if we are going to utilize the potential of womanhood, we must face the fact that women do have brains. Many women lack confidence. Society perpetuates the idea that women aren't up to functioning as intelligent contributors, and women use this "inferiority" as an excuse. They are their own worst enemies...

The Equal Rights Fight

Women Are On The Move Again

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(First in a Series)

True or false?
— Women must wear two petticoats.
— Female school teachers must be home by 8 p.m.
— Husband can sue for divorce if his wife fails to keep the house clean.
— Spinsters must have a guardian to act for them... or get married.

Laugh all you want. It's absurdity constructed on a solid foundation of truth. In the case of this simple test, it just all depends in which decade the date falls. Some antiquated so-called "protective" laws remain on the books in many states.

The feminist movement is no spring chicken. It is simply louder and broader in scope today.

FIFTY YEARS AGO suffragettes chained themselves to posts and trees in demanding the right to vote. Equality between sexes has remained an open sore ever since.

"If anyone were to ask me now in what direction I think American women should move, I would answer that their goals should be toward the fullest development of their own potential as individuals, and toward full participation in American life."

"And if anyone were to ask what sign posts there might be along the way toward these goals, I would say that there are three: Freedom, unity and individualism."

It was Mrs. Elizabeth Koonz, director of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor, speaking in June for their 50th anniversary conference.

THE WORD "WOMEN" could be replaced with the word "blacks," for the two revolutions are compatible in that both are fighting for first class citizenship.

Except black and white are the same and should be treated as equal, while male and female are not the same, but still should be treated as equal.

in the battle between the sexes concerning equality since the 19th amendment was passed in 1920.

Various women's organizations have been treading slowly, and rather timidly, in the fight to raise the status of women and erase the stereotyped image of the male-dominated, helpless homemaker and housewife.

Suburban Living
ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

In a day of loud protest and demonstration, the "gentler" sex, after watching other minority groups gather national attention through bizarre behavior, have entered the limelight themselves in seemingly "unladylike" acts of bra burning, storming all-male bars and generally, declaring war on men. They are the true militants, the women who proudly uphold the title of feminists today.

The present equal rights bill before Congress has turned the topic of women's liberation into an explosive time bomb.

EVEN SO, there has been no real full

The League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women and the individual state commissions concerning the status of women are a few of the groups, some even older than the suffrage movement, that have worked to promote females and elevate them into more prestigious positions in society.

Success is painfully slow, too slow for the feminists who seek social, political, economic and complete domestic equality right away.

"THE RADICAL groups do serve as a catalyst by focusing on certain needs, cause, sometimes one has to do flamboyant things," said Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, state assemblywoman, also of Arlington Heights.

"Sometimes it takes undignified action for change. It's not my style, but because of it," she continued, "I can profit. Women have suffered the same disease as blacks. We believed we were inferior and we still do. The short of it is that women are being ignored."

Women's Right To Vote

Women are discriminated against in job hiring, in equal pay for equal work, in policy making and administrative jobs and in education admissions. How many women professors are there?

Smaller families and more conveniences will provide women with more time outside the home. Woman's role will be changed too by the fact that children are more independent before marriage. Independent women will hold more policy making, more creative and more remunerative jobs in the future. And more and more women will be working.

MRS. JOAN LAWSON, Itasca park commissioner: I find that women have every opportunity to become involved in whatever they desire. All they need to fulfill their potential is the initiative to go out and try and the stamina to stick with it. Women are natural in political and community organization. Every park board should have at least one woman member. Women have more time for such activities, more insight into the problems and are more logical than men.

Women don't need a liberation movement. They need to get out and become involved instead of merely talking.

MRS. MYRT CIESLA, Wood Dale village treasurer: Women are not truly liberated economically. There are gross inequities where a woman holds the same jobs as a man in many occupations. Progress is still needed in the next 50 years toward equal pay for equal work.

If I had lived in the days of the suffragettes, I'd have been marching. I don't want to be some slave in a kitchen. But I think the Feminist Movement lacks femininity.

MRS. RUTH WIEDER, active in Wheeling Republican party: As an election judge, I have observed a good percentage of voters are women so I think women have taken advantage of their right to vote.

I disagree that women are discriminated against. All kinds of opportunities are open to those willing to seek them.

There will be more women executives in the future because colleges are turning out women educated in more fields than previously, though not necessarily better educated women.

MRS. DELORES RICHMOND, Long Grove, special education teacher and school board member: Women probably have not taken full advantage of the voting franchise, but I think this is a matter of being interested in politics. This interest is increasing among women.

Women are sometimes discriminated against in the business world and in job opportunities, especially in the professions. I don't think discrimination can be classified. It seems to be an individual matter.

MRS. EDMUND GORE, president of Catholic Woman's Club, St. Walter Parish of Roselle: I don't think women have taken full advantage of their right to vote, but I don't think men have either.

In the future women's role will change with more women working because of the increased cost of living and education. I think they'll assume more leadership in the process.

MRS. FORTUNE LOPRESTI, Bloomington village clerk: We couldn't want any more opportunities than we have. Some women have overstepped their boundaries by taking over the function of men jobwise. As for putting on the pants, no thank you. Let's keep our femininity.

American women represent 51 per cent of the population. Thirty million of those women are in the labor force today which means simply nearly two out of every five workers are female.

But, women receive 40 per cent less pay than men for similar jobs. In comparing the median incomes of men and women who work full-time the year round, the United States Labor Department also reports that not only are earnings of women less than those of men, but also that the gap has widened in recent years.

Further statistics also show that only three per cent of women workers but 28 per cent of men earned $10,000 or more in 1968 while 20 per cent of women but only eight per cent of men earned less than $3,000.

THE MAJORITY OF women are employed in such low paying jobs as clerks, sales workers and domestics. Even a college diploma can't guarantee a chance at upward mobility, for nearly one-fifth of the women with bachelor's degrees are working in factories or as clerks or cooks.

Discrimination dies hard. A placement director at one large Midwest university said women too often are passed over because of the marriage factor. They are subjected to stress interviews concerning their future plans even though companies know that the turnover rate is quite high for males on their first job.

Caroline Bird was prompted to write in her book, "Born Female," "If you are a woman at home, in business or in a profession, you should know why you have to be twice as smart and work twice as hard to get half as far as a mediocre man."

Illinois has no complete equal pay statute. One was unceremoniously buried in committees in the last regular legislative session.

A bill to revise the FEPC (Fair Employment Practices Commission) covering hiring and promotion, by including the word "sex" with "national background, religion and race" was defeated.

Title 7 of the 1964 Federal Civil Rights Bill did add the word "sex." It gave the right to women experiencing job discrimination to file a complaint with the national Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Yet, cases are handled individually and the entire process is painstakingly slow. Few women have used it.

"WOMEN WHO SAY they can't understand what other women are upset about, show that their eyes are closed. They are only kidding themselves if they believe they are equal," said Mrs. Chapman.

After half a century of women's suffrage, there is only one woman in the U.S. Senate, only one in the Illinois Senate. Only four of the 177 present state assembly members are women.

"Women haven't yet exercised the vote," continued Mrs. Chapman. "They do all the stamp licking and the busy work, but they are still allowing the men to make all the decisions. Women are failing to exercise their responsibilities and obligations."

Pair Face Congregation

Patricia Ann Gerbl and Thomas Lee Wienecke faced the congregation in St. Raymond's Church, Mount Prospect, when they repeated their vows July 18. The setting for the double ring service was of white mums with large white bows marking the pews.

Rev. Robert A. Carroll performed the service at 3:30 p.m. and a reception for 125 guests was held at 6 p.m. at the Clayton House in Wheeling.

Patricia, daughter of the Torsten Carlsons of Arlington Heights, and Tom, the son of the LeRoy Wieneckes, also of Arlington Heights, lived across the street from each other for eight years, and both are graduates of Forest View High School. The bride is a '69 graduate and the groom a '68 graduate.

The newlyweds are making their home in Hoffman Estates. Patricia is employed by Charles Bruning Co., in Mount Prospect, and her bridegroom attends Washburn Trace School and is employed by Paice Decorating Co., Palatine.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father, the bride wore an A-line white organza gown with Alencon lace on the bodice, the high, scalloped neckline and on the cuffs of the sheer bishop sleeves. Her cathedral train was trimmed with appliques of the lace. Her veil, also cathedral length, was held by a Camelot headpiece with applique flowers and seed pearls. A colonial bouquet with phalaenopsis orchids, roses and stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble.

Sharon Wieser of Arlington Heights was the bride's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Christine Sichrowsky of Crystal Lake and Donna Suckow of Mount Prospect. Junior bridesmaid was Michelle Nesti of Arlington Heights.

Their A-line floor-length gowns were of lime green tulle, and they wore matching picture hats and carried flower balls of lime green French carnations with pink Garnet roses.

THE GROOM'S COUSIN 7-year-old Tracey Wils of Chicago, was flower girl, dressed like the other attendants, and she carried a basket of the carnations and roses. Peter Nesti, 7, of Arlington Heights, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Gerbl chose a pink embroidered chiffon dress with corsage of phalaenopsis, and Mrs. Wienecke chose an aqua antique satin with a corsage of pink French carnations and Garnet roses.

Serving the groom as best man was Gary Thompson of Arlington Heights. Ushers were the groom's cousin, Dan Becker of Skokie, and Wayne Ward of

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Wienecke

Hoffman Estates. The groom's brother, Brian Wienecke, was junior usher. Patricia and Tom honeymooned at the Abbey at Lake Geneva for two weeks.

Hair Demonstration For Newcomers Club

A hair demonstration is the program for tomorrow evening's meeting of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Newcomers Club. Mrs. Doug Tripalmer, a club member, will be the speaker. All newcomers of the area are welcome.

The meeting place is Addolorata Villa on McHenry Road, Wheeling.

The next social event for the group is a hayride and square dance Sept. 26 at Fleetwing Stables, Palatine.

Newcomers wishing information may call Mrs. John Davidson, 537-7882.

Come To Coffee Say Kappa Deltas

There's a lot of coffee brewing in the Donald Rogers home, 209 Withorn Lane, Mount Prospect, all day today. Mrs. Rogers is preparing for two coffee parties one this afternoon at 2 and another tonight at 8. Both are get-acquainted opportunities for Kappa Delta sorority alumnae.

Northwest Suburban Alumnae Association is sponsoring the two gatherings for prospective members. All area Kappa Deltas are welcome.

Regular meetings of the group are held the fourth Monday evening of the month, beginning in September.

Mrs. Donald Sinn, general chairman, has further information available at 255-7935.

Over 25 Best Bet As Practical Nurse

NEW YORK (UPI) — A married woman over 25 years old when she enters a practical nursing school is a better bet for remaining in the health labor force than the younger, unmarried woman, reports the National League for Nursing.

A league report gives this composite picture of the practical nurse apt to be the most stable in the health labor force. She was over 25 when she entered nursing school, is married to a semi-skilled or unskilled worker, and comes from a modest or low-income family.

Dishwater Hot

Water in the dishwasher should be at least 140 degrees. If in doubt, let hot water run from the faucet for a few minutes in a deep bowl, then check the temperature with a meat thermometer.

Publicity Workshops

For Better Club News

For clubs that have registered their president's name, address and phone number in the Herald and Register offices, personal reminders are in the mail regarding Paddock Publications' annual publicity workshops for presidents and publicity chairmen.

However, all club presidents and news chairmen of all area women's groups and organizations are invited. All that is necessary is to call your reservation in to 394-2300 or 773-1598, Extension 233. In Des Plaines, the number to call is 297-6833, ask for Dorothy Oliver.

Workshops are scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 10; Thursday, Sept. 17; and Friday, Sept. 18. All will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., closing in time for busy homemakers to be home by lunch-time.

The workshops are designed to aid the large number of club publicity chairmen and presidents seeking more and better publicity for their organizations. The program includes discussions on copy preparation, what is "news," hints on writing, deadlines, how to submit news copy, writing publicity to interest readers, use of names, importance of accuracy and an explanation of Paddock Publications' publicity policies.

PICTURES. TOO, will be thoroughly covered with discussion and slides. Each workshop will include a mid-morning "coffee and" break.

As we closed our reminders, "Publicity is our job, too, and we need your help. Please come."

Sisterhood Tea

Beth Tikvah Congregation's annual Sisterhood Membership Tea will be held at 9 p.m. next Tuesday, Sept. 1, in the temple at 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

All new women in the area are invited and those wishing further information may contact Mrs. Al Robuck at 894-8948 or Mrs. Bob Weiner at 529-9420.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun In August To:

1. Start putting money in a special fund for a family European trip in 1972.
2. Consider making shades of violet, lavender and purple your big colors this autumn.
3. Give a bon voyage party — use maps for place mats, fill a toy train with flowers, make ticket-like invitations.
4. Consider planting a different kind of tree this fall — perhaps a horse chestnut, sycamore, linden or shagbark hickory.
5. Strive for excellence in whatever hobby or sport you pursue.
6. Take a one-day vacation. Get into your most glamorous outfit and just read and relax.
7. Go barefoot around your lawn after the next rain.
8. Heed this by Benjamin Franklin: "If a man could have half his wishes he would double his troubles."

The Way We See It

Women Strike Day

Women are searching for a new role in our society.

With an intensity reminiscent of the suffragette era, women's organizations are agitating for change.

Their activities have focused attention, earned support, drawn opposition.

Attention is at a peak today, Women's Strike Day, the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage. Events have been scheduled across the country to bring home the message of women's equality. At noon today, a crowd totaling 5,000 is expected at the Civic Center.

Women's Strike Day, patterned after similar days devoted to civil rights, peace, and, most recently, Earth Day, can serve two purposes. It can contribute to a schism in society, or it can lead to further recognition of a problem, stimulating creative attempts to end it.

Or — and this danger was inherent in other day-long observances — it can give people a chance to think momentarily about a problem, give them a feeling they've done their job, and then conveniently dismiss it.

We think Women's Strike Day is a day to sort out our thoughts about our society and the part women play in it, then to make resolutions and build change around them.

Anyone who thinks women enjoy an ideal position in society is either blind or a fool. Women have "come a long way" in the past 50 years, just as Negroes have "come a long way" in the past 100. That does not mean either group has gone far enough.

Parallels can be drawn between the civil rights and women's liberation movements, but it is dangerous to equate them. A big difference lies in the fact that, unlike blacks, women were created with essential biological differences. Another difference, reflective of this, is that women simply are not unified in their feelings about their role in society.

The biological differences between men and women have created a specialization of functions, in the home and in society. At one time, society was so oppressive that practically no deviation was permitted in a woman's role. Should she fail to achieve her societal function of wife and mother, then as a spinster she had to have a guardian to act for her on legal matters.

What began as a practical specialization of functions become imbedded in folklore. Women simply were not able nor suited for certain jobs.

They have broken down many of those barriers and today hold an impressive array of professional positions. But the statistics still nag: one U.S. Senator of 100 is a woman; 3 per cent of women workers but 28 per cent of men earned $10,000 or more in 1968. Employment directors often are more concerned that a young female applicant may become pregnant and leave her job than they are that a young male applicant may, by ambition, become a job hopper.

That kind of discrimination will have to give way. Society has always changed, and it will continue to change. There have always been those who have pushed for change — often excessively or inappropriately — and there have always been those who have opposed change.

It is obvious that extremes on both sides of the women's liberation movement suffer from hardening of the mental arteries.

Women are different. The truth is right now we simply do not know scientifically to what extent their biological difference creates emotional, physical or other differences. For either side at this time to try to design a perfect, unchanging society is ridiculous.

What is needed is an open-mindedness, a willingness to change and a recognition that change is inevitable and desirable.

'No Comment' Silly Idea

by KEN HARDWICKE

Reporters like bill collectors are not America's favorite people. It's unfortunate but understandable. A reporter cannot uphold many friendships because his job requires that he give a fair assessment of situations . . . too often being fair conflicts with being a friend.

Public officials in particular would like the press filled with descriptive adjectives on how wonderful they are. They don't want to see a criticism of any kind because it harbors questions . . . and questions lead to answers which could become embarrassing.

Probably the biggest laugh in the field of pen and paper is the quote. Everybody says it but few have the courage to stand behind their own words. The worst thing a reporter can do is quote a press-sensitive public official. Regardless if he said it, he'll deny the comment when printed in the local newspaper.

MANY PUBLIC officials don't realize how ridiculous they look until they see what they said in the paper. Words take on altered connotations when viewed by the reading public.

Wood Dale has a "no comment" policy now in effect. The only thing wrong with it is that four of the five councilmen have talked. Apparently it is convenient to talk when there is a goal to accomplish. The policy was immature, and I'm glad that certain public officials have put themselves above personal pride and prejudice.

Probably the hardest newspaper relationship to develop is the press-police one. Police have a job and often need no exposure to accomplish it. They withhold news and often a reporter must weigh his conscience to decide if it is justified.

Stanley Rossol, Itasca police chief, is an excellent policeman although he is protective about his townspeople. He won't divulge information about people if he thinks it hurts their families. In nine out of 10 cases I agree with Rossol's policies. He's usually fair and logical in reaching them. It's the 10th case that creates the problems.

IN ROSELLE, newly-appointed Chief Robert Greve came under criticism for operating what some called a speed trap. Greve, a very honest and capable cop, was sensitive to the remarks because he was pending appointment and he thought they were unfair.

In Wood Dale Chief Arthur Christy is a product of the self-imposed "no comment" policy. Approaching him with the question of his police trapping speeders with their lights off and in private driveways would bring little in the way of comment.

Printing unpopular opinions because they offend some public officials is a constant dilemma of the press. I hope my comments are constructive . . . but then there are public officials who will disagree with what constitutes constructive criticisms.

The residents and press should have the right to question those who control tax money. Wood Dale's policy is unjustified, and only the people will suffer.

Liked DuPage County Zoning Decision

(An open letter to DuPage County Board of Supervisors:

The residents and members of the various home owners associations who asked your consideration and evaluation of the rezoning of the property on the southwest corner of Lake and South Medinah Road, join in expressing to each of you our gratitude for your unanimous vote on this matter. We sincerely appreciate your considered appraisal and conclusion in rendering a decision consistent with the best interests of the community. We are confident that it was the right decision in all respects, and will prove to be a step in the right direction to deter the many problems which would have ensued had you permitted the rezoning.

We are especially grateful to Supervisors Donald Jack Wall and Pat Saviano who publicly endorsed the opposition to the rezoning and have shown by their action that they hold the interests of the community uppermost in importance.

OUR THANKS AS WELL to Paddock Publications, and Press Publications for their coverage of the matter and it is our hope that the media will continue to print the facts and keep the public informed of all important matters involving the interests and rights of the people.

Kindness Softened Tragic Hours

We would like to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the people of Wood Dale and Bensenville who came to the aid of our son John who drowned on June 18, especially Sgt. Robert Sample of the Wood Dale Police and Harvey Speiden, a Wood Dale volunteer fireman.

We never realized how many wonderful friends we had. We especially want the people of Wood Dale and Bensenville to try and look on their children as the Lord does; focusing not on the outward appearance but on the heart. Some of these children were close friends and acquaintances of John's, some were boys and girls who were just plain shocked who by hand tried to fill in the mud hole so this tragedy could never happen again. These very actions together with the kindness shown our family gave us the courage to face the tragic loss of our 16-year-old son.

'Something's Wrong In Wheeling Village'

Something is wrong in Wheeling. Something seems not quite on the "up-and-up." It is time for Wheeling citizens to become aware.

Since Aug. 1 our village board has approved zoning for a shopping center and apartment complex and a trailer court. Another apartment complex, probably adjacent to the first, will no doubt be approved at the Aug. 24 meeting. In all these zonings, the developers and only ones to benefit, as I see it, are bank trusts (individuals "unknown").

The first zoning, Aug. 10, the shopping center and apartment complex, was crammed down the throats of our Prospect Heights neighbors (a little spitefully, I thought) over their protests, on newly annexed land in their area. No consideration was given to the fact that Wheeling needs another shopping center and another apartment complex like it needs another hole in the head. We have struggling shopping centers now and, until now, have had, for years, boarded up apartments in town.

THE SECOND ZONING Aug. 17, approved a trailer court over the protests of Wheeling citizens who gave many reasons why it is not in the best interests of the village. The village attorney said that we can not ban trailer courts, legally. This is based on his interpretation of a decision which he says just might become a law. OK, but that doesn't necessarily mean we must approve this zoning now. The board is quite firm about taking no positive action in the police matter without a law saying definitely "Thou Shalt." In this case, however, it can't wait to approve a zoning, which their village does not want, and to approve it without a "statutory law." I doubt if there will ever be a law which says the zoning must be approved for a trailer court at a specific place at a specific time or be subject to litigation. Our village supposedly has the prerogative of approving or disapproving zonings for any businesses and dwelling areas at various locations within its jurisdiction without fear of litigation. What makes this case different?

Our trustees do not attempt to defend their positions in these matters. They do not try to explain the reasoning behind their decisions. In these two zonings they give the impression they are frightened by the developer's threat to "go to the county" if they don't get the zoning.

What really would happen if they called that bluff? There is a lack of communication between the board and the citizens it represents. The trustees listen to protests, then vote as they originally intended. This leads to, I believe it is called, a "credibility gap."

ANOTHER THOUGHT intrigues me. During all these hassles, including the police matter, Village President Scanlon has been on vacation. As in the question, "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" it would be interesting to speculate on which came first, the vacation plans or the August agenda of the village board. Is this the reason for the rush to get these things through? So Mr. Scanlon can say he knows nothing about them because he was out of town? Oh, come now.

Frustrating To Be A Cop

by JIM FULLER

'Frustrating. That's what it's like to be a cop in Addison.

The traffic violator curses you. The drunk spits in your face. A man beats his kid and you have to go. An accident victim needs death and you have to stop the bleeding.

That's what it's like to be a cop in Addison. And it's getting worse.

According to Rev. Hiram Mills, Addison's police chaplain, the police are getting involved in things they should never get involved in, such as neighborhood squabbles, marital feuds and juvenile counseling.

"WHY, WHEN TWO little kids are fighting, can't a neighbor grab the two kids and break it up?" he asked. "It's natural for kids to fight.

"If someone sees his neighbors are getting on each other's nerves, why can't he go over and try to settle things between them? Why should the police be taken away from crime prevention with all these social problems?"
The day when a policeman just rode a squad car and directed traffic is past. Today he fills the roles of emergency doctor, psychiatrist, father confessor, marriage counselor and juvenile officer.

The situation might be compared to having a marriage counselor chase a burglar down a narrow alley, or asking a psychologist to check out a dark basement.

At the same time the Addison policeman is performing these various services, we pay him less than a garbage man, shove him into the back end of an old, broken-down building, and ignore him.

"One primary thing that I've learned in my relations with the men of the Addison department is that policemen as a whole are looked down upon as second class citizens," said Rev. Mills. "It was when I learned this that I really wanted to help."

REV. MILLS has gotten involved. He began to see the plight of the Addison policeman. He let them know that someone cared, someone they could talk to about their problems in the community. If the community expects law and order to be kept and their social problems to be solved by the local policeman, more leading citizens and professional men will have to start riding around in squad cars and seeing what happens.

Addison's policemen need the help of the minister, the marriage counselor and the psychologist, but no one except Rev. Mills seems to care.

The Addison police also need citizens to take a greater concern in their own neighborhood problems — to help out in neighborhood squabbles and to get involved.

Finally, the Addison police department needs the cooperation and close alliance of the village officials, something they have not gotten up to now.

"NO ONE ON THE public safety committee has ever ridden with a squad car for a shift as far as I know," said Rev. Mills. "They ran for this job — how will they find out what the problems are unless they investigate and show some concern?"

The policeman — we all depend on this "second class citizen." It's time we did something. It's time we showed we care.

Student Concern In Elementary Schools

Not long ago in Texas, an underground newspaper cropped up. Written and produced by students, it criticized some aspects of the school "establishment" and made a pitch for changes.

The students and The three young men behind this sub rosa venture were fifth graders, one of whom — a clergyman's son — had access to a mimeograph. In their paper they invited their schoolmates to air their own views by sending letters to the editor. "All letters must be written," they explained with the careful logic of 10-year-olds.

Student concern, it seems, has seeped into the elementary school level. And this is one of the new problems — or fortunate situations, depending on the viewpoint — that face teachers and parents as grade schools open this fall, according to William L. Pharis, executive secretary of the National Association of Elementary School Principals, NEA.

Sex education will be back again as an issue in some communities, says Dr. Pharis, who believes it may be an even hotter topic than last year. Many school districts, after debate and delay, have decided to initiate or resume sex education programs.

The National Education Association and the National Association of Elementary School Principals are on record as advocating sex education programs, appropriate to the children's ages and taught by competent instructors.

Drug abuse by children and youth is another of the modern problems facing teachers and parents. Although use of hard drugs is not common in grade school, children's exploration of the forbidden world of drugs ranges all the way from smoking marijuana to sniffing marking pencils, the NAESP executive said.

Even the use of these weaker substances is not widespread in elementary schools, he emphasized, but "we are not immune from the drug problem, by any means."

Where turmoil and violence plague the schools, teachers and administrators are developing safety measures.

Bomb scares are a special concern, and schools and communities are exploring ways to nab threat-makers. Some who consider it a lark to disrupt the schools, as well as those with more evil intent, may find themselves up to here in trouble.

Meanwhile, NAESP has suggested that principals have an orderly procedure — like a fire drill — for evacuating their school buildings.

Getting prepared to handle the bumper crop of problems is, to a significant degree, the responsibility of the individual teacher and principal, Dr. Pharis believes.

But they are also receiving some outside assistance — from education magazines such as NAESP's, Journal and the NEA Journal, Today's Education, for instance.

Special in-service education programs, university workshops and teacher seminars provide an exchange of experiences and practical guidance.

As grade schoolers return to classes, parental concern goes hand in hand with that of the schools, toward the solution of these problems.

Glaucoma Unit Scheduled Here

Bensenville residents are reminded the glaucoma screening unit, operated by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness and sponsored by the Bensenville Lions Club, will be screening, without charge, for unsuspected cases of glaucoma Monday and Tuesday from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The unit will be stationed at the Bensenville fire station, located at Main Street and York Road.

Glaucoma is a leading cause of blindness in Illinois and is most often found in people 35-years-old and older, according to the society. If undetected it can eventually lead to blindness.

Glaucoma may exhibit no symptoms in the early stages, according to Dr. Derrick Vail, director of the society. That is why it is so important for people over 35-years-old to be checked for the disease, he said.

Board Investigates Anti-burning Law

The Wood Dale Village Council Thursday night directed John R. Adamson, village manager, to investigate the possibility of adopting an anti-burning ordinance.

Adamson will investigate other municipal no-burning ordinances and make his recommendations to the council at the next regular meeting on Sept. 3.

Jerry Folker, superintendent of the village sanitation department, stated that his men will not pick up any more burned garbage.

Assessment For Walks To Be Mailed

The Village of Wood Dale will be mailing notices of sidewalk installation costs this week to those residents who are being assessed for sidewalk construction.

Property owners on Commercial, Irving Park, Wood Dale Road and Addison Road will be assessed for the installation of sidewalks.

Sam LaSusa, village attorney, said Thursday night that it would be much cheaper for a resident to install his own sidewalks than have the village do it.

LaSusa added that the village would have to charge a homeowner an additional 20 to 25 per cent over the normal cost of sidewalk installation. He said if the village was forced to install the sidewalks for homeowners, the village engineer's bill and legal fees would be added into the total cost of the project.

The cost of sidewalk installation in the village will be spread according to land area instead of front footage.

Most of the village's public benefit sidewalk construction has been completed.

The scotch snob VS. the scotchwatcher.

Scotch snobs buy a brand because they're impressed by the name. Or because it's "in" at the moment.

But Scotchwatchers know the really important thing to look for in scotch. Age.

That's why we make an eight-year-old scotch. Martin's V.V.O. And we put "8 Years Old" right on the Martin's label. So every Scotchwatcher can see it.

Look for the age and you'll be a Scotchwatcher, too. But more important, you'll get a better-tasting scotch.

WITNESS TEST is one of many used in the development of a non-technician Stephen LaLoggia takes a reading. The lag is equipped polluting detergent at DeSoto, Inc. in Des Plaines. Here senior with optical brighteners in the lighting system.

New Detergent Phosphate Free

by LEA TONKIN

Wash day used to mean the mournful requiem for a river, a day when pollutants poured into streambeds and a deadly thing called phosphates attacked clear waters.

But a major technological breakthrough by a Des Plaines firm now allows soap manufacturers to remove phosphates from washday products and thus eliminate one of the severest pollution problems which threaten waterways.

DeSoto Inc., 1700 S. Mount Prospect Rd., Des Plaines, will soon produce a non-phosphate laundry product, comparable in cleaning power to the soap produced by the phosphate-bearing soaps "big three" of the $4.5 billion detergent industry: Procter and Gamble, Lever Brothers and Colgate Palmolive.

Forsaking the traditional Madison Avenue approach to marketing the soaps on the basis of color and catchy phrases, the producers of the non-phosphate soap think it will sell on the basis of its performance.

BY OCT. 1, it will be available to consumers in all major outlets of Sears Roebuck & Co., a stockholder in the company. The soap will be called simply, "Sears Laundry Detergent." It is now in production in plants in Joliet and California.

The "big three" said the elimination of phosphates couldn't be done, but DeSoto proved otherwise. At hearings held last week before the Chicago Environmental Committee, Joe Koschak, general manager at DeSoto, testified on the firm's ability to remove phosphates from detergents. Before the same group, experts in the pollution control field warned of the polluting effects of phosphates.

The detergent industry, however, represented by the Soap and Detergent Association, testified that these warnings may be premature.

"THE 'BIG THREE' have not always been the innovators in our business," said Koschak. "We also preceded them by 2½ years when they introduced the biodegradable surfactants in 1966. This made it possible for detergent foam to dissolve rather than accumulate on the surface of the water."

The decision to go all the way with a non-phosphate soap was a difficult one for DeSoto. A large part of their production equipment is obsolete as a result. The cost of new equipment may be a reason when the "big three" did not move faster in this direction. Although the resultant production costs are higher for DeSoto, the new soap will probably be introduced at competitive prices.

DeSoto has burst the bubble of indifference to the environment in the detergent industry with the introduction of its new soap. "We feel that phosphates contribute to the overgrowth of plant life in our waterways. There are other causes of this accelerated growth, but we feel that we're helping to solve this problem," said Koschak.

THE CONCERN OVER phosphates was also sounded by the report of the Council of Environmental Quality created last year by Congress.

Phosphates, not generally removed in normal sewage treatment, enter the water supply and cause the growth of algae, according to Frank Kudrna, engineer of planning at the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) in Chicago, serving most of Cook County. "MSD reversed the flow of the Chicago River some time ago, so the effluent does not flow into Lake Michigan," he said. It now goes through the river system to the Mississippi River and eventually to the Gulf of Mexico. Although there is a distinct advantage for a moving body of water to recover from pollutants as compared to a stagnant body of water, the removal of phosphates from detergent would stop one of the largest polluting elements from entering the waterways.

"WITH THE ADDED use of phosphates, the district has had to add extra equipment to remove some of the phosphates. It has been estimated that for every dollar spent on soap containing phosphates a dollar for sewage treatment is required," said Kudrna.

Preliminary research on the removal of the troublesome phosphates began five years ago at DeSoto. Three years ago the company went into an accelerated program, and last year 80 per cent of its research budget was spent for this project.

"We investigated many compounds, but we ended up using two of the ingredients in our phosphate soap, said Koschak.

Laboratory tests on standard swatches of soiled material were conducted at the Des Plaines facility. Tests were also given at the technical laboratories of Sears, Roebuck; United States Testing Co. and a major appliance manufacturer.

THE NO-PHOSPHATE soap showed up well in testing for corrosion effects, Koschak said. Government testing agencies did not find any polluting properties of the new product.

But the real proof for the consumer is in the results of actual field testing. Several hundred housewives tried the soap in three areas: the Northwest Suburbs, the Southwest Suburbs, and in a rural area of a neighboring state. Eighty per cent of the consumers found the soap to be as effective as or better than a phosphate-bearing detergent.

Ground-in dirt just didn't stand a chance against the soap in tests at water hardness ranging from zero to 500 parts per million, and at water temperatures ranging from 80 to 140 degrees. The company said water hardness in metropolitan areas across the country ranges from 100 to 300 parts per million, and that the average wash load is between 100 and 120 degrees.

DESOTO'S ENTRY is a contrast to other detergent producers' new products which replace part of the phosphates with NTA, nitrilotriacetate. This nitrogen bearing substance has not been fully tested for its effect on the environment, however.

The man working most closely with the development of DeSoto's no-phosphate soap is R. S. "Bob" Cooper, technical director of DeSoto's chemical products division. The company has applied for a patent in his name as well as Koschak and Don Wood. Cooper has been credited with 18 patents for flameproofing agents, insecticides and other developments.

"Most of the elements for needed algae growth are generally available, but we believe that phosphate is one element that can be controlled. We don't know if the cycle of algae growth can be stopped, but if we don't change, we'll never know."

COOPER SAID the reasons why phosphates have been used so widely in laundry soap are that it acts as a water softener, it is somewhat detergent and it acts as a peptizing agent — that is, it keeps dirt suspended in water rather than letting it settle back into clothing.

Vacation—Thing Of Past?

Summer-long vacations may soon be a thing of the past for some school pupils in Illinois.

According to the Illinois State Bar Association, a new state law makes it easier for local school boards to adopt full-year school plans — and at least one Illinois school district already has taken that step.

The idea is not to speed up the educational process, but to make more efficient use of school facilities, employ teachers for a longer-working period, reduce class sizes and, in some cases, eliminate the need for double sessions. The plan may also provide relief for the taxpayers since it could reduce local school construction requirements.

The law allows school boards a great deal of latitude in developing full-year school schedules. The main requirement is that each student shall attend classes for not less than 180 days nor more than 185 days during a 12-month period, including not more than four teacher-institute days.

LOCAL SCHOOL districts adopting the plan must submit a calendar of 180-day school terms for approval by the state superintendent of public instruction. One such plan, adopted by the Romeoville school district in Will County is the so-called 45-15 arrangement. Students are divided into four groups, with each attending school for 45 continuous school days followed by 15 school days off. Starting dates are staggered so that only three groups attend school at any one time. All the pupils are out of school on legal holidays and an effort is made to keep children from the same family on the same schedule.

Under the law, teachers may not be required to teach more than 185 days during the school year but they are not prohibited from voluntarily teaching for longer periods.

The new law, Senate Bill 1458, is an amendment to the old full-year school law. The latter allowed school districts to operate schools on a 12-month calendar by dividing a 235-day school term into quarters. It provided that 75 per cent of the pupils enrolled in each grade had to be in attendance during each quarter.

Her Salads Sparkle At Buffet Table

by LOIS SEILER

In the summertime, Mrs. Wyman F. Carey of Arlington Heights likes to specialize in salads. "They are a refreshing asset to a warm weather meal and go well with barbecued meats and cold cuts," Carol Carey remarked.

One of her favorites for a buffet is a Pineapple Cottage Cheese Mold. Both lime and lemon Jell-O form the base for this salad, with cottage cheese and salad dressing giving it a creamy consistency. Crushed pineapple and chopped nuts add texture and flavor.

"It's the dressing that really adds interest to this mold," Carol explained. Made with eggs, this is a cooked dressing that has a nippy flavor from two of the ingredients — vinegar and mustard. The lime mold makes a nice accompaniment for ham and goes well with other salads served on a buffet.

ANOTHER SALAD that is nice for a buffet supper or as a luncheon entree features crabmeat as the prime ingredient. It is combined with celery and green pepper in a creamy blend of tomato soup, cream cheese and salad dressing, with unflavored gelatine as the congealing agent. Carol likes to make this in a fish mold which looks decorative, but any type of mold will do.

"It may also be made in individual molds for a luncheon," she added, "with relishes and crackers served as accompaniments."

FOR COOK-OUTS, a real man-pleaser is Carol's Three Bean Salad. Yellow waxed, green and kidney beans are the three beans used with sweet onion, green pepper and celery added for good measure. They are mixed with a sugar, vinegar and oil dressing.

"This should marinate at least 24 hours for the flavors to blend," Carol said.

The vegetables acquire a tangy, sweet-sour taste that makes them an excellent accompaniment for hamburgers, steak or almost any barbecued meat. Three Bean Salad is a favorite of Carol's husband, Wyman, who was formerly a professional baseball player. When he decided to give up baseball six years ago and go into business, the family settled in Arlington Heights at 914 W. Elm St. They have three children: Clint, 10; Lisa, 8, and Amy, 3.

Active in Ginger Creek Chapter of Quilters, Carol likes to collect and refinish antiques. She also enjoys dabbling with art and craft projects and, naturally, she loves to cook!

PINEAPPLE COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

- 1 small can crushed pineapple
- 1 small package lemon Jell-O
- 1 small package lime Jell-O
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1 cup Miracle Whip salad dressing
- ½ cup walnuts, chopped

Add water to pineapple juice making two cups liquid. Heat to boiling point. Dissolve gelatine in hot liquid and add salt. Cool mixture until it begins to thicken. Fold in pineapple and remaining ingredients. Chill in your favorite mold, 1½-quart size. Serves 8.

Serve with the following dressing:

- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs beaten
- 1½ cup vinegar
- ½ cup water

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon yellow mustard
- Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt together. Add beaten eggs and stir well. Heat vinegar and water and add slowly to egg mixture. Cook slowly until thick, stirring constantly. Add butter and mustard and remove from stove. Refrigerate.
- Spoon over servings of the Pineapple Cottage Cheese Salad and sprinkle with grated cheddar cheese.

CRABMEAT SALAD

- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 large package cream cheese
- 1 package unflavored gelatine
- ¾ cup cold water
- 1 7½-ounce can crabmeat
- 1 cup celery, chopped
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 1 cup Miracle Whip salad dressing

Combine soup and cream cheese in saucepan. Place over low flame, stirring constantly until well blended. Set aside. Dissolve gelatine in cold water. After tomato mixture has cooled, stir in gelatine. Add remaining ingredients and turn into fish mold or other one-quart mold. Individual molds may be used. Chill until set and unmold on lettuce. Serves 6.

THREE BEAN SALAD

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup vinegar
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 can whole yellow waxed beans, drained
- 1 can whole green beans, drained
- 1 can red kidney beans, drained
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 sweet onion, chopped
- 1 large green pepper, diced

Mix together the sugar, vinegar, oil and salt. Mix with drained beans, celery, onion and green pepper. Let stand 24 hours in refrigerator. Serve with a slotted spoon. Serves 12.

A PRETTY SALAD turned out by Mrs. Wyman Carey Pineapple Cottage Cheese mold that goes well with gets the OK of her daughters, Amy and Lisa. It's a barbecued meats and cold cuts for a summer buffet.

SUBURBAN LIVING

Blueberry Fool: A Fun Dessert

Chances are that most of today's youngsters have never heard of a Blueberry Fool. Yet in the old days, American boys and girls grew up debating why this particular family dessert was called by such a crazy name.

According to some members of the older generation, little girls seemed to hold to the idea that the "fool" had to do with fooling the eater. Something that tasted so good simply could not be made with just ordinary bread.

Boys, on the other hand, thought the fool was somehow related to fun, fun to talk about and fun to eat.

Let's not fool around — let's see that today's kids get a chance to talk about Blueberry Fool and, especially, to enjoy this easy old-fashioned treat. When blueberries are in season it's fun to surprise the family with some new "old" ideas for using these delicious berries.

BLUEBERRY FOOL

- 4 cups diced bread
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 4 cups fresh blueberries
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup milk

Fry the diced bread in the butter until nicely browned and crisp on all sides. With a fork, crush fresh blueberries in a bowl. Add the bread and sugar and blend. Mix in milk. Spoon into individual serving dishes and chill. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 8.

Freshly Baked In a Pie

Those Big Beautiful Blueberries

Most women have some special individual recipe they cherish. It might be an heirloom, handed down from a pioneer great-great-grandmother who learned from the Indians that this particular berry was one of the treasures of the New World.

It might be a recipe she improved on herself after learning the basic rudiments of blueberry pie-making in a high school home economics class.

Favorite blueberry pies have been known to come from mothers-in-law who certainly knew what recipes their sons preferred in the growing-up years.

The classic blueberry pie is made with a double crust. There are women who prefer to lattice the crust; some blueberry pies are "deep-dish" with no bottom crust at all. But it's not the crust that's important. It's what's inside.

BLUEBERRY PIE is universally popular, some maintain, because it is nostalgic of happy summer days of childhood. Not necessarily, others say. Blueberry pie is loved by everybody because nothing, really nothing, tastes quite like blueberries. Sweet, distinctive, flavorful.

Right now, nobody need wait. The fresh blueberries are in the markets in wonderful abundance. And here's a recipe for a new kind of blueberry pie. It just might become a family favorite in your house.

BLUEBERRY GLAZED WHIPPED CREAM PIE

- 1 cup biscuit mix
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, softened at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons boiling water
- 6 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
- ½ cup water
- 1 cup sugar
- 2½ tablespoons cornstarch

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- ¼ cup confectioners sugar

Put biscuit mix and butter into a 9-inch pie pan. Add boiling water and stir with fork until dough cleans the pie pan. Knead a few times with floured hands and then pat dough into the bottom and sides of the pan. Press dough around the edge into a neat rim. Prick with a fork. Bake in a preheated hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes or until rim is brown. Cool.

Mix 2 cups of the blueberries, water, sugar and cornstarch. Bring to a boil and stir constantly until berries are tender. Press mixture through a sieve. Stir in butter. Pour remaining berries into pie shell. Spoon warm glaze over them. Chill. Whip cream with sugar until stiff. Using a pastry bag with a large rose tip, pipe large circles of cream on top of pie to decorate. Chill until ready to serve.

Some Fish Stories

Tasty Treasures From The Sea

A 'Tail' Of Lobster

Rock lobster is for seeing, smelling and tasting. Put a lot of rock lobster tails on the grill and see the shells turn a bright red right before your eyes. Then the translucent meat gets whiter and snowier as it cooks through.

The smell carries a person toward far-away places, like South Africa, where the rock lobsters come from. Then, the taste — so sweet, so delicate in flavor, so tender and juicy.

What a treat to see them and smell them in the cooking process, then sit down for that ultimate taste.

BARBECUED

SOUTH AFRICAN ROCK LOBSTER

Thaw tails, cut underside membrane around edge and remove. Grasp tail in both hands and crack shell firmly lengthwise to prevent curling. Or insert skewers to keep tail flat. Place tails flesh side toward heat first and grill 4 minutes. Turn, baste if desired, and continue grilling until meat is opaque, from 5 to 8 minutes.

ROSY RAREBIT

1 can (10 and 3/4 oz.) cheddar cheese soup
1/2 cup beer
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons catsup

In small pan, dilute soup with beer. Add mustard and catsup. Cover and simmer over coals until sauce is smooth and melted. Serve with broiled rock lobster tails. Yield: about 2 cups.

TOASTED ALMOND BUTTER

1/2 cup slivered almonds
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup lemon juice

Combine almonds and butter in a small skillet. Cook while stirring until almonds are brown and toasted. Stir in lemon juice. Remove almonds with a slotted spoon and reserve. Brush butter over rock lobster tails several times during broiling. Serve rock lobster sprinkled with toasted almonds. Yield: about 3/4 cup.

SKILLET CORN BREAD

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
1 package corn muffin mix

Heat butter and saute onions until golden. Prepare corn muffin mix according to package directions for corn bread. Fold in onions and drippings. Pour batter into a heavily-buttered heavy 8-inch skillet. Cover skillet with a greased piece of foil. Place 8 inches above gray coals on the grill and bake until firm, about 25 to 30 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve with butter. Yield: 1 8-inch skillet.

SOUTH AFRICAN rock lobster tails look, smell and taste heavenly. Corn bread "bakes" simultaneously on the grill.

A Saucy Shrimp Dish

Fresh food from the sea and fresh canned pineapple from the tropics combine delectably in a number of handsome and strikingly colorful and saucy fish dishes. A nutritious and lively break from routine meat menus, these main dishes range from a family-favorite supper dish to more elegant party fare.

Sweet and sour means sweet and satisfying, too. This tantalizing main dish of rosy shrimp, juicy pineapple and crisp vegetables in a light, shiny sauce is an exotic entree. Following the Oriental style of cooking, the fresh vegetables are added last so all the true flavor and bright color are preserved. The canned pineapple, processed soon after harvesting, tastes as fresh as the day it was picked.

PINEAPPLE SHRIMP, CANTON

1 (13 1/2 ounce) can pineapple chunks
1/2 pound uncooked large shrimp (frozen or fresh)

Garlic salt

1 tablespoon cooking oil
1 small onion, cut in wedges
2 stalks celery, cut in diagonal slices
1/2 green pepper, cut in slices or chunks
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Drain pineapple, reserving 1/4 cup syrup. Shell and devein shrimp; run under cold water. Drain, then pat dry. Lightly sprinkle shrimp with garlic salt. Cook in hot oil in skillet just until shrimp turns pink. Add onion. Cover and cook several minutes until onion is tender. Add celery and green pepper. Cover and cook several minutes longer until vegetables are tender but still crisp. Combine reserved pineapple syrup, vinegar, soy sauce, water and cornstarch. Add to shrimp mixture. Cook, stirring until sauce thickens and becomes clear. Add pineapple chunks; heat 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

More Fish Stories...

The seasonal sunny weather goes to people's heads in different ways. For fishermen, it's the prime time of year. If your own mighty fisherman is lucky enough to land some trout, a delectably tart sauce made with Florida grapefruit juice is the perfect accompaniment.

Should you do your own fishing at the supermarket, pick up trout or about two pounds of whatever fresh fish is available. The grapefruit sauce does beautifully with anything you choose. Each elegant serving yields about 230 calories.

TROUT WITH GRAPEFRUIT SAUCE

4 brook trout, about 1/2 pound each
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon frozen grapefruit juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped chives

Sprinkle trout on both sides with salt. Place on baking sheet lined with greased foil. Brush lightly with oil or melted butter. Bake in 450 degrees oven about 10 minutes, until fish flakes easily with a fork. Combine butter, undiluted grapefruit concentrate, parsley and chives in saucepan. Heat and pour over fish. Garnish with grapefruit sections and sprigs of parsley.

ANOTHER TASTY FISH is salmon—easy to prepare, high in food value and requires just a little cooking. And good news for all salmon fanciers is the abundant supply of fresh salmon swimming into market from cold, clear waters around Bristol Bay, Alaska. Your share of Neptune's bounty is waiting for you at the nearest seafood market.

Why not foil a salmon fillet and serve it at your next cookout?

SALMON FILLETS IN FOIL

2 pounds salmon fillets, fresh or frozen
6 squares heavy duty aluminum foil (12 by 12 inches each)
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon crushed garlic
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Lemon wedges

Thaw frozen fillets. Cut fillets into 6 portions. Place a portion of fish, skin side down, on each piece of foil. Combine remaining ingredients except lemon wedges. Pour sauce over fish. Bring foil up over fish and close all edges with tight double folds. Place packages on a grill about 4 inches from moderately hot coals. Cook for 20 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

A trip to the British Isles offered some personal insights into the qualities of cooking in England, Scotland and Ireland, which we will highlight for you in the next several columns.

We sampled the fare at all types of restaurants, hotel dining rooms and pubs from London to some small hidden away villages in the Scottish Highlands and in Ireland.

As a generalization, the food was substantial, always heavy in starches. Vegetables by American standards were usually overcooked. Fresh green salads were the exception, not the rule.

But we discovered many different and unusual recipes which, extracted from the somewhat routine and monotonous British menus, will help bring some variations to your table.

SOUPS WERE uniformly superb, and in the coastal cities fish was abundant and excellent. We had, for example, a lobster thermidor in the dining room at the Intercontinental Hotel in Limerick for 29.8 shillings which is $3.50 American. In general, food prices were not exorbitant.

All the chefs encountered rely heavily upon having available basic stock for an endless variety of purposes in their cooking. Most common is the "extract of beef, or very strong, plain beef gravy soup" which becomes the base for many other soups, for sauces and meat pies.

Stock also is made from mutton, fish, pork and chicken and the broths used extensively. For the extract of beef, here is the recipe of Baron Justus Liebig whose book "Researches on the Chemistry of Food" appeared in 1847.

PURCHASE A 1-pound piece of lean rump of beef and cut away any skin or fat. Chop into small pieces, then add to a pan with 1 pint of cold water. Using lowest heat possible, warm very slowly stirring occasionally. Never allow to more than simmer and cook for 2 hours.

When the beef first begins to simmer, add salt to taste. After simmering as indicated, bring to boil for just 15 minutes. Allow to cool, then pour off extract into dish or jar, if it's to be stored. After extract stands for a while skim off all fat and pour liquid gently to eliminate particles which will have settled in the bottom.

This may be reheated and served at once as a clear soup or saved as a stock for other soups and dishes which will be treated in succeeding columns.

DO YOU HAVE a recipe for beef broth or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, Box 290, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. For personal reply, please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Pastry Shop Breads!

In the past, you've had only the flavor and texture of Jewel Pastry Shop breads to tell you just how fresh they are. Now there's more... a new "quick-lock" seal on every loaf on which a freshness date is imprinted. When you shop on Monday, the seal will say "Fresh Monday." The same will hold true for Tuesday, Wednesday or whatever day in the week you visit. It's now easier than ever to be sure of perfect freshness in all the breads you choose in Jewel's Pastry Shop!

In addition to the now-familiar chart on detergents in your store, Jewel has now posted additional charts showing the phosphate content of bleaches, additives, dishwasher compounds and all-purpose cleaners as well. Phosphates, though they provide "cleaning power" in your wash, are still a contributing factor to the pollution of our waters and streams. For this reason, Jewel hopes these charts will be of assistance to you in deciding which laundry products to buy and use!

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM JEWEL'S HOME ECONOMIST
Because many people are concerned about our environment, we are listing the phosphate content in laundry and dishwashing products. Phosphates, while they provide "cleaning power," are still one of the leading contributors of pollution and eutrophication of our streams and lakes. The lower the phosphate content, the less the product will contribute to this problem.

New On The Food Shelf

Meal Sized Franks

There's a new frank appearing on the food shelves that is designed for adult tastes. It's bigger, meal-size, "all meat" with a zesty spice mix and sharper texture. Made by Oscar Mayer, it is named 1883 Brand — for the year the company was founded.

Each one-pound package contains six over-size links. A serving of two links equals one-third pound meat.

The new frank can be broiled, baked, grilled or heated in water. It can be stuffed with pineapple tidbits, or cheese, wrapped with strips of bacon, served on buns with coney island sauce, sauerkraut, cole slaw, baked beans, barbecue sauce or your favorite relishes.

For a hearty meal, serve the spicy franks with a Hot German Potato Salad that's a perfect complement.

HOT GERMAN POTATO SALAD
1 package (½ lb.) bacon
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water
1/3 cup vinegar
2 cans (1 lb. each) sliced potatoes, drained (about 4 cups)

Cut bacon into 1-inch pieces. Cook in skillet until crisp; remove and drain, reserving 2 tablespoons drippings. Combine sugar, onion, flour and seasonings; stir into drippings. Gradually add water and vinegar. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Add potatoes and bacon pieces. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes, or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Plentiful Foods List

Canned peaches, canned applesauce, peanuts and peanut products, plus dry split peas have been designated as plentiful foods for September by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Plentiful Foods List is part of USDA's program to inform the public and the food trade about foods expected to be in abundant supply in the immediate future and in need of merchandising aid. The list is developed by USDA commodity specialists in cooperation with various segments of the food industry.

C&MS officials said the supply situation for September plentiful is as follows:

CALIFORNIA clingstone peaches in canners hands on June 1 totaled 8.3 million cases compared with 5.6 million cases a year earlier. This season's pack is estimated at approximately 24 million cases. Canners stocks of freestone peaches carried into the 1970-71 season were 2 million cases, or the highest level since 1965.

As of June 1, record level stocks of canned applesauce amounted to 12.3 million cases, or 28 per cent greater than a year ago.

Estimated acreage planted to 1970 crop peanuts for all purposes is the largest since 1965. The harvest will be coming to market in September.

Official forecast for this year's dry pea production is for a decrease of 6 per cent from last year, but 22 per cent above 1968. Trade sources indicate that green and particularly yellow dry peas will continue in abundant supply.

Home, Sweet Smelling Home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Children who come home to warm homes permeated with the smell of good cooking are less apt to seek sensations such as drug-taking, in the opinion of author and social commentator Sam Levenson.

Levenson, who has written two best sellers on the simple virtues of life, is working on a third book which argues that the "synthetic, automatic, electronic, noise-infected, soot-laden, oxygen-free, peace-free" atmosphere in which children are raised promotes addiction.

"A home should smell like a home," Levenson said. "Children have got to touch, see and feel that they are home. Mothering requires smothering — children whose senses come alive at home do not need to take a trip in search of what is so freely available to them."

"WE NEED to retrace our steps to the days when this kind of home was the rule and not the exception it is today. Too many children do not come home to something cooking in the oven. Over and over they say they 'come home to nobody all the time.'"

Levenson who wrote "Everything but Money" about life in the ghetto and "Sex and the Single Child" about the basic innocence of youth, does not consider the old-style home a universal panacea. But it can, he says, help eliminate the "boredom, loneliness, sense of personal irrelevance and leisure without purpose" that plagues the younger generation.

Monosodium Glutamate Controversy Ended

A controversy over the safety of monosodium glutamate has ended with a determination by the nation's highest scientific body that the widely used food flavor enhancer is safe for human use.

The Food and Drug Administration announced the clean bill of health for MSG after an extended study of current and past scientific research undertaken at the FDA's request by the National Academy of Sciences/National Research Council.

The FDA assigned the MSG study to the NAS/NRC body during the flurry of concern and confusion over food components and additives which followed the ban on cyclamates last fall.

The prestigious NAS/NRC appointed a special committee of leading food scientists and pediatricians to scrutinize the subject. The committee reported to the FDA that there is no risk to man from the normal use of monosodium glutamate as a food flavor enhancer in the home or in industrial and institutional food preparation.

MONOSODIUM GLUTAMATE is a substance which is derived naturally from the glutamic acid in protein foods. It has been used for half a century as a flavor enhancer by homemakers and food processors to restore flavor to its peak. Its safety had rarely been questioned until the cyclamates' incident. Public attention focused on MSG apparently in large part because of the similarity in the sounds of cyclamates and glutamate, although these are two entirely unrelated substances.

One of the focal points of the controversy had been the use of MSG in baby foods, which baby food manufacturers had announced they would withhold because of public fears, although they considered it safe for use.

The final report to FDA cleared MSG from any restrictions of any kind. It commented that because the committee could not find any benefit from use of MSG in foods specifically designated for infants, it was recommended that it not be added to infant specialty foods. For all other consumers, the report said, "the flavor-enhancing property of MSG is considered to be beneficial."

THE FIRST SUGGESTION that MSG was under fire came two years ago when a physician wrote to a medical magazine that he had experienced brief physical discomfort after eating in a Chinese restaurant. Several other physicians reported similar experiences to the magazine, and it was suggested that the use of MSG in soups and solid foods might be responsible.

Such experiences were characterized earlier this year by an NAS/NRC committee as of a transient nature, possibly occasioned by allergies, but of little significance. This conclusion was based on scientific testing conducted in 1968.

The controversy originated, for the most part, from a study in which a researcher said he had observed damage to newborn mice after injecting massive doses of MSG under their skins. This report was variously mis-reported and distorted as an experiment in which MSG was fed to the test animals rather than injected subcutaneously.

More conclusive experiments within the past year confirmed safety of the substance when normally ingested and pointed up the irrelevance of the subcutaneous injection studies.

Nutrition A La Carte

For good health, you should consume two to three cups of milk a day. A quart of milk a day will give you three-fourths of the calcium you need, plus many other nutrients. This advice comes from Dr. Lawrence M. Hursh, consultant for the National Dairy Council.

Carbohydrates are the sugars and starches in our food. They serve as sources of energy for our bodies and to maintain body temperature. The most common sources of carbohydrates include cereals and products derived from them such as breads and baked goods, breakfast cereals, rice and noodles — also most vegetables and fruits, sugar, jams, jellies, candy, and honey.

Breads and cereals are essential in good nutrition. They are one of the four food groups. You should get four or more servings of enriched or whole grain breads and cereals each day. These foods are even more useful when combined with animal protein, such as cornflakes and milk, a cheese sandwich, or spaghetti with meat balls.

WHAT DO FATS in our diets do for us? Fats supply a large amount of energy in a small amount of food — twice as much per gram as either protein or carbohydrate. They make our meals taste better, and more satisfying. Fats also help keep skin healthy by supplying essential fatty acids. And fats promote efficiency in our use of protein and carbohydrate.

Exercise is an important part of any weight control program. Burning up some of those calories in wholesome outdoor activity allows you to eat a more satisfying amount of food. Remember too, a sound reducing diet includes foods from the meat group, the milk group, fruits and vegetables, enriched and whole grain breads and cereals.

The human body is composed of about two-thirds water, by weight. This high water-content of the body has been called "the sea within you." It is, literally, salt water plus essential substances in solution.

Many of our best foods help supply the amounts of the water we need. Milk is one. And did you know tomatoes contain 93 per cent water?

Measure Range Space

Measure the space in your kitchen allotted for a range before you go shopping for a new one. Free-standing ranges are available in 12, 20, 24, 30, 36 and 48-inch widths.

A smaller size range does not necessarily mean a smaller oven or less surface units; often the difference is only in range storage space.

What's Thawing For Dinner?

Easy To Freeze Corn On The Cob

by CHARLOTTE ERICKSON

Attention corn-on-the-cob lovers. Now is the time to fill your freezers with a supply to last all winter.

Make sure the corn you buy has just been picked and is of top quality with tender kernels. Remember, freezing doesn't improve the corn, so freezing tough mature ears is a waste of time and money.

I'm not saying it isn't possible, but I have never found corn in the supermarkets of sufficient high quality to freeze. Drive out to your favorite roadside stand and select just-picked ears on the day you intend to freeze them; go home and process them immediately. It's not a difficult job and with a little help from the younger generation (after all, who eats most of it anyway?), a bushel can be processed and frozen in less than an hour.

DON'T USE the often-heard shortcut of freezing the corn in the husk unless you are not at all fussy about the way your corn tastes. I've seen this advice in print, and I've tried it. The corn loses all its sweetness, and the texture also deteriorates with this method.

Husk and clean the ears. Bring to a full boil a minimum of five quarts of water. Use the largest kettle you have; the more water it holds, the more corn you can blanch at one time. For every five quarts of water you can blanch about 8 medium ears of corn at a time. Start timing the minute you put the corn into the water. It takes 7 minutes for small ears, 9 minutes for medium sized ears 11 minutes for large sized ears.

Remove corn and immerse in cold water that has been chilled with ice. Keep adding ice as you go along so the water is always very cold. Chill for about the same length of time that you blanch the corn-on-the-cob. Drain and then wrap in freezer bags, date, label and freeze immediately. Remember, always start your blanching with fast boiling water.

ALWAYS THAW corn-on-the-cob before cooking. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes in boiling water and serve. Corn-on-the-cob is probably the only vegetable that is thawed before cooking. The reason is that the cooking time is sufficient to cook the kernels, but the cob would still be frozen. Not a very pleasant sensation when eating it. Also, the cold cob would cool your corn in a matter of minutes.

IF YOU want to enjoy fresh corn-on-the-cob yet this summer, a delicious way to prepare it is by grilling.

Keep in mind that a day of outdoor activities creates a very hearty appetite. Depending on your guests, figure 2 to 4 ears of corn per person. Get fresh field-grown sweet corn in the husk. Several hours before eating, soak corn in the husk in a large tub of water. About 15 or 20 minutes before eating put wet corn, husks and all, on the grill. Close lid and steam over low heat 15 or 20 minutes or until husks are dry and brown. Corn will have a caramel color.

To serve: Break off husks and brush with plenty of Seasoned Butter. Here's a recipe for the butter that is enough for 6 to 8 ears of sweet corn. Melt 1/4 pound of butter, add 1 teaspoon dried rosemary, 1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram and salt and pepper to taste. Let set for 1/2 hour before serving to let the herbs marry with the butter. Serve with pastry brush and let each guest butter his own corn.

ANOTHER GOOD use for corn in season is for Corn Relish. This is an interesting recipe of corn relish — tastes quite similar to the commercial variety found in restaurants and on the gourmet shelves. Can be made now with fresh corn kernels and later in the season with frozen corn kernels.

Actually, making the corn relish with frozen ingredients will take only a fraction of the time it would take if you choose to chop your own vegetables. After the corn relish has marinated the flavor difference is minimal.

Single recipe yields approximately 6 pints.

CORN RELISH

8 cups corn kernels (8 to 12 large ears of corn) or

1 2-pound bag frozen corn
3 cups fresh or frozen chopped onions
3 cups finely chopped celery
1 cup fresh or frozen chopped green pepper

1 4-ounce jar pimiento, chopped
1 1/2 cups white vinegar
2 cups sugar
1/4 cup vegetable oil
3 tablespoons salt
1/4 cup mustard seed
2 teaspoons turmeric
1 teaspoon celery seeds
1/2 teaspoon black pepper

Remove kernels from fresh corn with a sharp knife after they have been thoroughly cleaned. Place corn, celery, onions and green pepper in a large kettle. Add vinegar, oil and seasonings. Heat to boiling, then lower heat and simmer for about 5 minutes. Now add pimiento and simmer for about 2 minutes longer. This relish keeps well for weeks in your refrigerator. Or else pour into 6 sterilized pint jars and seal at once.

Peaches Are 'In'

Peaches are here — that means it's time to EAT, CAN, or FREEZE fresh peaches.

Fresh peaches rank fourth in popularity among fresh fruits eaten by Americans, only surpassed by apples, oranges, and bananas.

Did you know that we Americans eat about 60 medium-sized peaches per year?

Peak supplies of peaches are in the markets now. Slice them thick or thin, eat them fresh now, can and freeze them for later use.

With peach quality there is no substitute for ripeness. Fruit that is left on the tree until ripe, or at least firm ripe, is the only kind of fresh peach that can provide the flavorful tasty tenderness that everyone demands from this special dessert fruit.

IN BUYING PEACHES avoid those which are very firm or that have a distinctly green color. They are probably immature or won't ripen properly. Peaches with large flattened bruises or with any sign of decay will have much waste.

Freestone peaches have a pit that separates easily from the flesh saving labor, time, and effort when cut up.

Orange or lemon juice prevents darkening of cut peaches.

The peach crop is down 10 per cent this year. The blueberry crop will be 1/4 smaller this year than last, but plums will be in the markets in abundance through September.

Summer Drink, Dessert Tips

Tips for summer desserts and drinks: for a sweet dessert medley, drizzle nutritious honey over peaches, plums, red or black raspberries or other fresh fruits. Or with frozen lemon or lime juice concentrate, add equal amounts of cold water and refrigerate for about one hour until well chilled. Pour over cantaloupe balls or other fresh fruits.

For beverages: the trick in making good iced coffee and tea is to sweeten either coffee or tea while warm. For flavor in tea you may add whole cloves or cinnamon.

To prevent cloudiness in tea, pour hot mixture over ice cubes or, if tea or coffee is already made or has been refrigerated, remove cloudiness by adding 1/4 cup of boiling water.

Difference In Milk

What's the difference between evaporated and condensed milk?

Evaporated milk is whole milk with about 60 per cent of the water removed. It's homogenized so the fat won't separate. Condensed milk is sweetened. It is made from whole milk with about half of the water removed and sugar added to preserve the product.

Fruit Salad Topper

Top fresh fruit salads with the following honey-sweetened salad dressing: Lightly blend four parts mayonnaise, two parts sour cream, one part honey and one part broken nutmeats. Add a dash of fresh lime or lemon juice. Let stand one hour in refrigerator to permit flavors to blend before serving.

Uninsured Driver Runs Some Risks

What does the law have to say about the motorist who fails to carry automobile liability insurance?

According to the Illinois State Bar Association, a person may own and operate a motor vehicle in Illinois without insuring himself against his liability for damages in case of accident but, if an accident happens, the law does make certain demands upon him under penalty of the loss of his license.

By law, the uninsured driver who is involved in an accident resulting in property damage of $250 or more, or the injury of any person, must provide proof to the division of highways of the state department of public works and buildings that he is a financially responsible person. If he fails to provide this proof to the satisfaction of the law, his driver's license will be suspended and the license plates of his car may be confiscated.

Here is what the law expects by way of proof of financial responsibility on the part of the uninsured motorist who has an accident:

HE MUST DEPOSIT cash or a surety bond with the state in an amount required to cover his possible liability for damage claims resulting from the accident. This requirement is waived only if the uninsured motorist is freed by final court adjudication from any liability, or if he executes a duly acknowledged written agreement with the injured party or parties providing for payment of all claims, or if he obtains signed releases from all persons involved in the accident absolving him from liability.

He must obtain insurance to cover his liability in case of future accident in the amount of at least $5,000 for damage to the property of others; $10,000 for the injury or death of one person; $20,000 for injury or death of two or more persons in the same accident. (A certificate verifying that insurance in the required amounts has been obtained must be supplied by the insuring company.) This requirement is waived only if the uninsured motorist instead deposits cash or a surety bond in the amount of $25,000 with the state to cover his possible liability for future accident.

IF, IN ORDER to meet the financial responsibility requirements, the motorist obtains insurance, this insurance must be kept in force for a period of three years and his failure to do so will result in the loss of his driving privilege.

Warning: that coverage in the minimum amounts provided in the law is not intended as a guide to desirable insurance protection. It points out that actual damage claims resulting from an accident could run much higher, especially in view of the high cost of hospital care, medical treatment and substantial loss of income which an injured person might suffer, to say nothing of damages due to a person's death.

According to ISBA, many insurance experts and lawyers who try damage suits in court favor insurance coverage in at least the following amounts: $50,000 for damage to the property of others (damage to a truck loaded with expensive merchandise could easily run that high); $100,000 for injury or death of one person; $300,000 per accident (for injury or death of two or more persons) and $10,000 medical payments to cover necessary medical treatment of the insured party, his family or guests in his car. In addition, collision insurance to cover damage to the insured's own car is recommended.

ANNUAL PREMIUMS for auto insurance depend upon the age of the insured, his record as a driver, the extent and nature of his use of the car, his locality and other factors. Major increases in the limits of a person's auto insurance, to bring it up to recommended levels, usually can be obtained for relatively small increases in the insurance premium, the ISBA advises.

Hanson Named To Advertising Post

Robert P. Hanson has been named regional advertising accounts manager for Paddock Publications.

Announcement of the appointment was made today by Ted W. Small, director of advertising for the 10 daily Herald and five tri-weekly Register newspapers.

"The addition of Bob Hanson to our display advertising management staff will further strengthen our continuing effort to expand services for chain and other regional advertisers to whom this rapidly-developing suburban market is of increased importance," said Small.

HANSON JOINED Paddock Publications in June as a display advertising sales representative after working two years as a regional account executive for Day Publications, Inc. The Day newspapers were purchased by Paddock Publications in June.

Prior to Day, he was associated for four years with Des Plaines Publishing Co.

A graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles, Hanson majored in marketing at DePaul University.

He and his wife, Virginia, are parents of three children and live at 3504 N. Buffalo Grove Rd., Arlington Heights.

'West, Don't Blow It!'

DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost nothing will cool off a teenage romance quite as quickly as the girl finding out that her parents approve of the boy she is dating. I made this discovery on a recent evening when I went over to Harper Vallee's house to discuss some matters involving the PTA.

Harper, which isn't his real name, has two teenage daughters, Echo and Peace, which aren't their real names either.

For some reason the Vallees like bogus names.

As we were looking over the proposed PTA budget for the coming school year, Echo came in with her boy friend, Ashton Flakely. I was impressed by him.

He was a clean-cut lad with unusually good manners and a respectful way of speaking to adults that sort of restored my faith in the younger generation.

"ASHTON SURE seems like a nice kid," I remarked later. "He has a lot of."

Harper whirled around and clapped a hand over my mouth.

"Sssshh!" he hissed. "Echo might hear you."

"What's the big idea? I said, pushing his hand aside. I was only going to say that Echo's boy friend has a lot of..."

Harper raised a finger to his lips. "For Pete's sake, keep your voice down," he said. "If Echo hears you say something complimentary about Ashton, she might not get out with him any more."

"Why?" I said. "What makes you think that?"

"Because that's the way we lost Donny Appleberry."

"Who is Donny Appleberry?"

"PEACE'S EX-BOY friend. He was a good, level-headed kid, who was a pleasure to have around. Best of all, we felt safe about letting her go out with him. So we encouraged her to date him."

"And that was a mistake"

"A dreadful mistake. As soon as Peace discovered that we liked Donny, she decided he was square and dropped him like a hot potato. Now she's dating a bearded creep who calls for her on a motorcycle."

"But you are her parents," I said. "I'm just a family friend. Isn't it all right for me to approve of Echo's boy friend?"

"At this stage of the game, when they've just started going steady, any adult praise could cause a breakup," Harper replied. "If you don't have anything bad to say, I'll thank you to keep your opinions to yourself."

Veterans' Vane

Editor's Note: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — I was discharged from service in June. How much time do I have to use my educational benefit?

A — You have eight years after your separation to use your educational benefit, provided you have served at least 180 days, any part of which occurred after Jan. 31, 1955.

Q — Will the VA tell me which is the best option to select when preparing a beneficiary and option for my G.I. insurance.

A — No. The tables of installments are cited among the policy provisions. This is intended not only as a provision of the contract, but as a reference from which the insured must make a judgment.

Q — My husband, a World War I veteran, died recently. Will the VA allow any reimbursement on his burial expenses?

A — Yes, up to and including $250. The VA also reimburses for transportation of a veteran's body to place of burial, if he was properly hospitalized or domiciled at a VA facility.

Q — I have $10,000 National Service Life term insurance which I obtained during World War II, and plan to convert to Modified Life. Is there a deadline for converting my insurance?

A — No, except that it must be converted to the Modified Life plan before you reach insurance age 61 (insurance age extends from six months before to six months after insured's birthday.).
